BOARD OF REALTORS

Realtor of the week

PATRICK NEYLAN

Patrick arrived in California from Iowa as a youngster in 1941. His folks, like many others from Iowa, came to Southern California, and in 1950, they settled in Lakewood. He attended college in Fullerton after graduation from St. Anthony's High School. Today, he still resides in Lakewood with his wife, Linda, and their two children.

While growing up in Lakewood, Patrick was the first Independent newspaper boy in the area, and did a fine job of increasing new subscriptions. An example of his salesmanship: before leaving the train station on a contest trip he won to Yosemite for subscription sales, he sold one more last subscription — up from the locomotive to the train's engineer! This was just one of many indications of the bright future ahead for the young man.

His career in real estate began in 1960, when he was a salesman with the firm of W.R. Woods Co. Later in 1964, he joined his father's firm of Campbell & Neylan; upon his father's passing, he began his own company and results have been dramatic. In 1969, he was elected director, Rancho Los Cerritos Board of Realtors; in 1973, he served as board president; and last year he was Realtor of the Year. He has been elected director of the California Association of Realtors three times and served on numerous committees. Patrick is an accomplished speaker, lecturer instructor for the Graduate Realtor Institute. In 1967 he began Neylan Realty Co. as a one man proprietorship, he soon expanded with branch offices and established escrow and training departments. He combined his two medium size offices into a large regional facility, and in 1974 the main office moved from Bellflower to the city of Cerritos. Located on the corner of Freeway 91 and Carmenita Road, it represents the epitome of the highest professional image. Patrick's key to success if "First, become involved, and then treat others as you would have them treat you." Dedicated to education, integrity, and service, he believes the biggest sales is yet to be made and the largest building is yet to be built.

New! Yogurty goodness, ice creamy taste!

Knudsen frozen yogurt sundaes & pushups.

Knudsen freezes the goodness of yogurt into thick, fruity sundaes and pushups kids love. The texture is smoother and silkier than ice cream, the fresh fruit flavors more tangy and satisfying. Strawberry, raspberry, orange, pineapple, and lemon chiffon. They taste so rich, it's hard to believe they're 98% fat free. Sure beats junk food.

Pick up a box of Knudsen Frozen Yogurt sundaes or pushups today. A whole new taste. Now in your grocer's ice cream section.

Knudsen. The dairy best.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

CONFESSION "Most of us are not telling the public that there is relatively little the police can do about crime. We are not letting the public in on our era's dirty little secret: that those who commit the crime which worries citizens most--violent street crime --are, for the most part, the products of poverty, unemployment, broken homes, rotten education, drug addiction and alcoholism, and other social and economic ills about which the police can do little, if anything.

"Rather than speaking up, most of us stand silent and let politicians get away with law and order rhetoric that reinforces the mistaken notion that police--in ever greater numbers and with more gadgetry--can alone control crime. The politicians, of course, end up perpetuating a system by which the rich get richer, the poor get poorer, and crime continues."

—Robert J. Di Grazia, Boston Police Commissioner

POLLEN ALLERGY Do you have a nagging summer cold which seems to hang on indefinitely? If it hangs on longer than a week, consult a doctor. You may have no cold at all. You may in fact be one of the more than 14 million Americans who are allergic to some type of pollen.

A few of the symptoms of pollen allergy are a runny or stuffy nose, itchy eyes, sneezing, or conjunctivitis.

There are three standard methods of treating a diagnosed pollen allergy: (1) avoid the allergen by travel, (2) medications or (3) allergy shots.

If you can't avoid the allergens by travel or remaining in an air-filtered area, antihistamines will control such symptoms as sneezing, nasal discharge and itching in the nose and throat.

If you have any questions about pollen allergy, it may pay you to invest 40 cents in a booklet which contains most of the answers. It's published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It's entitled "Pollen Allergy" and can be ordered from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 33, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

OIL MONEY AGAIN Kuwait, the fabulously rich Middle Eastern oil producer, which more than a year ago bought 14% of Daimler-Benz, manufacturer of Mercedes autos and trucks, has quietly bought into the West German banking system.

Kuwait has purchased 35% of Johannes Schuback and Sons of Hamburg, which is the largest regional bank in northern Germany.

Management of the bank remains unchanged because Kuwait, as in the case of Mercedes, "renounced from the very beginning any voice in management."

NEW FILM MONSTER Were you frightened by the motion picture "Jaws"? Wait until you see what the Australians have come up with.

It's a 20-foot crocodile that eats seven people, demolishes houses, and accepts an Aboriginal girl as a human sacrifice.

The crocodile is the brainchild of producer-director Terry Bourke. He describes it as "a transistorized mechanical marvel which can swim, walk, run, dive and devour anything." Moreover, he adds, "it has the advantage of locomotion on land as well as in water, which means escape from it becomes even more difficult."

The film, "Crocodile," will get underway next summer, and Bourke hopes to land James Mason, Burt Lancaster, and Diane Cilento for the leading roles.

The mechanisms for the crocodile are being manufactured in Japan.

THE PLIGHT OF SENIOR CITIZENS Even though two-thirds of every federal dollar spent on health care last year went to America's 22 million senior citizens, they remain a troubled lot.

Last month Dr. Robert N. Butler, the new director of the National Institution on Aging, detailed the sorry state of senior citizens in the U.S.:

--One-third of all older Americans are below or hover above the poverty line.

--The average single senior citizen has approximately $75 a week on which to live.

--25% of all suicides in the U.S. are committed by people over 65.

--We now have more Americans in nursing homes than in hospitals. In our 23,000 nursing homes we have 1.2 million people. One-half of all nursing homes can't pass basic fire safety inspections.

LESLEY-ANN DOWN

LUCKY LESLEY Remember Lesley-Ann Down, the 22-year-old British beauty who played Miss Georgina in the "Upstairs, Downstairs" TV series? A few weeks ago Lesley-Ann got one of those lucky show business breaks one frequently reads about.

Maud Adams, a Swedish actress, declined to act in a nude bedroom scene with Peter Sellers, who plays the bumbling police inspector, Jacques Clouseau, in "The Pink Panther Strikes Again."

Lesley-Ann said she would be only too happy to play the female lead including the nude bedroom scene. Now that she has, she says, "I simply don't understand why Maud dropped out. It was really a big fuss about nothing. I take my clothes off, but the audience just sees a silhouette of me--nothing more."

NAUSEA CURE Almost one out of every two pregnant women suffers from nausea at some time during her 40 weeks. Now pregnant women can be helped, says Dr. H. Gant of Innsbruck University's Women's Clinic in Austria.

Dr. Gant researched pregnant women suffering from nausea and discovered that all were deficient in vitamin B-6. After treating them with large doses of the vitamin--200 milligrams for seven days and five milligrams per day thereafter--he found that the nausea disappeared.

DRIVING ABROAD American tourists driving in Europe this summer should beware of traffic violations. European police rarely let anyone go just because he is a foreigner. In Italy, if you drive while drunk, you can be fined $108, sentenced to six months in jail.

In Denmark, drunk driving costs a month's salary. In Switzerland you can be fined a whopping $16,000 for the same offense. Drive in Denmark without hitching up your seat belt, and the fine is $22. In Switzerland it's $8.

NO INSURANCE DOCTORS A poll of physicians by the American Medical Association reveals that one out of eight respondents said he or she was currently practicing without malpractice insurance.

In some states insurance premiums have become so high--$30,000 and up per year--that doctors find they have no alternative but to drop such insurance.

The malpractice crisis is particularly severe in the Pacific states, where 51% of the physicians are in favor of letting their insurance lapse compared to about 30% of physicians in other states.

About 25% of the doctors in the Pacific and Mountain states report that they have been sued for malpractice in the last three years.

BLOND WOMAN PASSENGER EXERCISES IN HER SEAT

EXERCISE ON PLANE Lufthansa Airlines has taken a tip from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on what to do for people who are confined to their seats for long periods of time.

Passengers on all Lufthansa 747 and DC-10 planes can now take part in a 45-minute exercise program without leaving their seats. The airline has put together a session of isometric exercises combined with soothing music on one of its entertainment headset channels. The program is available in English and German, and a headset rents for $2.50.

SEX AND BRAINS Prof. Gwynne Jones of Leeds University (England) says in his book "Psycho-Sexual Problems" that one out of four wives is likely to engage in extramarital sex.

"Women are now recipients," he explains, "of a great deal of propaganda about how sexy they are. And Women's Lib is beginning to make women feel guilty about being housewives. As a result women are now going out and making new contacts."

Professor Jones says that even wives who remain faithful are posing problems for their husbands, in many cases increasing their demands for sexual experience and enjoyment.

Like other authorities on the subject, Jones believes that the more educated a woman is, the more sexy she is likely to become, understanding better the great role sex can play.

U.N. SALARIES IN SWITZERLAND If you want a well-paying job, try to become one of the 10,000 international employees of the United Nations in Geneva.

A still-secret report reveals that a messenger who wheels a cart stacked with interoffice mail is paid $413 a week.

Other examples of salaries paid at U.N. headquarters in Geneva are $350 a week for a copy typist; $1000 a week for a top executive; $555 a week for a mid-echelon member of management.

"Never," says one U.N. ambassador, "have so many done so little for so much."

SPY-SHIP WOMAN Several months ago, Lyudmilla Martemyanova, 35, a Russian marine biologist and oceanographer, jumped ship at Plymouth, England, asked British authorities for political asylum.

It was granted, and now apparently Lyudmilla is talking--about the large fleets of Soviet spy trawlers which cruise the Atlantic and Pacific. Lyudmilla, a former instructor at Leningrad University, told of what went on aboard the Argus, the survey ship from which she defected. British intelligence authorities consider her defection a lucky coup.

CRAZY ABOUT THE SUN?

Me, too. And I don't intend to miss a single day on the beach.

That's my number one reason for choosing Tampax tampons when I'm having my menstrual period.

They're worn internally. So there's nothing to get in your way. And nothing to show or feel bulky. Even in a bikini.

Sun...fun...and Tampax tampons. A combination that really works.

Nancy Rosner (on today's cover) counsels a client. She enjoys arguing cases in court and asserts that being a woman has not held her back as a trial attorney. "I communicate that I'm all business and know what I'm doing."

Female prosecutors like Pat Hynes (also on today's cover) are becoming more common. She's one of 116 women in practice as Assistant U.S. Attorneys. But five years ago, only 43 women held federal jobs equivalent to hers.

Women Lawyers Are Getting Their Day in Court

by Pam Proctor

Do women have what it takes to be top trial lawyers?

Texan Percy Foreman, who defended James Earl Ray in the Martin Luther King Jr. murder trial, is skeptical. "It takes more guts than brains to become a good trial lawyer," he says. "Little boys learn to fight and by the time they're grown it's in the temperament. Women play with dolls and they cultivate the tenderness that doesn't go at all with courtroom battles."

But famed personal injury lawyer Melvin Belli says, "There are no women trial lawyers who stand out like top male trial lawyers, because litigants haven't had them handle the big cases yet." He adds, "I've seen some women trial lawyers every bit the equal of men."

In the past few years, increasing numbers of female lawyers have been opting for careers as prosecutors and defense attorneys. One reason is simply that there are more women lawyers than ever before. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, approximately 7 percent of the country's 374,000 practicing lawyers are women, and their number is growing fast. In 1965, there were only 2537 women in law school, or 4 percent of the student enrollment. By last year, the number of women students in the nation's 163 law schools had jumped to 26,737, or 22.8 percent.

The women who have chosen to operate in the rugged courtroom arena are supremely confident of their trial talents. Here's how a few of them evaluate their abilities:

- Pat Hynes, 34, an Assistant U.S. Attorney who is chief of the consumer frauds unit for the Southern District of New York: "It's hard not to take me seriously. I'm very aggressive in a courtroom and I sum up with a lot of fire."
- Nancy Rosner, 30, New York defense attorney representing many organized crime figures: "I'm as good as any lawyer."

• Jill Wine Volner, 33, former assistant Watergate prosecutor, now an associate in a prestigious Washington law firm: "There are few lawyers who can claim the experience I've had. I know what to do in every situation."

• Penny Cooper, 37, a Berkeley, Cal., criminal lawyer in private practice with three male attorneys: "Almost everybody who comes to this firm comes here because I'm here. I suspect that a lot of my success has to do with the fact that I was one of the few women, and certainly the only really good one here, in a world of dull men."

This unabashed self-confidence may sound immodest and crass. But it reflects what most experts feel is a key courtroom quality.

For example, the moment Penny Cooper enters a courtroom she tries to project an air of authority that lets the judge and jury know she's in charge. During the sixth day of a murder trial a few years ago, she boldly tested her dominance by wearing a pantsuit, in spite of the fact that all the female jurors were wearing dresses.

Jurors liked pants

Instead of offending the jurors, Penny won them over. The next day, four women jurors showed up in pants. The case resulted in a verdict of second degree murder, "which was a victory," says Penny.

"I knew when I saw those women in pants that they would help me if they could," she explains.

Another feature of a good trial lawyer is that he must be "a superb judge of human relations," says Prof. Robert E. Keeton of the Harvard Law School.

With characteristic self-confidence, Nancy Rosner says the knack of sizing up juries, judges and witnesses "is just something that I have." She explains that she got an acquittal in a difficult heroin-importing case because she gained the sympathy of a strong-willed male juror whom she accurately pegged as a leader in the jury deliberations.

When the 12 jurors filed into the jury box, she saw a middle-aged man "who responded to me like gang-busters," says Nancy, a dark-eyed brunette who wears her expensive silk blouses unbuttoned just to the point of discretion. "I knew that there was no way in the world that I could lose this case if I got this man on my side," says Nancy.

She says she directed her case to him "in the most subtle ways possible." Noticing that he was a stickler for details, she purposefully asked witnesses questions using the wrong dates or times. She says the juror, who was sitting about a foot from her throughout the trial, became concerned that she would make a mistake and whispered the correct word to her.

"This man actually aided me in the trial!" says Nancy. "He represented my case to the jury." She won an acquittal in six hours.

Pat Hynes, a petite blonde who has been a federal attorney for nine years, says she relates well to women jurors. But once when she was picking a jury, her male co-counsel "became furious" when she included five women.

"You just made a big mistake," he said. "When you're a blonde, you should knock the women off the jury."

But Pat stuck by her guns. "Women many times are proud that another woman is there doing well," she says. "Those women were with me all through the trial." She won the case.

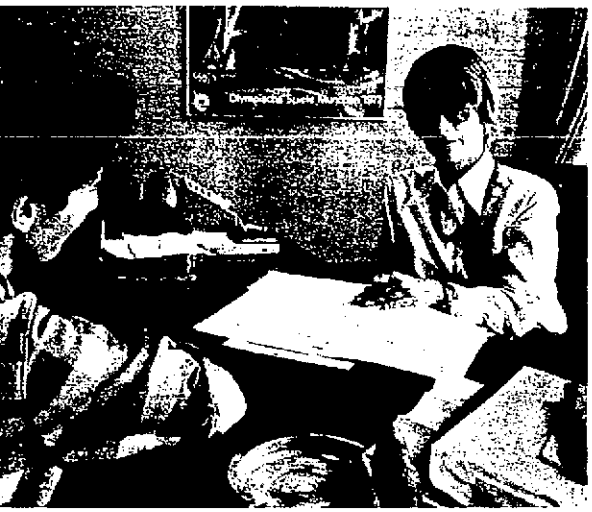
Talking tough

Women lawyers can sometimes have an edge over men in dealing with female witnesses. Jill Volner admits that as a prosecutor she could often be tougher than a man. "I could raise my eyebrows and use a tone of voice implying disbelief," says Jill. "But a man doing the same thing might come across as beating down a helpless woman."

But she insists that her sex was not the reason she was chosen to cross-examine President Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, during the Watergate cover-up trial. She says she initially got the assignment after complaining to her colleague and trial team superior Richard Ben-Veniste that he was taking the lion's share of the witnesses.

"I'm too experienced to sit in the courtroom and watch you do it all," argued Jill, who had spent five years as a trial attorney in the criminal division of the Justice Department before joining the Watergate team. "Either we share this or I'll leave."

He shrugged and said, "OK, you take the next witness." It was Rose Mary Woods.



One of the most dramatic moments of Watergate came when she was questioning Miss Woods during a hearing before Judge John Sirica. Miss Woods had previously testified that by mistakenly pushing the "record" button on her tape recorder and keeping her foot on the pedal that runs the machine she had accidentally erased 18 minutes of tape during a phone conversation.

Foot in mouth

With the tape recorder set up in court, Jill asked Miss Woods to demonstrate how she had made the erasure. When Miss Woods reached back to answer the imaginary phone, her foot instinctively came off the tape recorder pedal and the tape stopped moving.

To Jill, it was an exhilarating moment which "amounted to a public confession that [Rose Mary Woods] could not have done what she said she'd done."

But even if a woman prosecutor could score in the century's most celebrated case, could a female defense lawyer have succeeded in the Patty Hearst case?

Penny Cooper earns $100,000 a year defending clients ranging from dope dealers to Hell's Angels. "The real art of trying a case is preparing a package that will sell," she explains.

F. Lee Bailey, Patty Hearst's lawyer, says, "I think that when she was first arrested, Patty was comfortable with the thought that she might be represented by a woman lawyer who could understand her viewpoint." But, he says, "it didn't turn out to be a problem for me."

Many women lawyers, however, are convinced that Patty wouldn't have had any problems if they had represented her.

"Patty Hearst would have been acquitted in 30 minutes if I had tried that case," says Nancy Rosner.

Penny Cooper, who has defended many radical women, says, "Hell, I've had bank robbers who got straight probation. And they weren't kidnapped."

These feisty female trial lawyers crave spectacular cases like Patty Hearst's because they thrive on the excitement and challenge of starring on center stage.

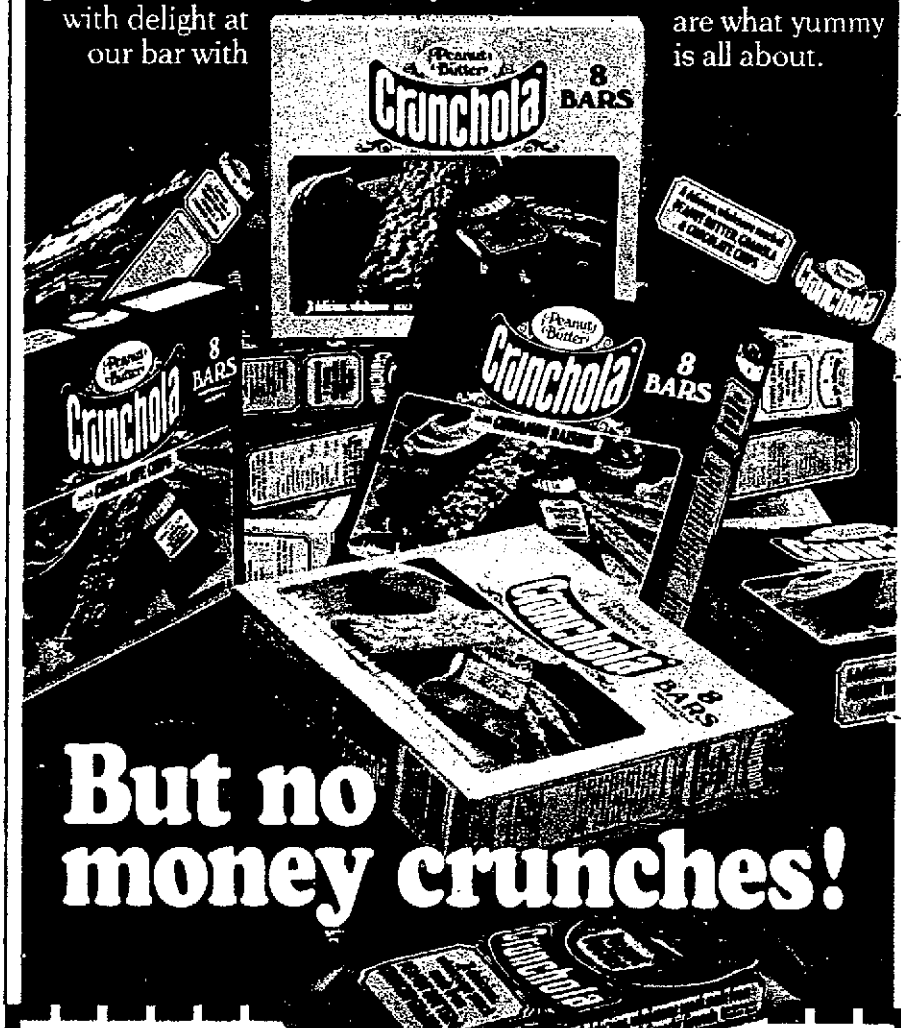
Enjoys limelight

Prosecutor Pat Hynes says many female lawyers shy away from trial work because they "don't want to be in the spotlight and perform on their feet." A 1966 graduate of New York's Fordham Law School, she says she never considered doing anything else. "To me, being a lawyer was being a trial attorney."

For Penny Cooper, who has handled highly publicized cases involving Hell's Angels and political agitators, the glamour of trial work has become less important than the money. Penny says she earns $100,000 a year defending narcotics dealers from California to India. "The money comes from the dope business, not the violence cases," she explains frankly.

In addition to money, trial law has offered Nancy Rosner status and independence. "I've always had a desire to escape my surroundings," says Nancy, the daughter of a Bronx, N.Y., barber. She attended the University of Chicago on scholarship and got a law degree from New York University. Later she began a criminal practice with her husband, from whom she is now separated. She says her practice started to take off when a big-time Brooklyn mobster asked her to handle his case and she won.

These days she spends 12-hour days preparing briefs and arguments and relies on two young male lawyers for research. "If people hire you, it's because they have faith in you. They don't want anyone else handling their case," she says.



This kind of loyalty to her clients has its rewards. She says that there are those in her following who "would lay down their lives for me." One man whom she saved from life imprisonment sends her a letter every day from jail, where he is serving time on a separate case.

Aside from the plaudits of her clients and the mink coats her practice affords her, Nancy, like many female trial lawyers, is driven by a need to succeed in a field where few women have ventured.

"Trial law was Mount Everest to me," she says.

Robert Strauss, Democratic party chairman, and Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter: The party feels it would attract a majority of the nation's 55 million unregistered voters and has launched a $2 million registration drive.

New Voters May Decide the Presidential Election

by John G. Taft

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Despite his overwhelming lead in early public opinion polls, Jimmy Carter faces a tough battle in this year's Presidential campaign. But the Democratic party has an elaborate voter registration plan designed to improve his chances in November.

Carter may need all the help his party can provide because he remains an unknown quantity. Even Carter delegates questioned by PARADE reporters at last month's convention could not fully explain their reasons for supporting the former Georgia Governor.

Carter's broad but thin support could be a serious problem in an era when barely a majority of American voters go to the polls and every vote counts.

As recently as 1960, a switch of less than 12,000 votes in five states would have meant the election of Richard M. Nixon instead of John F. Kennedy. When Nixon finally succeeded in his bid for the White House in 1968, his margin of victory was only slightly more than 500,000 votes out of more than 73 million cast.

No one knows the value of every vote better than Jimmy Carter—and he understands that those who generally don't vote are Democrats. In 1972, when Nixon swamped the Democrats, it was the blacks, blue-collar whites and the young who stayed away from the polls. The biggest turnout came from affluent whites, suburbanites and Republicans.

Costly and far-reaching

Aware of past failures in turning out their traditional voters, Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss early last year launched the most costly and far-reaching nationwide voter registration program ever undertaken by the party.

That effort got underway when the Democratic National Committee (DNC) selected as its targets about 60 percent of the country's 170,000 precincts, ignoring only those that were overwhelmingly Republican or rural.

By last summer, the Democrats were feeding their computers and training 1000 people to carry out the program. The cost is expected to exceed $2 million, with another million or more budgeted for turning out the vote on Election Day.

In contrast, 1972 Democratic Presidential nominee George S. McGovern spent only $1.3 million for voter registration. That and other past Democratic efforts have been generally haphazard and late starting, admits Robert Smith, the DNC staff aide in charge of this year's operation.

Picking targets

"We know the techniques we will use and the areas where we will use them," says Smith. The high-priority states include California, Ohio, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Texas.

Much of the money will go to established youth groups and black and Hispanic organizations which the party believes can most effectively carry out the program. At the same time, labor unions supporting Carter are undertaking a parallel effort with their own political funds.

Targets of the drive will include the 15 million black Americans who comprise 10 percent of this year's electorate, as well as the Chicanos who make up at least 10 percent of the voting-age population of New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, California and Colorado.

Musicians lend a festive air as a California nonpartisan registration campaign signs up another eligible voter.

The new postcard registration laws in at least 13 states, Smith notes, will make the drive all the more effective. In California alone, as many as 6 million new voters could be registered.

A price comparison

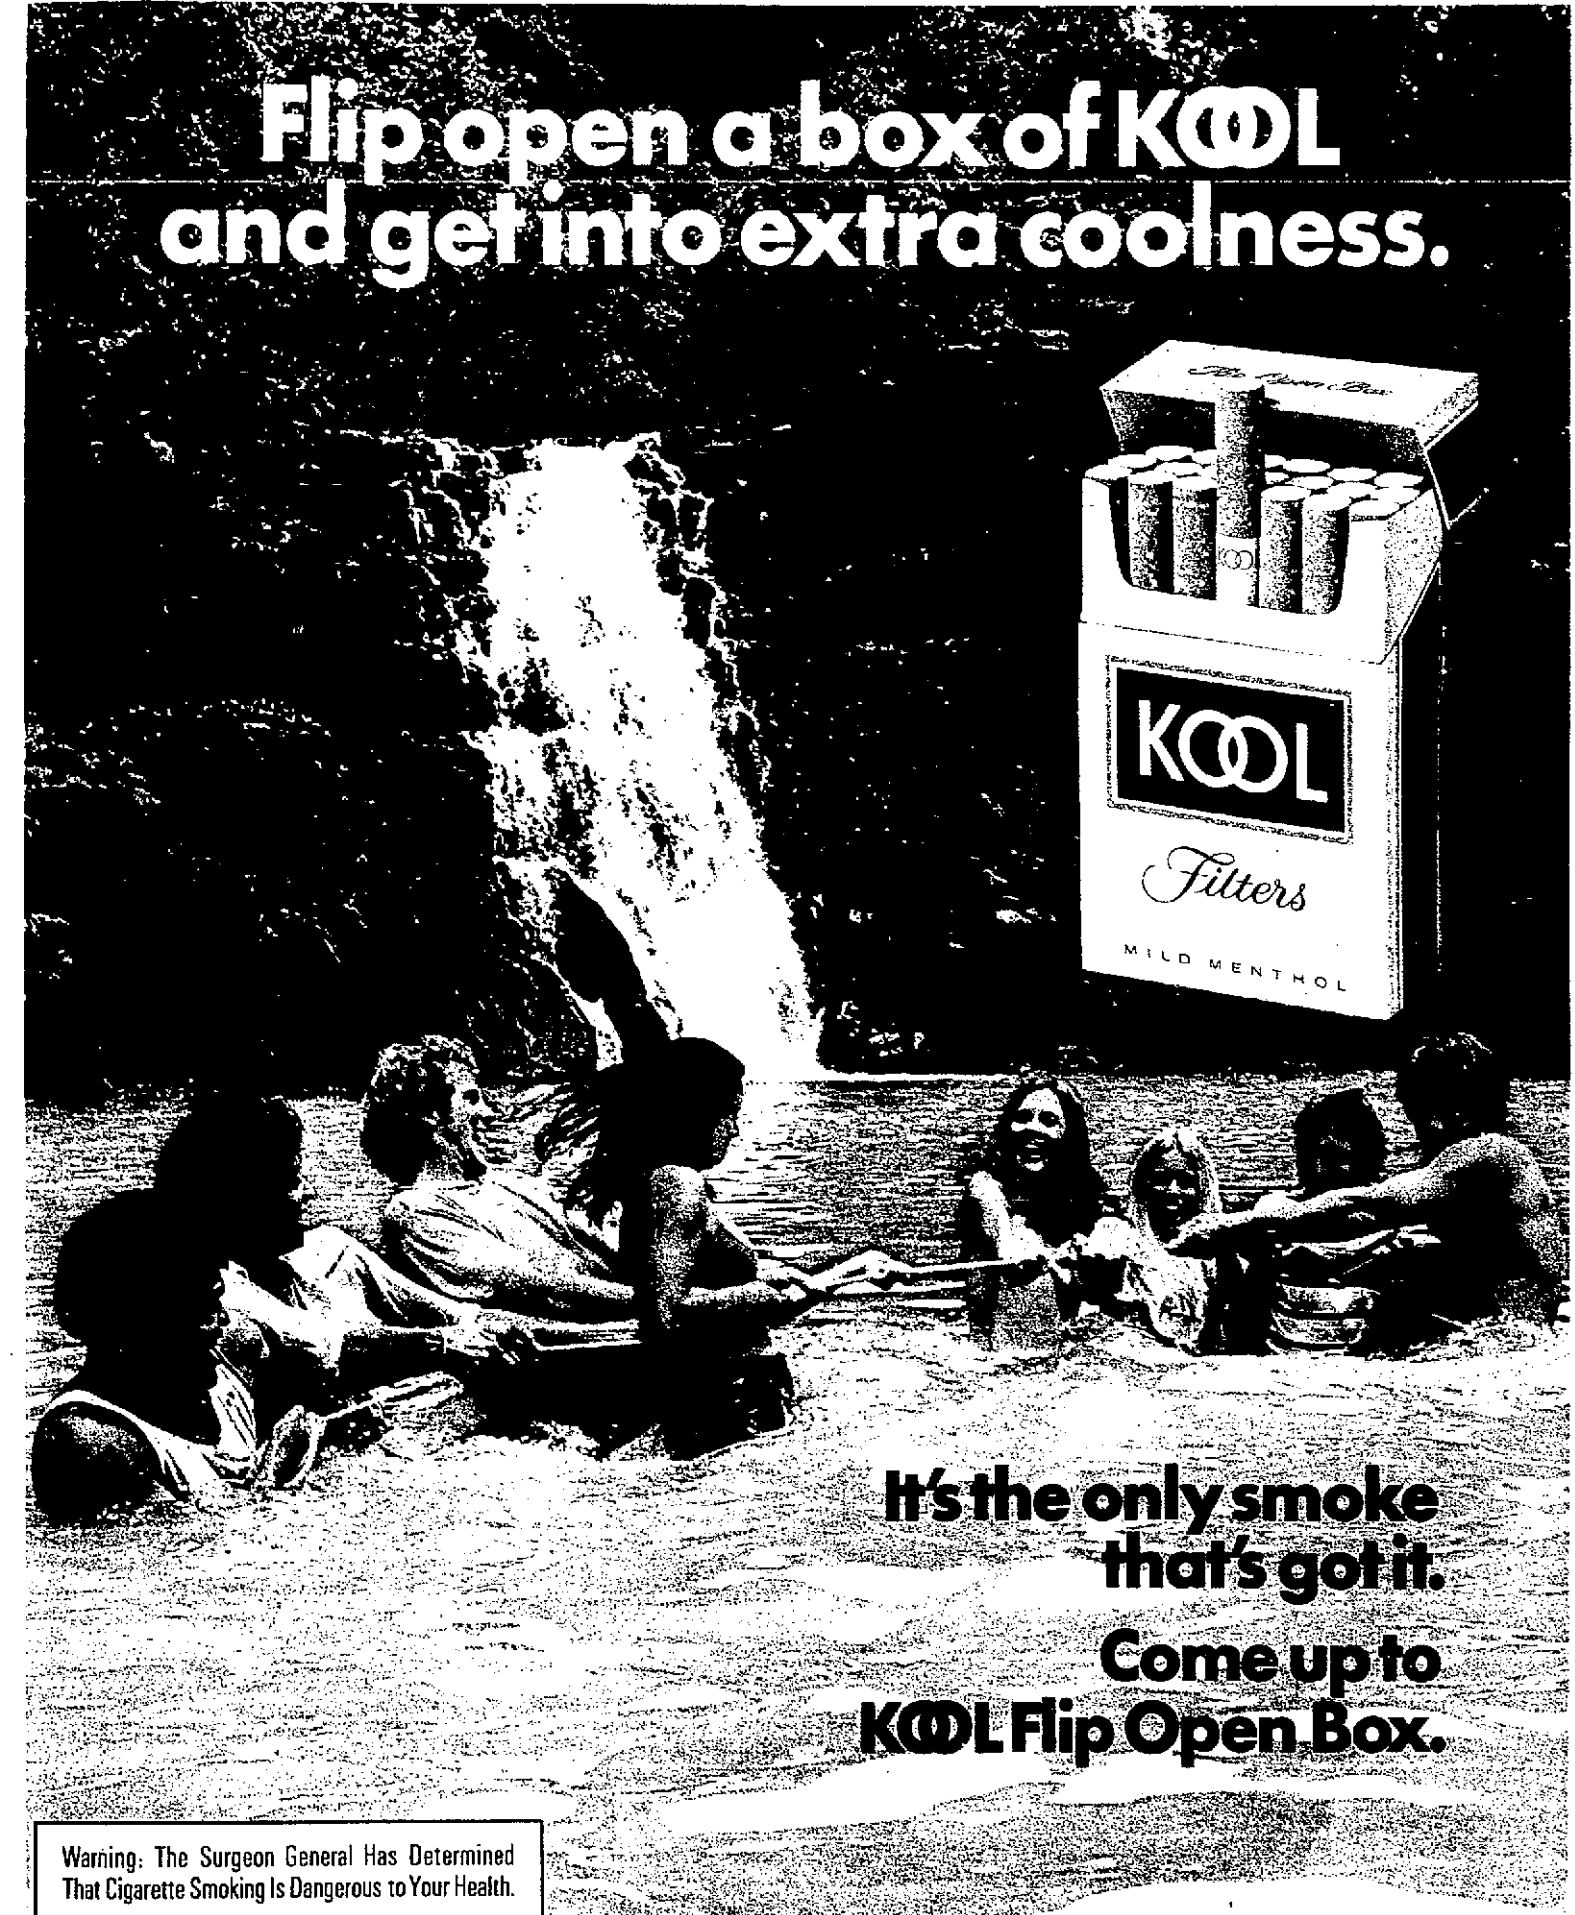
The DNC calculates that it costs 75 cents to register a person by mail, but slightly more than a dollar to get the same man or woman to go to the county clerk's office to register.

Current estimates place the number of unregistered people at 55 million, and that vast pool of potential voters would most likely support Carter and other Democratic candidates 2 to 1.

Smith says the DNC computerized targeting program is similar to what Nixon and the Republican National Committee did four years ago, spending a record $6.4 million on voter registration and turnout.

The Republicans this year are using computers to mesh millions of names from registration rolls and telephone books. Shortly after Labor Day, volunteers at 800 telephone centers across the country will begin calling thousands of households to identify potential Republican voters.

The Republican operation also carries a budget of about $3 million, but it is not designed to register any new GOP partisans—only to locate those already committed to the party and encourage them to vote in November.



"We're relying on state and local parties to conduct their own registration drives," says Eddie Mahe, executive director of the Republican National Committee. "You can't register people out of Washington."

Strategy and polling

In addition, the RNC will be coordinating the scheduling between its Presidential candidate and contenders for other offices, planning a media and advertising strategy for all GOP candidates, conducting a nationwide poll of voter attitudes and doing extensive "opposition research" on Carter's record.

The two parties plan to spend a combined total of about $10 million in this year's election to influence your vote. The Democrats will be knocking on your door and the Republicans will be calling on your phone—but what could make the difference are the tens of millions of would-be voters who until now have remained outside the political process.

How Anne Towey got Slender and stayed Slender.

Anne Towey is a long-legged, statuesque brunette—almost 5'9" tall. Her eyes are remarkably large and violet-colored. She's soft-spoken but she laughs more often now. Ever since she lost 93 pounds with the help of Slender* diet food. It took almost a year for Anne to go from 243 to 150 pounds but she had Slender and that quiet Aries determination.

"I'd been heavy since grade school," Anne says. "Just look at that picture I sent you. I always wore a sweater even in the summer, even over a short-sleeved dress!

"Before I started on Slender I ate constantly. I would eat my three meals a day but that wasn't what put the weight on. It was the constant in-between-meal snacks and I do mean constant...the 10 o'clock coffee break wasn't a coffee break; it was a buttered roll or bagel or a piece of cake. The two o'clock break was a package of cookies or a candy bar and a soda. The before-bedtime snack was ice cream with chocolate sauce or maybe a pizza.

"Well, one day I went shopping and I saw Slender and I thought, gee, if I take one for lunch maybe that will help. So I started with just lunch and in about 2 weeks I had lost 8 pounds! So I thought, my goodness, what if I had Slender for dinner what would it do? Before I knew it I was on three cans a day and sometimes I took the fourth can at night if I was hungry. When I went back to solid foods I ate mainly meat, vegetables, salads, that sort of thing. But what amazed me was when I was on Slender—and even though I'm a fanatic for sweets, for chocolate, ice cream, everything—as long as I stuck with the Slender I was all right. I didn't have that craving. It was gone and I no longer have it."

Anne, who went from a size 22½ to a size 14, has maintained her new weight for 2 years. She admits she backslides.

"If I gain 4 or 5 pounds," she says, "I go right back to Slender twice a day—breakfast and lunch and then I eat dinner."

Slender, it seems, changed more than Anne's figure. "I feel more confident now," she says, "and I think that reflects in a person's job performance. I'm a little more secure. Before, I would never cross anybody about anything—or question anybody about why they were doing something because I didn't have the self-confidence and I didn't want to draw attention to myself. Now I'm kind of my own person and I do what I feel is right.

"Look," she continues, "I tried them all. I tried Weight Watchers.

I tried Metrecal. I tried grapefruit and Stillman's but Slender worked for me."

Anne Towey is yet another Slender success story. And it all started when she reached out for Slender at her market—and stayed with it. You can do the same. Just get Slender and get started. And know what? We'd sure like to hear from you.

Ask your doctor before starting any program of weight reduction.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Five days a week from 6 to 10 a.m. over radio station WFBR in Baltimore, Johnny Walker does a show that includes, among other comedy elements, a segment based on the news—news to which he adds his own satirical twist. Walker says his news items represent his own "distorted views," but his humor often comes from a line of reasoning that exposes contradictions. For example, he reports that "a team of university researchers says that every time a book is published in the U.S., one tree must be sacrificed to supply the paper for each copy printed. This startling fact was published in their 740-page book on the environment which will be available soon."

Walker performs at nightclubs in the Washington-Baltimore area, and at the Club Venus in Baltimore every Thursday.

Here are some of his favorite items:

However, a spokesman for the company says they will not word it quite that way, but instead the new ads will say, "Who wants a mouthful of dead germs anyway?"

How the Wealthy Stay Healthy

by Mort Weisinger

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA.

When it's annual physical checkup time for Harold S. Geneen, chief executive of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., he finds the three-day examination a pleasure. Tests of vital organs and body fluids in the morning. Then, in the afternoon, a switch from needles and treadmills to golf or tennis.

Geneen flies here in a company plane to the diagnostic clinic in a wing of the luxurious Greenbrier Hotel, a 6500-acre resort nestled in the Appalachian Mountains. He has been making the flight for 14 years, one of a growing group of executives who look forward to fun along with their physicals.

Instead of being hospitalized, they have access to golf and tennis, and indoor and outdoor pools.

Corporate planes arrive with their executive cargo. Over the years they have included General Electric, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, General Motors, Standard Oil of Ohio, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Heinz, and more than 100 others.

"Getting a busy executive to sit still for a series of examinations is difficult, to say the least," Dr. Arnold J. Brody, the clinic's medical director, told PARADE. "But when we combine the checkup with games and gourmet meals, the visit here becomes a pleasant holiday."

Most companies offer these health junkets as a fringe benefit to top executives. They regard the expense as an investment that benefits stockholders.

"Men making million-dollar decisions should be in sound physical shape," says Dr. Brody. "It is our job to catch their ailments as early as possible to prevent them from becoming serious health problems."

Develop a relationship

Dr. Brody's team of diagnosticians consists of seven top internists. Each doctor works at a leisurely pace, seldom taking on more than four patients a day. Each patient is assigned the same doctor for every step of the examination, so that a personal relationship develops.

The team is backed up by two radiologists, seven X-ray technicians, eight nurses, and six laboratory experts using sophisticated equipment.

The X-ray department has six diagnostic rooms. Three of these contain fluoroscopic units with closed-circuit TV so that patient and doctor can simultaneously view the internal scenery. There is also a special unit for breast X-rays. (One-third of the clinic's patients are women, many of them the wives of executives.)

The idea of a diagnostic clinic in a resort setting was conceived in 1948 by the late Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius. He had seen many leaders in government and business disabled by diseases that could have been cured if detected in time. He believed that most executives postponed medical examinations because they were turned off by the depressing atmosphere of the average hospital. So the Greenbrier clinic opened to provide checkups for the healthy. The clinic is not part of the hotel, renting space from the resort, a subsidiary of Chessie Systems, Inc.

Mornings and afternoons

The concept has proved so successful that this year 6000 persons will have taken the clinic's tests. The tests occupy mornings; enrollees are encouraged to spend afternoons at sports, skeet shooting, or riding one of the hotel's 25 horses.

According to John S. Lanahan, president of the Greenbrier, the resort has attracted dignitaries like Prince Ranier and Princess Grace of Monaco and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Socially prominent persons who have signed their guest book include Winthrop Aldrich and Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke. Other names on their Who's Who list are John Connally, Sen. Edward Kennedy, Debbie

Celebrities Who Have Visited the Clinic

STEVE McQUEEN

PAT O'BRIEN

ROY ROGERS

BILLY GRAHAM

HEALTH CONTINUED

Reynolds, William Randolph Hearst Jr., Bob Hope and Bing Crosby. Crosby quipped that the maid cleaned his room with a mink mop.

The Greenbrier's Presidential Suite was occupied by Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956. Richard Nixon, Lyndon Johnson, Hubert Humphrey and Gerald Ford all visited the Greenbrier as Vice Presidents. Some of them probably had a checkup.

To find out how the testing works, PARADE assigned me to go through the clinic as a patient. When I checked in at the hotel there was a note of instructions in my box. I was directed to finish my dinner before 8 p.m., then fast for 12 hours so that I could have my blood drawn.

Big breakfast order

In the clinic next morning, a technician took a blood sample. Then I was ordered to return to the hotel and gorge on orange juice, sugared corn flakes and cream, pancakes smothered with maple syrup, and all the sweet Danish I could eat with coffee and heaping spoonfuls of sugar. This was to prepare me for a blood-sugar test for diabetes.

When I returned to the clinic and yielded more blood, I was told my doctor was waiting in his office. "I want you to tell me all about yourself," he said. "Your medical history. Your aches, pains, hang-ups. Family diseases—and that includes all blood relatives."

I reeled off the usual childhood diseases—measles, mumps, chicken pox. I told him I'd been 1-A in World War II—served in the infantry, then had gained a preposterous 80 pounds after returning to civilian life. By the time I was 50, I had paid dearly: an ulcer, high blood pressure, a bout with gout and—most disturbing—a heart block. I told him I had gone on a strict diet and shed 70 pounds in the last two years.

The doctor spied me glancing at my watch. "Don't worry about the time," he laughed. "Pretend you're a hypochondriac. We've had patients here whose histories were five times more complex than yours." Never had I encountered a physician so willing to listen.

Then he inspected my ears, nose, mouth and throat, teeth and gums, examined my abdomen for hernia and palpable masses. He also tested me neurologically for vibratory sense and pathological signs.

"Now go back to the hotel and enjoy the pool," he said. "And eat a big dinner because you'll be fasting again. You're due back tomorrow morning for our special barium breakfast."

The next morning I underwent the nearest thing to an autopsy a live person can experience. A sigmoidoscope explored my lower regions. After I had gulped down flavored barium "sodas," X-ray films made studies of my heart, aorta, lung fields, esophagus and stomach. My pelvis, hips and feet were tested for arthritis. Electrocardiograms and blood-pressure tests were taken after I had exercised and taken a 30-minute nap. I was tested for glaucoma and my hearing.

Although the clinic's staffers won't reveal the identities of their VIP patients, I used my investigative resources to compile a gee-whiz list. Medical ethics prevented the doctors from confirming the names on my list, but neither did they deny its accuracy.

So I can only report that I was weighed on a scale that had weighed Roy Rogers. My blood pressure was checked by the same instrument used on Steve McQueen. The pretty resident vampire who had drawn samples of my blood had similarly punctured Billy Graham's veins. To test the elasticity of my lungs and check for emphysema, I puffed into the meter used by movie star Van Johnson. The EKG machine attached to my body when I took the Masters step exercise test had recorded the heartbeats of Pat O'Brien and DeWitt Wallace, founder and publisher of Reader's Digest.

You don't have to be rich to take the complete Greenbrier checkup. The cost is $200, which compares favorably with the fees of clinics offering similar services, such as the Mayo Clinic.

From nearby, too

About 50% of the clientele last year were average folks. Local residents drove to the clinic for the required three mornings. Others came from as far as 2000 miles away.

If you want to rub elbows with the upper crust, however, and enjoy the hotel while undergoing your checkup, a spacious room, along with a bursting breakfast and a full-course dinner, will cost you $57 a day, $105 for double occupancy.

The clinic's pattern seldom varies: 10% of those examined have hypertension and mild obesity; polyps in the rectum are discovered in about 7½%; coronary heart disease 4%; diabetes 3½%; gallbladder conditions 3%; glaucoma 1½%.

Other problems that surface include executives suffering deep depression, usually triggered by the death of a loved one, overwork or impending mandatory retirement. Secret alcoholism may be betrayed by an impaired liver. Even when a corporation pays the bill, the final diagnosis is confidential and is discussed only with the patient or his physician. Fortunately, the speedy detection of almost all perilous symptoms makes them remediable or controllable, and, if requested, the clinic will suggest appropriate hospitals, surgeons, specialists or psychiatrists.

'When you're well'

The Greenbrier philosophy: "Check your body while you're well, not when you're sick, and you'll live to a ripe old age."

On my third morning at the clinic, as my wrap-up consultation began, I nervously awaited the moment of truth. To my relief, the doctor gave me a satisfactory report card.

Most important, the tests revealed that my heart block had been incomplete and my heart was not enlarged. He added that in a few days he would send me a detailed report of my examination, which I could turn over to my doctor. I was far from a bionic man, but I was not a passenger on the coronary express. I intend to return for my next annual checkup.

Bright future ahead. Remember when it was a fad to view the future with alarm? When academicians and others decided that the world was getting too crowded and too dirty to support life much longer? Or at least life as we know it? Happily, all the current predictions do not forecast gloom and doom. Life as we know it may not be the same, it may be much better, thanks primarily to ever-developing technology. The Hudson Institute, one of the nation's leading "think tanks," for example, forecasts an era of unprecedented abundance. In a book, "The Next 200 Years—A Scenario for America and the World," Herman Kahn and the Institute see the Gross World Product rising from $5.5 trillion to $300 trillion. The book, published by William Morrow & Company, Inc., also predicts the average income of every man, woman and child on earth will rise from a current $1,300 a year to $20,000.

Closing the gap. The Hudson Institute has a novel theory. It feels that the very gap that now separates the "haves" from the "have-not" nations will stimulate worldwide progress toward a future of economic abundance. The larger the gap, the institute feels, the stronger the incentive for achieving a higher standard of living for all.

Invention beyond belief. Another futurologist, Stephen Rosen, predicts that the world will benefit from a rash of invention that defies the imagination. In his book "Future Facts," published by Simon and Schuster, Dr. Rosen predicts a 21-minute subway ride between New York and Los Angeles, machines activated by the operator's eye movements, and even the growth of new human limbs by electric stimulation. Looking ahead now seems a more inviting prospect.

"SURE IT'S PRETTY, BUT DOES IT HAVE A FUTURE?"

It takes time. "Future Facts" reminds us that we needn't fear the unknown, not even the new-fangled gadgets that seem to boggle the mind. People adapt to change at about the same rate as inventors produce innovations. The development of antibiotics, from the basic idea to the neighborhood drug store, took 30 years; photography took 56 years, and even the zipper 30 years.

Coming up. Instead of stepping into your bathtub or shower, someday you'll enter a "people washer egg" that bathes, rinses and dries you. For people who sew: you'll soon be able to forget the annoying snags that occur when you use certain fabrics. The ultrasonic machine of the future will weld seams rather than stitch them. And for those with self-doubt, Dr. Rosen forecasts a scientific method for measuring romantic love.

The Wild Man of Rock

Keith Moon, "the weirdy of English pop music," is living up to his reputation. Word is out in Europe that The Who's drummer has a strange way of getting his kicks—he likes to destroy hotel furnishings.

As a result, almost no respectable hotel owner will rent him a room when his group comes to town. Moon threatens that if they won't rent him a hotel room, he'll simply buy his own and demolish it piece by piece just for kicks.

Recently Keith kept his cool when his part-Chinese girlfriend Anne Lou Chen emptied a plate of beef curry and rice on his head while they were dining in an Indian restaurant in London. Anne Lou washed the main dish down his neck with a bottle of Rhine wine and stormed out. But the 32-year-old rock star ignored her, calmly ordered another dinner.

Trying to Shake the Shadows

Ferdinand Marcos, 18, son of the dictator of the Philippines, has a favorite pastime in Oxford, England, where he's enrolled in the university, majoring in politics. That pastime is how to escape from bodyguards who accompany him everywhere.

"What they don't realize," Marcos says, "is that Oxford is not like Manila. Here I can walk the streets unafraid of kidnapping. I don't need bodyguards. And I don't want them, especially when I'm out on a date."

Trying his best to appear casual in this photo is Capt. Alex Ramos, young Ferdinand's No. 1 bodyguard, who says, "I appreciate his feelings, but what can I do? It's my job to see that nothing happens to him."

Young Marcos has a sister, "Immy," enrolled in Princeton, who also is constantly surrounded by bodyguards.

The Marcos parents, Ferdinand and Imelda, who run the Philippines with an iron hand and have jailed some 5000 political dissenters, live in constant fear that their children will be kidnapped by their enemies, whom they number in the thousands.

CAPT. ALEX RAMOS (L) GUARDS FERDINAND MARCOS

Trying to Shake the Shadows

Ferdinand Marcos, 18, son of the dictator of the Philippines, has a favorite pastime in Oxford, England, where he's enrolled in the university, majoring in politics. That pastime is how to escape from bodyguards who accompany him everywhere.

"What they don't realize," Marcos says, "is that Oxford is not like Manila. Here I can walk the streets unafraid of kidnapping. I don't need bodyguards. And I don't want them, especially when I'm out on a date."

Trying his best to appear casual in this photo is Capt. Alex Ramos, young Ferdinand's No. 1 bodyguard, who says, "I appreciate his feelings, but what can I do? It's my job to see that nothing happens to him."

Young Marcos has a sister, "Immy," enrolled in Princeton, who also is constantly surrounded by bodyguards.

The Marcos parents, Ferdinand and Imelda, who run the Philippines with an iron hand and have jailed some 5000 political dissenters, live in constant fear that their children will be kidnapped by their enemies, whom they number in the thousands.

Richard Shull is all too human as robot's partner

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Television has given us young detectives and old detectives, slim detectives and fat detectives, male detectives and female detectives, brilliant detectives and bungling detectives, bald-headed detectives and bushy-haired detectives, white detectives and black detectives — and even yellow detectives.

So what's new for the tube in the coming season?

Would you believe a robot detective? And why not — we've had every other kind.

The mechanical sleuth will make his appearance as one of the two stars of ABC's "Holmes and Yoyo," which joins that network's fall lineup on Saturday night, Sept. 25, in the 8-to-8:30 slot.

You will be glad to know that the new series is a comedy. Somehow robots are hard to take seriously.

Yoyo is the humanized computer's name, and Holmes is his human partner in a police detective team. Preferring human company to that of robots, I had lunch the other day with Holmes — that is, actor Richard B. Shull — in the commissary at Universal Studios, where the situation comedy is produced. And he told me a bit about the show.

HOLMES (Shull) studies his robot detective partner Yoyo (John Schuck).

Even Yoyo is played by an actor — John Schuck, familiar to TV fans as Rock Hudson's aide, Sgt. Enright, on "McMillan and Wife." He'll continue on the NBC series this fall while also starring with Shull in "Holmes and Yoyo."

Schuck and Shull — it could be the start of a great comedy team. The names have a certain ring.

"People even tell me we look like brothers," said Shull, who costarred three seasons ago in the NBC comedy series "Diana," which starred Diana Rigg. "To me, John looks like my brother, rather than me, but then I suppose there would have to be some family resemblance between me and my brother."

If Shull and Schuck are lookalikes (frankly, Shull reminds me more of Walter Matthau), they also have something else in common: writers are always misspelling their names. That is to say, they stick a "c" in Shull's name and leave it out of Schuck's.

AS HOLMES, Shull is a veteran police detective whose partners, through some fault of his, have all ended up in the hospital.

"So when the Office of Advanced Systems suggests to the police department that it use this robot — and points out that it is indestructible — the chief immediately thinks of Holmes," the actor told me.

"I'm not told that my new partner is a computer, but I find it out on my own in the first episode when we're in a car accident and he falls out. When I see his built-in pushbutton controls and power plug-ins, I don't like it at first.

"But he makes me see that, in certain ways, I have been programmed as much as he has. I'm an imperfect human, and he's an imperfect robot — and we can learn from each other."

The two of them solve crimes on the show, but the emphasis is on broad comedy, Shull said.

"Yoyo is short for Yoyonovich, and he's named for his inventor, Dr. Gregory Yoyonovich," Shull pointed out. "Schuck also plays the inventor, for, you see, he created Yoyo in his own likeness."

RICHARD B. SHULL . . . stars in 'Holmes and Yoyo'

SHULL, a big (6-2) and loquacious man, got his big break during the 1972 Olympics. No, not as an athlete in the Games, but rather in a TV commercial "that ran about 65 times" during the Olympic Games telecasts.

Perhaps you remember it. Dick played Boris Spasky in a chess match with an actor portraying Bobby Fischer. The commercial plugged Brut cologne.

"People still come up to me and say they remember that commercial," said Shull, who has done scores of other TV commercials as well.

Producer Leonard Stern got in touch with the actor after viewing the commercial, and later cast him in the "Diana" series, his first TV role.

An earlier big break — perhaps even more important in his career than the Spasky bit — came in 1970 when Shull was cast as Maxie the female impersonator in "Minnie's Boys," a Broadway musical about the early days of the Marx Brothers, with Shelley Winters as their mother, Minnie.

Dick stopped the show with his "Underneath It All I'm Still the Same" song number, dressed "in a $3,500 gown and a $650 blonde wig."

Said Shull: "I actually saw Jack Benny fall out of his chair laughing one night when I was doing the number."

Benny wasn't the only one who was impressed. Dick's performance led to all those TV commercials and to roles in the movies "B.S. I Love You," "The Anderson Tapes," "Such Good Friends," "Hail to the Chief" and "Slither," in which, as James Caan's embezzler friend, he was blown up.

More recently, he has been in the movies "The Fortune" and "Hearts of the West," and he gained a Tony Award nomination for his performance in "Goodtime Charley" on Broadway." He also has guest-starred in several TV series.

FOR NEARLY 20 years after graduating from the University of Iowa in 1950, with a B.A. degree in drama, the Elmhurst, Ill., native worked as a backstage technician (his first love). Carpentry, design, lighting, stage management — he has done it all, along with a bit of acting and directing along the way "and a lot of taxi driving."

He had risen to the rank of stage manager on 10 Broadway shows ("none of which lasted more than four weeks") before his "Minnie's Boys" performance sent him off in another show business direction.

Now, with a computer as a buddy, there's no telling how far Richard Shull can go.

Winkler denies rumors that he's walking out

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"I wish you would print that Henry Winkler is not leaving 'Happy Days.' People all over the country have been hearing rumors that I was walking out. I wouldn't do that. I know where I was before the series started, and I know where I am now. I do not take that lightly."

These were Henry Winkler's opening words as he reported for an interview during a rehearsal lunch break at Paramount Studio. After a two-day absence, he had appeared for the start of the fourth season of ABC's hit comedy "Happy Days."

He seemed content, but not noticeably happy. In fact, he did not smile during the entire conversation.

HENRY WINKLER . . . as Fonzie

THE ACTOR talked about the incident that prompted rumors of his departure from the series:

"I was gone for two days, but I did not hold up production; they were able to work around me. I did not report at the start of the season because I held a position which was morally correct.

"I realized that certain executives of the company (Paramount) were patting me on the back at the same time they were ripping me off. What they were paying me was a drop in the bucket compared to the earning power of the show.

"All I need is my self-respect and my life. Unfortunately, respect in this town comes from earning power, not ability. A craftsman no longer exists by his ability, but by the paraphernalia that surrounds success. So I decided to take a stand. What I did was correct."

WINKLER said that he stayed away from negotiations, letting his lawyer do the work. His contract was improved, adding a larger share in the merchandising of products bearing his likeness.

"Before, I had very little to say in the merchandising," he said, "and some bad things happened. Like selling panties that had my face next to a 13-year-old crotch. That's pretty tasteless. Now I will have a much more substantial say in what is sold."

Things are happening fast for the 30-year-old New Yorker. He has signed a contract with Universal Pictures for a movie, "Heroes," which he'll make after the "Happy Days" season ends in January. He is also close to a movie deal with his newly reconciled employers at Paramount.

THIS SUMMER he broke records in Ohio with a three-week run in "Room Service" at a reported $30,000 a week. He was still glowing over the experience.

"It was like shifting into second gear at 50 miles an hour and blowing out all the carbon. I soared like an eagle. It was the best thing that could have happened to me at this time."

He is a serious, articulate man, totally unlike the hedonistic Arthur Fonzarelli he plays on the Tuesday night show. The crown of unruly brown hair makes him seem higher than his 5 feet, 6½. He is narrow-headed and slender, but strongly built.

Henry Winkler is no dropout. Son of a lumber corporation president and refugee from Nazi Germany, he studied in Switzerland, Emerson College in Boston and Yale Drama School, where he was awarded a Master of Fine Arts in 1970.

"MOSTLY I did TV commercials before I started 'Happy Days,'" he said. "I appeared on Broadway in a play that lasted one night, I did two films ('The Lords of Flatbush,' 'Crazy Joe'), appeared in six plays for free, took part in an improvisational theater. I always earned a living, mostly because of commercials (American Airlines, Closeup toothpaste); I never had to take a job as a waiter or anything else."

He came to Hollywood in 1973 and within a month landed the Fonz role in "Happy Days." He didn't even appear in the pilot film, had only seven lines in the first show. During the first two seasons he was merely one of the characters in the 1950s comedy, but he knew something was happening.

"The show went on the air in January," he recalled.

"In January this year I appeared in Detroit before 175,000 people. Some stood in line for three or four hours to enter the stadium. There were grandmothers and there were 2-year-olds. The appeal of Fonzie crosses all ages, all walks of life."

WINKLER himself helped develop Fonzie, adding the leather jacket and boots, the thumbs-up salute, the self-confident "Aaaaayyy." The character really took off during the past season, when Fonzie moved into the Cunningham household with pal Richie (Ron Howard). Filming changed from a one-camera movie method to a three-camera show before an audience.

"I'm stage-trained and I like a live audience," said Winkler. "In a one-camera show you can play the nuances, while you go for the laughs with three-camera. I got large when we first went to the audience show, now I'm playing in-between."

THE COOLNESS of Fonzie struck a chord with American TV viewers and created a cult that has rarely been seen since the Davy Crockett rage of 1955. It created an outpouring of Fonz T-shirts, buttons, posters, bedsheets, beanbags, jackets, jeans and — panties.

Winkler analyzed: "There is a lot of fantasy in Fonz; no one can be that cool. But I also gave him integrity, loyalty, a sense of morality, a feeling of owning his own space. Self-respect is the cornerstone of life; self-respect equals joy. I think that's why people find Fonz appealing."

Winkler's own life has changed enormously, not all to the good.

"I have to learn how to relate to what has happened, but it is so big that I don't have the strength," he said. The mobs of admirers don't bother him, except when they get out of hand. On two occasions he has blacked out when the screams around him reached an intolerable decibel level. "But I'm never afraid," he added.

HE NOW CAN find privacy only in the small house he recently acquired in the Hollywood Hills. He tries to keep his identities separated and signs autographs with his own, not his TV name — "Fonzie is my fantasy, Henry is my reality."

He remarked, "Sometimes there is an incredible pressure; it can be mindblowing. In Ohio I woke up one morning and cried for two hours. You become an island with a success like this. The world that feeds you also makes you become isolated."

Then he added: "But then, it's fun to complain; it helps relieve the pressure. At times I become afraid of the life."

THE BIBLE Says

J. T. SMITH

THE LORD'S CHURCH ON EARTH

Does the Lord's church exist today on this earth? I believe it does. However, we know from the teachings of the Scriptures that all of the more than 300 different denominations in the world today, teaching that many different doctrines, cannot be the Lord's church. How may we identify the Lord's church today? It is really a simple matter when you stop to think about it. But, let's use a very common illustration to show it.

Does the United States Post Office exist today? The answer of course, is yes. How do we identify it? Well we are driving down the street and we see a sign on a building that says U. S. POST OFFICE. Now that may or may not mean that we have found the Post Office. You know there is such a thing as moving the workings of the Post Office to another building without removing the old sign. So, we will just have to stop, go in and see.

Now, when we go in, those who have been there before, or may have read about what a Post Office is supposed to consist of, will go in and look for the people in the blue uniforms standing behind a counter waiting to sell you stamps, ready to write money orders, etc. You may even find, when you get ready to address an envelope, the pen that won't write. However, if you enter this building and you see a counter with stools and smell hamburgers cooking, even though the sign that says Post Office may still remain, you know immediately that you are in the wrong place.

Today, the majority of religious groups do not hesitate to put up a sign on their building identifying the fact that they are not the Lord's church. They will put up a sign honoring the memory of Luther, Wesley, John the Baptist or some other person, or form of doctrine. However, even if they do have a sign on the building which uses a designation found in the Bible (Church of Christ, Church of God, etc.) this does not actually mean that the Lord's church abides within. How can we tell? By reading the Bible and seeing what they were and did in the days of the apostles, and going inside and meeting with these people and seeing if what they teach and practice is in harmony with what the early New Testament Christians did.

'Headhunters' bring in TV audiences

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

They get free tickets to see television stars at work. Before the show starts they're entertained by a warm-up host, and sometimes a band, too. They may get free transportation to and from the event. A few may even leave with expensive gifts.

Who? Virtually anyone; and just for attending the filming or taping of a TV program in Hollywood, the television production capital.

"One might think it's the easiest thing in the world, that if you're putting on a TV show people are automatically going to come. Not so," says Joseph Di Sante, who is in charge of filling the bleachers for ABC programs.

THE TASK can be so demanding that all three major networks, plus other production facilities around town, have people employed fulltime to handle it. And there is still enough work left over to keep a couple of independents in business.

If that's hard to believe, you have to remember that audiences are needed for every episode of more than 20 situation comedies, a handful of variety shows, countless game shows and talk shows and a never-ending stream of specials. They also are required for many pilot projects that never get on the air.

And come to think of it, each situation comedy needs not one but two audiences every week — one for the drama rehearsal and one for the actual taping.

ABC, CBS and NBC estimate that a combined total of more than 2.5 million persons will sit in studio audiences for network shows this year.

"WE LOOK at ourselves as one giant ticket vending machine," says Jay Michelis, NBC's chief audience specialist.

Producers put a high premium on filling the studio auditoriums, which generally range in size from 200 to 500 seats. They say a full house benefits the performers in a variety show or comedy, the celebrities and contestants in a game show, and even the audience itself.

"It's like a party," says Ed Weinberger, a writer-producer involved with "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Phyllis" and "Doc."

"If you're at a party and the room is half empty, you say, 'Why am I at this dog of a party?' But if people are pouring out the doors and windows, you say, 'What a great party this is. Look who else is here!' "

DI SANTE of ABC says, "I can't conceive of a situation comedy done without a live audience. It's really like a live play. The performers get the same reaction from the audience as a person in the legitimate theater does. It must be the worst feeling in the world to come out and do a show without an audience there."

Robby Robertson, one of the independent audience "headhunters," as they're called in the industry, says of game shows: "If a person was up there in front of the cameras facing a panel of stars with no audience out there pulling for him, it wouldn't be a game show — it would feel more like an inquisition!"

That's why the networks and other production facilities go to such great lengths to make sure they bring in enough people.

IF THEY could charge money for the tickets it wouldn't be such a problem. Then the buyers would have something invested in attending. But federal regulations prohibit their sale and so there is no way of knowing whether the people who pick them up will actually turn out for the show.

Consequently, thousands of tickets have to be distributed to guarantee that a few hundred will be there. How this is accomplished depends on the season.

"During the summer months we don't have too many problems because the town is packed with tourists," says Di Sante. The networks are able to unload tickets for just bout everything by simply answering write-in requests and handing them out at their headquarters and a few other locations around town.

IN NONSUMMER months they tend to rely more on groups to fill all the empty seats. They contact military installations, churches, fraternities, civic groups, big companies and any other place where they're liable to draw a significant number of people. The networks will offer free bus transportation and sometimes, particularly if the taping of the show is at an inconvenient time, will offer door prizes as further enticement.

Di Sante estimates that ABC spends about $25,000 to provide group transportation over the course of a year. Michelis puts NBC's expenditure at about half that. In all cases the busing cost is charged to the particular show involved.

Some shows are a lot easier to get audiences for than others, of course. Hit programs such as "The Tonight Show," "The Carol Burnett Show" and the top situation comedies run into difficulties only around holidays and bad weather.

ALSO EASY to fill are game shows on which members of the audience can win prizes, such as "The Price Is Right" and "Tattletales." On the latter program, reports CBS executive Alfred Landolph, there is a dedicated core of about 100 to 150 persons who constantly are trying to get in. They write for tickets under different names and even, on past occasions, have shown up in disguises.

For many producers, however, having a full house isn't enough. They want a portion of the audience to be people who they think will easily identify with a key character in the show. Senior citizens were brought in for an episode of "Doc" that dealt with old age. Prison inmates were bused in for the pilot of "On the Rocks."

This isn't always possible, naturally, and some network officials don't like the practice, believing, as one executive put it, that "a good program is going to get a good audience reaction, regardless of whether they're young or old, drunk or sober."

Producer Ed Weinberger defends the theory. "Anybody who says that any audience will do is missing the point," he says. "There's no question that a lively audience helps give you a lively show. They're not just a laugh track; they're helping the performances, the timing, the pacing. A good show can be ruined by a bad audience."

FLIP WILSON will be guest host on the Johnny Carson show Monday through Friday of this week, at 11:30 p.m. on Ch. 4.

To many fans, Nabors is still Gomer Pyle

By GREG McGARRY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — After 15 years, people still approach Jim Nabors on the street with a "Hey, Gomer!"

And he says it doesn't upset him one bit to still be identified as the bumbling gas station attendant he played on the old Andy Griffith television show.

"No, it doesn't bother me at all," Nabors said in an interview here. "I'm very proud of it, as a matter of fact. He was such a nice guy to play that it makes you feel good.

"I'll tell you a story," the affable star continued. "Some guy walked up to me in Kansas City once. He was a fan; he meant well. Well, he picked me right up and held me up in the air — and he was a big old guy — and he said, 'Boy, we watch you all the time on TV. You sure are a stupid son of a . . . '

"And I just said, 'Why, thank you sir,' " recalled Nabors, flashing a Gomer smile.

THAT'S Jim Nabors, polite and friendly just like Gomer. But that's where the similarity stops.

Not that Nabors doesn't have a bit of hillbilly twang. But he is bright and witty. He has established himself in show business with appearances in Las Vegas and on television. He has recorded more than 20 record albums, his baritone voice earning him five gold records.

He is currently on a tour of summer theaters and will resume TV guest spots in the fall, including appearances on the Carol Burnett show, as well as Sonny and Cher and Tony Orlando and Dawn shows.

He has come a long way, indeed, from Sylacauga, Ala., a small town where Nabors kept secret his boyhood dream of becoming a star.

"IF YOU TOLD anybody you were going to be in show business they'd run you out of town," he said half seriously. "Especially me. I was 6-foot-2 and weighed only 126 pounds. I was really skinny and it was just a far-fetched fantasy."

"It was always in my mind," he continued. "But I wouldn't tell anybody, not even my family."

So Nabors went to the University of Alabama and earned a bachelor's degree in business. But then he began dabbling in theater.

"Then various people started encouraging me to do more," he said. "I didn't think it would be realistic to go into show business because the competition is so fierce."

BUT HE GOT up enough nerve to do some comedy at the Horn, a Los Angeles nightclub that has launched numerous singers and comics.

"I didn't think I had a very good voice back then," he recalled. "Heck, Jack Jones was the bar boy and there was a little Mexican girl singing there. Her name was Vickki Carr. So the only thing I did was talk like this." He reverts to Gomer.

Nabors was spotted by comedian Bill Dana, who asked him to audition for the Steve Allen television show. He made it and, after being spotted by Andy Griffith, got the part of Gomer Pyle.

After several successful seasons he got his own show, "Gomer Pyle-USMC," in which he played a dimwitted Marine. Later he did a variety show, "The Jim Nabors Hour," and a couple of TV specials.

LAST YEAR, he had his first — and perhaps last — dramatic television role. His performance as a killer in a segment of "The Rookies" drew favorable reviews, but he said it took too much out of him.

"It was a very heavy part," he remarked. "You really had to concentrate. So I'd come home every night (he lives with his mother in Bel Air Estates near Hollywood). I'd sit down at the table like this (he makes a forlorn expression) and my mom summed it up aptly. She said to me, 'You know, I'll sure be glad when you're through with this thing.

Nabors said he's looking forward to the end of his summer tour.

"I think I've done it for five years now and I'd rather be back on TV. It's time for something new."

But he says he's still not sure what direction his career will take.

"I think just about every agent in the world has said to me on the way up, 'Well, if you only find direction you might make it.'

"I never did find any direction," he said with a laugh.

LOW COST— HIGH PERFORMANCE THAT'S TOSHIBA

Value, that's Toshiba. Any one of their superb receivers, each in its own right are achievements in audio engineering and design. From the distinctive "separate-look" to the great flexibility afforded the user, the Toshiba quality shines through.

If you're budget-minded—this is the one—the TOSHIBA SA 220C. It incorporates superb styling, great performance, with a budget price.

$169.95 7 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 40-20,000 Hz with no more than 0.8% total harmonic distortion.

If you're practical-minded the TOSHIBA SA 420 is for you! With the same "separate" styling as the SA-520 in a more practical application. The SA 420 has plenty of power, too.

$249.95 25 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 20-20,000 Hz at no more than 0.4% total harmonic distortion.

So you don't need "the flagship" but versatility is still your bag, then look at the TOSHIBA SA 520. It has most of the features of the SA 620, but without the "frills."

$349.95 40 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 20-20,000 Hz at no more than 0.4% total harmonic distortion.

The flagship of the Toshiba line is every bit bit an outstanding example of Toshiba achievement. The TOSHIBA SA 620 features dual tuning meters, function indicator lights, audio muting, tone defeat switch, high & low filter, attenuator-type volume control and more.

$399.95 50 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 20-20,000 Hz at no more than 0.3% total harmonic distortion.

So, if a great receiver is what you want, Toshiba makes the receivers for most any budget or need and Federated's where they're at!

SO YOU THOUGHT YOU'D HAVE TO SACRIFICE SOMETHING BUYING AN AUTOMATIC TURNTABLE—

...not with the JVC JL-F35. $159.95 In manual or automatic operation, the handsome, slim-line JL-F35 delivers 0.07% wow & flutter and better than 57 db signal to noise ratio. Friction and tracking inaccuracies are reduced to practically zero thanks to an ingeniously designed JVC tone arm and support system. And the silent motor and smooth, precision belt-drive system puts even some expensive direct-drive models to shame. You don't have to sacrifice anything with the JVC JL-F35 and Federated's where it's at!

BUT IT CAN'T SOUND THAT GOOD— IT'S TOO SMALL!

each $49.95

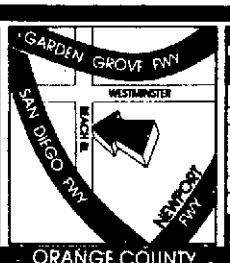
But the new LINEAR DYNAMICS LD 210 does sound great! This 8" two way loudspeaker sounds so good you'd think it was twice as big. Makes a good set of add-on speakers, too. Finished in genuine walnut veneer and highlighted by a rich black acoustic front, these LD 210's blend in with most any decor. Sound too good to be true? Well, come in and give the new LD 210 a test listen today and you'll believe it too. For a limited time, we have a special introductory price: only $49.95 each, and Federated's where it's at!

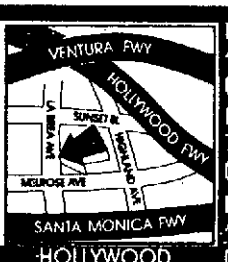
THREE FOR THE PRICE OF TWO

Three heads—three motors for the price you'd expect to pay for two—the AKAI GXC 760D Stereo Cassette Deck offers precise professional tape recording. From its touch controlled transport to its Glass and X'tal Ferrite heads the GXC 760D exhibits itself as an excellent recording machine. Featuring Dolby, the "ADR" system, a MPX filter, peak check switch, mic/line mixing, memory, tape/source monitoring, and record calibration with tone generator (Dolby NR) the GXC 760D also has a frequency response of 30-19,000 Hz. Wow and flutter is less than 0.06% with distortion less than 1%. (Remote control is optional). Akai makes this fine cassette deck and Federated's where it's at!

$595.00



AIR-MOTION COURTESY OF ESS



$427.00 EACH

A brilliant achievement in Heil Air-Motion Transformer technology, the ESS AMT 1a. On its front panel is the powerful 12" woofer—above it the Heil Air-Motion Transformer—& at the rear, a flat surfaced passive radiator—this is the AMT 1 a. Come in and listen to the exciting sound of ESS today and Federated's where it's at!

CALIFORNIA STATE LAW says that very young child actors can't work more than three hours a day, so, to get a full day's work out of the character of Carrie Ingalls, the baby daughter on NBC's "The Little House on the Prairie," the role is played by twins, Lindsay and Sidney Greenbush. Can 'Rich Man' be a success without Nolte?

By GARY DEEB
Chicago Tribune

Will "Rich Man, Poor Man," the dark-horse smash of the 1975-76 television season, degenerate into just another link in TV's perpetual output of dramatic sausage?

Is one of the most heartening video developments in recent years about to be watered down into a slick, greasy, predictable pot-boiler?

And what about Nick Nolte? Will his absence from the continuation of "Rich Man, Poor Man" rob the high-gloss serial of its greatest appeal?

FOR THE answers to these and other engrossing questions, join us for "Rich Man, Poor Man — Book II" on Saturday nights this fall on ABC.

Ever since the original 12 hours of "RM-PM" became the TV phenomenon of 1976, ABC has been scrambling to put together a sequel in the form of a regular weekly series. And now that all the pieces are in place, it's time to scrutinize the merchandise.

It's perfectly obvious that ABC is taking a terrific gamble with "RM-PM, Book II." If the program doesn't live up to the expectations of the 40 million persons who got hooked on the original last winter, the network stands to take a beating — both in the ratings and in the arena of public relations.

AND THE biggest obstacles to continued success for the show are: (1) The refusal of Nolte to appear in the sequel and (2) The appreciably cheaper production that will characterize the new series.

Nolte, of course, starred as Tom Jordache, the "poor man" of the title. A lusty, brawling, ill-fated character, Tom was eminently more interesting than Rudy, his success-oriented, goodie-two-shoes brother (played by Peter Strauss).

In addition, Nolte's good looks and sexual magnetism attracted millions of female viewers. It's doubtful they'll get similar satisfaction from the talented but placid Strauss.

EVEN THOUGH Nolte's character was killed at the conclusion of "RM-PM I," ABC was all set to recast Nick as Tom Jordache's son (who grows up in the spitting image of his old man). Crafty, that ABC.

Nolte declined the big-money offer, however, and quietly shifted over to movies, where he hopes to make another indelible mark on the nation's consciousness.

Nevertheless, there are some good signs ahead for "RM-PM, Book II." For one thing, the program will retain the trappings of socio-political realism. Rudy's two sons, for instance, are tentatively slated to get involved in the Vietnam protest movement.

ANOTHER promising sign: Millard Lampell, a formerly blacklisted screenwriter, has signed on as head writer for "Book II." He reportedly already has adapted a season's worth of storylines based on Irwin Shaw's novel.

Not surprisingly, the most outwardly optimistic soul of all is Strauss, a fine actor who now ranks as the undisputed star of the new series.

"The continuation will be downright revolutionary in content," Strauss insists. "This is going to be extremely mature drama, with a sophistication that the first show just hinted at. I honestly think the new series will be better than the first. I'm very excited."

STRAUSS considers "RM-PM" a TV landmark, particularly because of the type of viewers it captures.

"There was an audience watching that show who very rarely watches television,' he says. "It was a high-brow, superliberal audience, the kind who tune into PBS all the time."

Moreover, Strauss is looking forward to further developing the character of Rudy. In the original, Rudy was a Johnny-One-Note of sorts, and many viewers were turned off by the character's near-total dependence on expedience.

"I disagree with those people," Strauss argues. "The character of Rudy was misunderstood. I personally never felt he was ignoble or unsympathetic. I always saw him as very American."

GAO slays federal 'dragons of excess'

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mostly the General Accounting Office does police work without a culprit — police work that saves American taxpayers billions of dollars.

By JOHN BARBOUR

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Anderson is 27, the father of two. He got here almost by accident. He wouldn't leave for the world. He likes his job, which is making government work better and saving Americans money.

To put it simplistically, one day John Anderson, in the course of his duties, came across $6 million in a naval construction budget, traced it back, found it unnecessary, told Congress.

Congress cut the funds from the naval budget. John Anderson, who makes something over $23,000 a year, thus saved the American taxpayer $6 million. He is one of a rare breed who work under the aegis of Congress.

Congress is a big thing. It decides how American money will be spent and how Americans will benefit from the spending.

Congress also is a sometimes thing. Its members change, and it frequently changes its mind. When it passes a law or sets up a program, the law or program is sometimes imperfect, the product of 500 authors.

But, nevertheless, the intent of Congress is the will of the people, and thy will be done. That's where John Anderson comes in.

He works for one of the lowest-of-profile federal agencies, the General Accounting Office. Many people have never heard of it. Many who have don't know what it does.

GAO retains some 4,000 professionals, 8,000 eyes and ears. It is the servant of Congress, empowered to determine whether the intent of Congress (i.e. the people) is being followed faithfully and efficiently.

The matter of the $6 million came up when the Navy decided it needed a Trident submarine base in Washington state and asked Congress for funds. A GAO team, including John Anderson, took a careful look at the figures, the plans, and found some of the requests questionable or unnecessary.

"At some point in time they prepare a budget estimate for what they feel they need, say a crane to lift missiles out of a ship," Anderson explains. "At a later date they find an alternative way of removing the missiles and don't really need the crane. They just didn't go back and revise their budget submissions."

Not all savings are so clearly identified. GAO documents that it saved half a billion dollars in 1975, a figure that surpasses by far its $129-million budget and the salaries of all the John Andersons, who, like a battalion of St. Georges, go forth each day to do battle with the many-headed dragon called government.

The real savings must be several billion dollars a year—the money government agencies might spend if there was no oversight.

Carter sets sights on California

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter plans to kick off his Democratic presidential campaign in Georgia, but will focus his attention from then on in California, the industrial Midwest and the Northeast, press secretary Jody Powell said Saturday.

Those areas, which look as if they will be the most hotly contested, have been designated "battleground states," Powell said in a briefing for reporters.

Carter intends to attend a couple of fund-raising events today in Los Angeles, including a reception hosted by actor Warren Beatty. His speech Monday to the Los Angeles Town Hall Forum "will attempt to set the tone for the campaign," Powell said.

Post convention fallout, Pages A-8, 10, 11.

The states Powell mentioned in addition to California were Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, New Jersey, New York and "up into Massachusetts." Other states may be added, he said.

ALTHOUGH TEXAS and Florida will be "hotly contested" because of their size, they are not considered as crucial as the others, he indicated.

Carter said Friday that the selection of Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, rather than a southerner, as President Ford's running mate, has removed the pressure for extra Carter campaign effort in the South.

The Democratic presidential nominee has decided to formally open his campaign on Labor Day in Warm Springs, Ga., rather than in Detroit, the traditional kick-off location for Democratic presidential campaigns.

Powell explained that Warm Springs was chosen because Carter wanted to begin his campaign in Georgia and because of its ties with President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A health resort, Warm Springs was a favorite vacation retreat for the polio-stricken president and was the place where he died in 1945.

THE FORMER Georgia governor decided against Michigan because it is the home state of President Ford and "we felt it would be good manners . . . to begin the campaign elsewhere," Powell said.

President Ford, vacationing in Vail, Colo., kept close tabs on the tense situation in Korea and rested after a strenuous five days at the GOP National Convention in Kansas City.

Dole spent the day working in Washington. And Democratic vice-presidential nominee Sen. Walter Mondale relaxed at a lake retreat in northern Minnesota.

The President, ordered by his doctor to take it easy after the rigors of the convention, slept nine hours Friday night. He took a pre-breakfast swim and headed for the golf course.

Asked when he expected to start extensive planning for the fall campaign against Carter, Ford said, "We'll start Sunday or Monday."

NESSEN SAID Dole and other campaign strategists will arrive at Vail Tuesday or Wednesday for campaign discussions. Campaign Manager Rogers Morton already is in Vail.

RTD talks going around-the-clock

Despite an eleventh-hour negotiating session which continued much of the night Saturday, the Southern California Rapid Transit District management and drivers reportedly were about $5 million apart in an effort to prevent a strike set for 12:01 a.m. Monday.

Negotiators for both sides said around-the-clock talks would continue in the hope of reaching a settlement between the district and two of the three unions which represent the SCRTD employes.

The talks between the district and the United Transportation Union, which represents the drivers, began about 6 p.m., and "we may go all night," a union spokesman said.

The SCRTD negotiators are scheduled to meet with negotiators for the Amalgamated Transit Union, which represents the mechanics, beginning at 4 p.m. today.

The memberships of both unions have authorized strikes, but only the drivers have set a strike deadline. However, Jerry Long, president of the mechanics' union, said his group would honor the drivers' picket lines if they strike.

At a special session of the transit district's board of directors Saturday afternoon, district manager Jack Gilstrap said, "We're approximately 4 to 5 per cent apart over a three-year period. Perhaps that sounds like a small difference, but it represents a significant amount of dollars."

U.S. bares strength as Korea 'death tree' cut

By K.C. HWANG

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The United States staged a demonstration of military power in and around Korea Saturday as allied forces felled the tree at the center of the dispute in which North Koreans killed two American officers.

President Ford personally approved "the plan to go in there and cut the tree down," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Saturday at Vail, Colo., where Ford is vacationing. With Ford is National Security Agency Director Brent A. Scowcroft, who is keeping the President abreast of the situation.

At Travis Air Force Base in California, flag-draped caskets carrying the bodies of the two slain American officers arrived amid a brief, solemn ceremony. As the plane returning their bodies touched down, a 26-man honor guard saluted.

The bodies were taken to the U.S. Army Mortuary in Oakland. Col. Erroll Loving, Travis information officer, said the body of Maj. Arthur Bonifas, 33, of Newburgh, N.Y., would be flown to West Point, N.Y. for burial. The body of 1st Lt. Mark T. Barrett, 25, was to be flown to his hometown of Columbia, S.C. Bonifas was promoted posthumously from captain to major.

In the Korea show of strength, an armada of warplanes and troops was poised near the demilitarized zone during cutting of the 40-foot poplar at the neutral truce village of Panmunjom.

Twenty-six helicopter gunships of the kind used in the Vietnam war, backed by an unspecified number of F4 Phantom and F111 jet fighters and three B52 bombers from Guam, circled overhead while a "quick reaction force" of 300 U.S. and South Korean soldiers protected the tree-cutting, allied military sources said.

North Korean soldiers at the scene limited their response to shooting photographs, but their government accused the United States of a grave military provocation.

A Pyongyang broadcast charged that 300 troops, including Americans "in full combat trim," entered the demilitarized zone (DMZ) separating North and South Korea and not only cut down the tree but also destroyed North Korean guard posts and smashed barriers.

Another 400 allied troops took combat positions 400 yards away, backed up by five truckloads of soldiers and a helicopter, all "creating a terrible war atmosphere," the broadcast said.

The allied sources, declining to be identified, denied that the combat force had entered the DMZ, but did not say how close it approached.

North Korea's Central News Agency charged that one U.S. helicopter intruded into North Korean air space along the DMZ on Satur-

N. Korean officer yelled: 'Kill'

By BARRY SCHLACHTER

EDITOR'S NOTE — The pruning of a tree in one of the world's most tense places — Panmunjom in Korea — has brought a new crisis situation to Asia, with American and South Korean military forces on precautionary alert. Here is how it all began one sultry morning last week.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A hot sun beat down that morning last Wednesday, sending the temperature to nearly 90 degrees in the mountain-ringed bowl that is the Panmunjom truce village in Korea's demilitarized zone.

A U.N. Command work party led by two American Army officers had begun its assignment for the day — prune a Normandy poplar tree whose branches obstructed observation of two checkpoints.

A short time later the two U.S. officers were dead, their bodies "battered beyond recognition," according to the U.N. Command, by North Korean military guards wielding axes and pikes.

The clash raised tensions on this divided peninsula to their highest level since North Korea seized the USS Pueblo in 1968.

U.S. and South Korean forces, buttressed by the deployment of several squadrons of American warplanes, are on precautionary alert. The U.S. carrier Midway and her 75 aircraft are headed for Korean waters. North Korea put its armed forces on combat alert on orders of President Kim Il-sung in Pyongyang.

The whole affair began innocently enough, U.S. officials said, when the U.N. Command work party began trimming the tree near the Bridge of No Return that leads into the North Korean sector of the DMZ.

U.S. and South Korean authorities here gave this account:

Two North Korean officers and nine enlisted men approached the work party at 10:40 a.m., asking what was happening to the tree. A North Korean lieutenant, identified as Pak Chol, watched the pruning for 10 or 15 minutes, then suddenly ordered the work stopped. The U.S. officer in charge, Capt. Arthur Bonifas, 33, of Newburgh, N.Y., told his South Korean civilian workers to continue.

Angered, the North Korean officer sent a runner across the bridge and he came back with reinforcements, boosting their number to about 30.

Lt. Pak slipped off his wristwatch, a U.S. official said, carefully wrapped a white handkerchief around it and deposited it in a trouser pocket. Shouting "Kill!" in Korean, he struck Bonifas in the back. Knocked to the ground, the American officer was "beaten to death by five North Korean guards."

A South Korean worker was quoted as saying later in a newspaper interview that a Communist guard seized an ax from a worker and hacked Bonifas on the head and shoulder. Lt. Mark Barrett, 25, of Columbia, S.C., was slain in a similar manner, a U.S. spokesman said.

The U. N. Command later produced a sequence of 15 photographs taken with a telephoto lens in an effort to show that the North Koreans' specific targets were Bonifas and Barrett.

The South Korean civilians escaped unharmed and the outnumbered U.S. and South Korean soldiers, some injured by metal pikes and billy clubs, ran to the nearest U.N. position.

The two officers died from massive head wounds, U.S. officials said after the bodies were recovered. Three days later, as tensions heightened along the 151-mile-long DMZ, another Allied Command work party returned and cut down the poplar. Late Saturday, North

3 dead in L.B. shooting spree

By AL MURRELL
Staff Writer

Three persons were killed and three others critically wounded in a bloody shooting spree at an east Long Beach apartment complex, and a suspect who holed up in a nearby building with a rifle pointed at his head surrendered to officers early today, police said.

Capt. Robert Alford, Long Beach watch commander, said two girls and a man were shot to death about 10 p.m. at the apartment building at 2507 E. 15th St.

Officer Gilbert Quinonez said three officers went into the small house behind the apartment complex and convinced the man, who was described as a black, about 25, not to commit suicide.

Officer D. McCullough talked to the suspect for about 45 minutes and when the man lowered the .22-calibre rifle slightly, officers Richard Rose and John Abrego disarmed him.

Details of the mass murder were sketchy, but Quinonez said the six persons were shot in and in front of the two apartments at the rear of the apartment complex.

The three survivors, Arturo Gusman, 19, Rufugio Navarro, 35, and Maria Navarro, 17, were taken to St. Mary Medical Center where they were reported in critical condition. Each had been shot once in the head.

One officer identified two of the dead as Maria Trujillo, 14, and Daniel Smith, about 50. The name of the other dead girl was not immediately available.

A neighbor, Corky Fisher, who lives across the street, and who believes she knew at least one of the victims, said she heard shots about 10 p.m. and called police.

"I heard screaming and praying after the shots," she said. "Then all the lights in the neighborhood went out for a few minutes."

She told the Independent Press-Telegram that she had heard what she thought was gunfire Friday night.

"This place is a hotbed and there isn't anything the police can do about it," she said.

RICHARD BURTON MARRIES

Richard Burton and British model Susan Hunt were married in Arlington, Va., Saturday and then flew to New York for a reception at the hotel where they will live while he makes a new film.

The bride, ex-wife of race car driver James Hunt, wore an off-the-shoulder floral-printed pink silk dress.

Burton, twice married and divorced from actress Elizabeth Taylor, telephoned Miss Taylor in Vienna to tell her that he and Mrs. Hunt were to be married, a spokesman said. Miss Taylor is filming the musical "A Little Night Music" in Austria.

Burton and Mrs. Hunt's civil wedding ceremony in Virginia was performed by Judge Francis E. Thomas Jr., who also married Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry Kissinger.

Bob Wilson, best man for Burton in his first marriage to Miss Taylor, served in the same capacity Saturday. Also present were John Miller, lawyer Aaron R. Frosch, who represents both Burton and Miss Taylor, and John Springer, press agent for both Burton and Miss Taylor.

After the ceremony, the newlyweds flew to New York for the reception at Laurent, a restaurant in the Lombardy Hotel.

274 more bodies found at sea after earthquake

Combined News Services

MANILA — Frogmen recovered the bodies of 274 persons — mostly children — swept out to sea by tidal waves following a massive earthquake in the southern Philippines, the official Philippine News Agency reported Saturday.

President Ferdinand E. Marcos said his country would need no foreign aid in recovering from the disaster, which left more than 3,000 dead on the island of Mindanao and 3,000 others missing and feared dead.

The Philippine navy frogmen were working in the Moro Gulf off Pagandian city, 500 miles south of Manila, where 30-foot waves swept a quarter-mile inland early Wednesday after the huge quake, smashing into cities and fishing villages.

Some 3,200 bodies have been recovered. Officials say most of the 3,000 missing were probably swept into the gulf by the tidal waves and are also dead. An estimated 150,000 persons were left homeless.

The earthquake itself, which measured 7.8 on the Richter scale — considered a major earthquake — was centered in the Celebes Sea, 250 miles south of the worst-hit land area.

Irish peace rally

BELFAST — Thousands of Protestants and Roman Catholics — two-thirds of them women — defied the threats of the Irish Republican Army to demonstrate Saturday for peace in Northern Ireland.

The rally in Belfast's Ormeau Park on the banks of the Lagan River went off without incident and the IRA was conspicuous in its absence.

Police estimated the crowd at 15,000, but independent observers put the number at more than 20,000.

Mairead Corrigan, 23-year-old aunt of three children killed Aug. 10 when caught in a shootout between troops and terrorists, appealed to "the people of the world" to organize similar rallies for "peace in Northern Ireland."

Arabs aid Egypt

CAIRO — Finance ministers of Egypt and four Arab oil states signed an agreement Saturday to establish a special $2-billion fund to help finance development projects in Egypt, propping up the country's sagging economy.

The fund in which Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates are participating will be managed by a body called "The Gulf Organization for Development in Egypt," the official Middle East News Agency said.

Rightists kill student

BANGKOK — Student demonstrators retreated behind locked university gates Saturday after militant Thai rightists killed one person and wounded nearly 40 who were protesting the return of former strongman Praphas Charusathien.

Praphas, the power behind the military government that collapsed during a bloody student uprising in October 1973, slipped into Thailand from exile in Taiwan a week ago. His presence has caused a crisis for the elected civilian government of Prime Minister Seni Pramoj.

More than 1,000 protesters were demonstrating at Thammasat University in the heart of Bangkok when about 500 militant right wingers opened fire with rifles and pistols on the crowd.

Bus crash kills 8

VIENNA — Eight persons were killed and 43 seriously injured when a West German tour bus plunged down a cliff into the Danube River on Saturday after a brush with a small car driven by an 84-year-old pensioner, police reported.

An ambulance crashed and overturned after the bus accident, injuring two attendants, they said.

Police quoted the pensioner as saying he had been driving the narrow, winding cliffside road almost daily for 28 years and accused the bus driver of excessive speed. He produced a certificate showing he had passed a reflex test that permitted him to renew his driver's license five years ago, they said.

UAW looks for strike target

DETROIT — After five weeks of no-progress bargaining, the United Auto Workers launches a homestretch drive toward new contracts with the Big Three automakers this week with the selection of a strike target for 1976.

Will it be Ford because it's the No. 2 maker's turn? Or maybe industry giant General Motors because of its strong financial position? And what about Chrysler, always a possible candidate because it's so vulnerable to a strike?.

The UAW, which has not tipped its hand thus far, will provide the answer on Tuesday, when its international executive board convenes to debate the issue.

Union officials say there still is no agreement among leaders on who the target should be and there likely won't be until after they thrash it out in closed session.

"We never make a selection until the last minute," said one official. "We like to discuss all the pros and cons first. We may go in to the meeting expecting to name one company and then come out with a different one."

Veteran labor observers see Ford as the frontrunner for 1976, mainly because Ford hasn't been the target since the 1967 round of triennial talks. A settlement was reached that year after a 66-day strike.

GM was the target in 1970, when it was hit by a 67-day walkout, and Chrysler was tagged in 1973, when there was a nine-day strike.

Nixon visitors

WARWICK, R.I. — Rabbi Baruch Korff says he arranged for four or five delegates to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City to visit Saturday with former President Nixon in San Clemente.

Organizer of the President Nixon Justice Fund to raise money to pay Nixon's Watergate attorney fees, Korff said Friday that he personally arranged the "courtesy call."

Nearly a hundred delegates sought appointments with Richard Nixon, he said.

He would not name the delegates or give any other details of the meetings with Nixon.

Stately manor hosts Stones

Combined News Services

More than 150,000 Rolling Stones fans poured onto the grounds of stately Knebworth House in the English countryside Saturday for an outdoor rock festival that was a throwback to the 1960s.

There was a carnival atmosphere and the usual wafts of marijuana smoke, but police said they had made no arrests by early evening.

The Stones, led by Mick Jagger, were expected to be on stage for 2½ hours, possibly their longest performance ever. A special 100-yard-long catwalk was built onto the front of the stage so Jagger could wander into the crowd as he sang and gyrated.

Lead-off bands, including Hot Tuna, Todd Rungren's Utopia, and 10 CC, started the festival Saturday morning. The day's entertainment also included circus acts and a display of aircraft aerial acrobatics.

Ambulance attendants said they treated 86 people during the first two hours of the concert — mainly fans who had camped out overnight and were suffering stomach upsets.

Marijuana, hashish and pills were sold openly at the site, but organizations set up to deal with drug users on bad trips said there had not been much demand for their services.

Many fans, who paid $8.10 for tickets, were lured to the festival 50 miles north of London by reports that this could be the Stones' last major concert appearance.

Comeback

Princess Grace of Monaco has agreed to return to the stage for four appearances at the Edinburgh Festival next month in Scotland, the French newspaper Nice Matin reported.

She will read American poetry at special performances marking the U.S. Bicentennial. The 46-year-old former Grace Kelly retired from her acting career to marry Prince Rainier of Monaco.

Tara's theme

Tara, Iowa, a town of 10 in northwest Iowa's corn and soybean country, threw its own Bicentennial celebration Saturday, offering free beer and roast pig to 700 friends and neighbors.

It was a folksy gathering, with everyone bringing potluck lunches and listening to a round of patriotic speeches.

Oldtimers sat in the shade of apple trees and nodded approval as a 45-minute parade — mostly horses, tractors and decorated bicycles from the farm community — passed by.

"We saw other communities with Bicentennial celebrations, and we figured that Tara is about as good as any of them," said one organizer, Bernice Hicks.

The town, which now claims four couples and two children as residents, was settled by covered wagon pioneers in March 1857.

Hustler

Larry Flynt, editor and publisher of Hustler magazine, and Althea Leasure, executive and associate publisher of the men's publication, were married in Columbus, Ohio, Saturday.

About 200 persons attended the single-ring ceremony at Broad Street United Methodist Church. The Rev. Bob Harrington, the so-called "chaplain of Bourbon Street" delivered the benediction.

A reception was held later for about 650 people at Flynt's suburban mansion in Bexley. The newlyweds planned to leave today for a 10-day honeymoon in the South Pacific.

Fattest

Frances Voges of Tampa says she's faced a lot of crises in her life as the world's fattest woman, but she always counts her blessings.

"God gave me so many good things. I'm not blind, or crippled and I have children," says the 56-year-old mother of three.

She weighs 826 pounds. For years she worked the side shows as Baby Frances and was listed in the Guinness Book of World Records. She's not listed now, she says, because she hasn't worked since her 822-pound partner, Jack Connor, died several years ago.

"I still weighed 826 pounds about four years ago. That was the last time I weighed myself and it was on the baggage scales at an airport," says Mrs. Voges.

She was the smallest of five children born to her parents. She weighed 6 pounds, 2 ounces at birth.

When she was less than a year old she almost died from whooping cough and diphtheria.

"Maybe it was the high fever, but something evidently affected my pituitary gland. But the time I went to first grade, I weighed 190 pounds and was six inches bigger around than I was tall," Mrs. Voges says.

At 14 she was hospitalized for tests and fed nothing but lettuce and water. "The first week I gained five pounds," she said.

When she was 16, doctors gave her six months to live. She was in labor with her first child for three weeks and unconscious for five days after delivery.

Three of her children died; the other three are normal and healthy. She has been married several times.

Mrs. Voges, 5-foot-1, says her waist is 73 inches, her calves 64 inches.

At home, she has a specially made double-wide chair, but prefers using half the couch.

"When I ride on an airplane, they let my car drive right on the air strip up to the hydraulic lift by the plane."

D.A. wants porn firm destroyed

Thirty-three tons of pornographic films and magazines seized in a Los Alamitos warehouse will finally be destroyed after three years of court action if the Orange County district attorney wins approval from the State Supreme Court.

The films were found by a Los Alamitos police officer in 1973, and previous efforts to have them destroyed have failed, but Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks said Saturday that he will take the matter to the state's highest court.

The films — said to have a retail value of more than $1.5 million — portray a wide variety of heterosexual and homosexual acts.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Oretta Sears said the materials are claimed by Ettore Zappi.

Santa Ana Superior Court Judge Byron K. McMillan examined 48 samples from the mountain of impounded material and ruled that it was "patently obscene." He ordered it destroyed, but was overruled by an appellate court.

Zappi had been named as a defendant in a criminal action filed against seven men and Suki Inc., which allegedly stored the material while awaiting its sale and distribution.

A short time later, similar charges were brought in Los Angeles against the same defendants and the same firm. The case was rushed to court ahead of the Orange County complaint, and all defendants were acquitted.

They were not tried in Orange County after defense attorneys successfully argued that such prosecution would be double jeopardy.

Mrs. Sears will handle the plea to the state's highest court, asking an order for destruction of the material.

She contended that when the appellate court overruled the Superior Court order to destroy the material, it "overlooked" the issue of obscenity.

The appellate court's rejection of an appeal for rehearing "simply rewards the defendants for having had the money and the power to maneuver the case from court to court for three years," Mrs. Sears said.

Astronauts in wooden shoes

Klompen clumping across moon? Maybe

By DICK EMERY
Staff Writer

"One small step for man, one giant leap for mankind!"
—Neil Armstrong on the Moon, 7:57 p.m., Sunday, July 20, 1969.

It was an American step, all right. But was the foot wearing — inside the astronaut suit — a Holland Dutch wooden shoe?

International secrets get told in odd ways.

"This man from the moon project came into the store and ordered 40 pairs of wooden shoes."

Well, that was back in 1964 when the moon trip was being planned.

"I think that was the year," said Jack Van Willigen, now 54, in his Holland-American Market in Bellflower, which stocks many kinds of Holland goods.

"It happened in the store I had then in Los Angeles, near Beverly and Sixth, before Andy Wierenga retired and I took over his store here in Bellflower.

"I asked, why would anyone want 40 pairs of klompen?"

Klompen is the Dutch name for wooden shoes, which go "klompen, klompen" when clumping across a wooden floor. Dutch dairymen used to buy them for soggy work in the dairies of the Bellflower cow country. Now that dairies have pulled out for roomier territory, klompen are favored by carwashers, gardeners, campers and fanciers of wall-hanging flowerpots.

"He told me that they needed the shoes for trimming down and fitting inside the feet of astronaut suits for men training for the moon trip."

Klompen are carved from poplar wood. They are light and strong, waterproof, non-conductors of earthly or moonly chill — great for stomping around where quiet is unnecessary.

Van Willigen believes — without official confirmation — that Cmdr. Armstrong's foot making that first human step on the moon was wearing a Holland Dutch wooden shoe.

Be that as it may, the Bellflower store offers klompen in sizes from toddler's to gunboats, plain and fancy, in a price range from $3.05 for plain toddler shoes to $14.10 for an ornamented pair designed for a Dutch dairyman weighing, perhaps, 300 pounds.

Boy slain, 2 shot at drive-in theater

A 14-year-old bystander was shot to death and a second youth and a police officer were wounded during what was believed to be a gang-related gunfight at a Baldwin Park drive-in theater Saturday, police said.

Rudy Almonte of El Monte, who was shot once in the head with a .22 caliber bullet shortly after midnight at the Edgewood Drive-In, died at 11:35 a.m. at Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena.

Baldwin Park officer John Budge and 17-year-old Joe Correa, 17, of El Monte, were treated at Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina. Budge for a bullet wound in the left thigh and Correa for a stomach wound. Budge was released and Correa was reported in stable condition.

Officer Don Schonne said Budge and three other officers were sent to the drive-in about 12:15 a.m. to investigate a report of a disturbance in which gunshots had been fired.

Shortly after the officers arrived, five shots were fired, hitting Budge and the two youths, who were standing near him. A few seconds later, a second round of bullets was fired, but no one was hit.

Schonne said Budge returned the gunfire after being shot, but it was not known whether any of the assailants were hit.

The drive-in was sealed off quickly by 20 to 25 officers from Baldwin Park, the Highway Patrol and other area police agencies, but no suspects or weapons were found, Schonne said.

He said four male juveniles were taken into custody at the drive-in after officers found a custom .410 shotgun with a pistol grip in the youths van. The youths later were released to their parents and were not identified because of their ages.

Schonne said, "Members of rival gangs in the area were identified as taking part in the disturbance (which preceded the gunfight), but we don't know that it was a gang action."

2 trunk shootings probed

Southland detectives Saturday were investigating two apparently unrelated shootings in which victims were discovered in the trunks of parked cars.

Long Beach homicide detectives identified a decomposed body found Friday in the trunk of a car at an East Long Beach restaurant as 26-year-old Jimmie Lee Larson, of 116 17th St., Huntington Beach.

Detectives Bob Keeran and Bill Collette said an autopsy Saturday showed that Larson had been shot, but they declined to reveal how many times or the type of gun used.

Police were called to the parking lot at Denny's restaurant, 5570 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Friday afternoon by a patron who noticed blood dripping from the trunk of Larson's late-model Cadillac.

When officers opened the trunk they found Larson's body wrapped in a blue plastic sheet.

Sheriff's homicide detectives, meanwhile, were investigating the shootings of two men who were found in a car parked on the southbound Harbor Freeway north of the Sepulveda Boulevard exit in Carson.

Deputies said one victim, 21-year-old Renard Acklin of Compton, had been shot to death and was lying on the front seat of the car when officers arrived about 6:30 a.m.

Several hours later deputies opened the trunk and found Homer Brown, 20, whose address was not immediately known.

Brown, shot once in the head, was taken to Harbor General Hospital in Torrance, where he was reported in guarded condition late Saturday.

Rafting ban faces challenge

PLACERVILLE (AP) — The state is trying to stop El Dorado County from banning rafting on 23 miles of the American River, saying the ordinance violates rafters' rights.

Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger's office filed a Superior Court suit Friday seeking to overturn the ordinance, which is to take effect Sept. 10, a month after county supervisors adopted it.

The suit was filed at the request of the State Lands Commission and the Department of Navigation and Ocean Development.

Supervisors passed the ordinance at the urging of landowners along the river's south fork, who said rafters were polluting the area and trespassing on their property.

But Asst. Atty. Gen. Jan Stevens said in the lawsuit that rafters have the right under state law to use a navigable river.

Judge Prentiss Moore said he would hear the case next Friday along with a related case involving commercial rafters' rights to use the river.

San Quentin inmate killed

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — A San Quentin inmate was stabbed to death with a homemade knife as hundreds of convicts watched a movie in the prison's darkened north dining hall Saturday, a prison spokesman said.

Officials said the victim, stabbed once in the left side of his chest at 9:40 a.m., was in prison for a parole violation. He originally was imprisoned on a second-degree robbery conviction.

Disaster area

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford has declared a major disaster for sections of New Jersey damaged by Hurricane Belle on Aug. 9.

Flash-flood toll increases to 120

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — Recovery of another body Saturday raised the death toll from the July 31 flash flood in Big Thompson Canyon to 120.

A total of 111 bodies have been identified since the flood and some 114 names remain on the missing list.

GAO slays dragons of excess

The GAO began in 1921 as an auditing agency essentially, checking income and outgo, guarding against illegal expenditures. In 1950, the GAO expanded its function somewhat, adding one more question: Is the money being efficiently spent? In 1970, Congress further increased GAO's responsibilities to include evaluation of program results.

Today there are increasing cries about the inefficiency and overreach of big government. Congress is concerned and, when Congress is concerned, GAO goes to work.

"Increased concerns are being voiced in the Congress and elsewhere," writes Comptroller General Elmer Staats, who heads GAO, "particularly in the government's capability to make programs work effectively, and to serve well those individuals and groups for which public funds are expended."

50-year supply of anti-diarrhea pills

GAO seldom finds malfeasance or outright crookedness. Just simple, expensive mistakes, narrow-view management, people doing what they have always done because they always have. Sometimes just carelessness, forgetfulness.

Roughly a third of GAO's reports are in response to queries by Congress. Some are initiated by GAO itself in response to public criticism. Some are triggered by newspaper articles or tips from interested parties.

GAO's authority ranges all through government, although unevenly and with some exceptions. Congress giveth, and Congress taketh away. Thus, since 1921, Congress has excluded some data from GAO purview—for instance the Federal Reserve System and the Internal Revenue Service.

But largely GAO operates wherever American tax monies are spent. It operated, for instance, in Vietnam.

It also maintains offices in the various federal agencies and staff members work closely within the fabric of the agencies.

Jim Black, 29, works in the GAO office at the U.S. Postal Service. He is currently checking into the cost and use of some 150,000 postal vehicles, the largest fleet of government vehicles outside the military.

The question he and his fellow researchers want to answer is, "Could the Postal Service save a few bucks if it leased vehicles instead of bought?" They don't have the answer yet.

Not everyone likes the sleuths

In the enormity of government, in the dispersed operations of any single agency, variation becomes the theme. One manager thinks he's doing the right thing in his area of operation, but in the larger perspective, his way is costly and ineffective.

For instance, the Postal Service operates a centralized warehouse for vehicle spare parts it buys wholesale at roughly half price. Individual postal offices can order parts from the warehouse and pay for local installation.

But when GAO looked into it, the warehouse wasn't being used properly. Local postmasters were sending their vehicles to local garages for repair because it was easier. Since the GAO report, the warehouse business has improved.

Wars are notably wasteful, so when the U.S. went to war in Vietnam, the GAO went with it. One of Jim Black's jobs was to check up on procurement by the U.S. for the Vietnamese.

One thing he found was a 50-year supply of anti-diarrhea pills. "Just somewhere along the line the computers went wrong," he says.

Wars are not neat, and auditors and management specialists sometimes find them hopeless. Assigned to look into the effectiveness of battlefield sensors, designed to ferret out enemy movements, Black met frustration after frustration. With people moving in and out, it was difficult to find someone who knew what had been done a few months ago. And the farther from command centers, the less available were written records.

"They'd simply tell you, 'When we moved, we had too much weight so we left them behind.'" Black doesn't know if a final report was ever made.

Another of his assignments was in systems acquisitions. The Navy wanted to lease nine tankers at a cost of $315 million. But, in fact, the Navy leased the ships before they were built.

There were charges of backdoor leasing. Insurance companies and retirement funds had put money into the shipbuilding project because it "was backed by the full faith and credit of Uncle Sam, and it was a good deal," Black says.

When the Navy wants to build a battleship or an aircraft carrier, it has to go to Congress and ask for specific funds. But leasing funds, says Black, come "out of a big pot of money called operation and maintenance, and those things don't get looked at. That's supposed to keep going what you've already got . . . So what happened is they got into all these agreements and nobody on the Hill really knew about it. They were a little perturbed about that."

Understandably, not everyone likes the GAO people nosing around.

Mostly though, even in sensitive areas, federal agencies cooperate. Anderson currently is working on a project at the Army Security Agency, the outfit that develops super-secret ways to monitor an enemy's electronics, radio and radar, to get an intelligence edge. Anderson carries a special clearance, above top secret.

Few lawmakers use the service

The Army Security Agency's work, by some Pentagon measures, is as important as guns and tanks. The five-man GAO team is checking how close to estimated costs the programs are running, how close they are to timetable development and, finally, "How are they performing?"

"Are we paying a lot more now for something that will do a lot less?" Anderson asks. In this sense, GAO provides a continuing analysis on the outcome of what Congress has already voted.

The team also is looking into other Defense Department entities like the Air Force and Navy to see if they have equipment that might also be used by the Army. Granted, most of the team is not technologically trained to make such evaluations. When this happens, GAO pulls in outside consultants.

The GAO process is time-consuming. On any one project, there may be more than a hundred interviews. Every interview is documented by a written memorandum, to back up the final report.

The team begins with a plan and a survey, especially "where we don't know anything to speak of about the agency or the operation we're auditing."

WHEN THEY find things they think need improvements, or require congressional attention, the team goes into a review stage and probes for more detail.

There have been many complaints that GAO doesn't work fast enough, but there have been few challenges to the facts turned up by GAO researchers.

Often GAO recommendations to the agency itself solve problems that the agency didn't know existed. Sometimes Congress is asked to pass new legislation to clear up ambiguities in old legislation.

Relatively few members of Congress use the GAO's services, although, says Sen. William Proxmire, who frequently calls on GAO, this is changing slowly. Congressional committees often ask for GAO help now, and frequently GAO staffers join the committee staff in investigations.

GAO's reports are known for their flat, undramatic language, but they are nonetheless concise in summary. For instance: "There are eight federal agencies responsible for managing and operating federal warning dissemination systems to alert the public of natural disasters and enemy attacks. Actions have been taken by the Interagency Warning Steering Group to coordinate efforts, but much remains to be done.

Hard to estimate the dollars saved

"If unchecked, over $182 million may be spent in fiscal years 1976 through 1980 to develop and operate five federal warning systems. Some of these have overlapping requirements and coverage."

ITS STUDIES are exhaustive. In checking into the feasibility of an amphibious Army cargo truck called "The Gamma Goat," it interviewed Army and Marine personnel to come up with no fewer than 26 defects. Some of them: windshield wiper failure, starter failure, exhaust fumes in driver's compartment, windshield breakage when hot defrost air is blown on it, a tendency to drift off road on fast turns, freezing of steering in winter, difficult to load and unload and, finally, "should not be used for hauling personnel cross-country."

Asked to look into the service academies, GAO found this year that they would save well over a million dollars by giving civilians jobs held by more expensive military personnel and by leasing out food services.

For example, it cited a number of naval personnel who could be replaced at Annapolis, and said, "Most of the positions identified were in small-craft maintenance, but we also found no military essential reason for designating a naval officer to head the dairy farm run by the Academy."

People like John Anderson just shrug when asked how much they think they have saved the government in the course of a year, or a career. Their work cannot be measured that way.

"You talk about improved management procedures," he says. "For instance, the very first job that I worked on reported on a DOD tendency to try to hurry up development of equipment even though when you do the hurry-up process and don't follow the normal step by step routine, you run into problems."

Like many other young people who join GAO, Anderson had never heard of it before he graduated from Madison College in Harrisonburg, Va., in 1970 in accounting. But he saw an interview sheet on a school bulletin board and looked into it.

Black heard about GAO from a friend who worked there.

Both find the work extremely satisfying. They admit they may not stay forever, but right now they like what they do because they consider it important, and it has variety. It goes much further than commercial accounting.

MOSTLY it's police work without a culprit. If there are signs of wrongdoing, the case usually goes to the Justice Department for pursuit.

"Sometimes you think that the agency people are working in a different world than we are," Anderson says. "You ask yourself, 'are they trying to fight us?' But they have their own objectives and for the most part they're good managers. They try to do a good job. It's the same old story. They can't see the forest for the trees sometimes."

"One thing that's always amazed me," says Black, "is you realize how big this government really is. You know, somebody's liable to be spending $200 million on something that you never heard of."

New E. Coast storm cycle may be near

By MARTIN MERZER

MIAMI (AP) — Although the East Coast spared severe tropical weather for the past several years, has been hit by a hurricane and a tropical storm within the past two weeks, an expert said Saturday it's too early to know if an expected switch in the storm cycle has arrived.

For 15 years most severe hurricanes have formed over the deep Atlantic between Africa and the Caribbean and then moved west into the Gulf of Mexico.

But Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center, and other forecasters have been on the lookout in recent years for a change in the cycle — a change that could bring major hurricanes to the populous Atlantic Coast.

"When we plot it up, the major hurricanes that came in the 1960s and '70s have all been in the Gulf of Mexico," Frank said. "In the 1950s, the major hurricanes came up the East Coast — seven moved up during those years. There was only one exception."

He said the cycles seem to last 10 to 15 years.

"But keep in mind that what we are talking about is major hurricanes," Frank said. "Dottie was just a tropical storm. Belle was a major hurricane when it was offshore, but when it hit Long Island it was a minimal hurricane."

MIAMI (AP) — A tropical depression moving west toward the Leeward Islands was expected to gain strength from the warm waters of the Atlantic and develop into the fifth tropical storm of the 1976 season, forecasters said Saturday.

Tropical storm Dottie formed last week over Key West, dumped drenching rains on south Florida and then moved north along the East Coast. It came ashore near Charleston, S.C., Friday evening, bringing heavy rain to parts of the mid-Atlantic coast before breaking up.

Hurricane Belle formed earlier this month east of the Bahamas and moved over Long Island Aug. 9. At least three deaths and $12 million in insured losses were attributed to the hurricane.

Tropical storm Candice was moving through the North Atlantic Saturday, and a strong tropical depression east of the Leeward Islands was moving northwest.

S. Africa's moderate blacks rip apartheid

By JOHN F. BURNS
New York Times Service

JOHANNESBURG — Leaders of South Africa's tribal homelands, representing nearly half the country's 18 million blacks, said Saturday that the reaction of Prime Minister John Vorster's government to the bloody upheaval in black townships across the nation showed that "the only language they are prepared to listen to is violence."

In one of the strongest condemnations of apartheid that black leaders recognized by the government have ever issued, the homeland leaders demanded "full human rights" for blacks and rejected government concessions that "can no longer satisfy the aspirations of the black man."

THERE WERE reports of continuing confrontations between police and demonstrators in a number of black townships Saturday. One of the most serious occurred in the Cape Town enclave of Langa, where riot squads used tear gas to break up a march of young people.

Stone-throwing was reported to be continuing in the black townships outside the coastal city of Port Elizabeth, where 33 blacks lost their lives in an upheaval last week.

After a meeting at a Johannesburg hotel, the homeland leaders demanded an early meeting with Vorster to discuss the upheavals, which have cost at least 250 lives. They said the meeting should be followed by a national conference, to be attended by the dozens of black leaders detained by security police since the upheaval began two months ago.

EARLIER, Hudson W. Ntsanwisi, who convened the meeting, set the tone by describing the government's arrest of more than 170 black leaders as "jackboot tactics." Ntsanwisi is the chief minister of Gazankulu, one of the nine homelands, which together account for 8.5 million people.

"We believe that this is a time for penitence for all whites in South Africa," the homeland leaders said in their statement.

"What has happened to our country is a result of their failure to observe the fundamental religious and ethical teaching such as contained in the words: 'Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men do to you, do ye even so to them.'"

THE meeting was attended by senior officials of seven of the nine homelands, including Chief Gatsha Buthelezi, leader of the 4.8 million Zulus, the largest of the country's tribal groups.

Not represented were the Transkei, which is cooperating closely with the government prior to becoming independent Oct. 26, and Swazi, a tiny territory on the country's northeastern border.

The harsh language of the statement was considered particularly significant since the homeland leaders are considered by the government to be the authentic representatives of the country's black population.

UNDER the separate-development policy espoused by the government, blacks are expected to renounce political and social rights in the country at large in return for emancipation in the homelands, primitive areas that constitute only 13 per cent of the country by area.

Calling South Africa "our beloved country, the land of our birth," the homeland leaders criticized the "wanton destruction" wrought by young demonstrators in the black townships, who have razed hundreds of government buildings. But they coupled this with a condemnation of the police for responding violently — with automatic weapons fire — to what they described as "peaceful and legitimate demonstrations."

"The practice of the republican government in continuing to deny fundamental human rights to blacks, until forced by confrontation, has shown to the country and to the world that the only language they are prepared to listen to is violence. In so doing they have dealt a severe blow to the philosophy of nonviolence as a viable formula for change."

EXCLUSIVE

The group, described as "stooges" by radical black leaders for cooperating with the government in the development of the homelands, emphatically rejected the government's offer of independence for their territories. Instead, they demanded reforms that would amount to a complete abandonment of apartheid.

The statement said concessions by the government in recent years were seen by blacks as "mere window dressing." The concessions have included moves to open some first-class hotels and restaurants to blacks, permitting limited interracial sport and desegregating some libraries, parks and museums.

Since the township disturbances began, the government has made a number of additional concessions. It has abolished the compulsory use of the Afrikaans language in black schools.

Ask Canal surrender, see Korea war

Third World leaders blast U.S.

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The nonaligned summit conference said in its final political report Saturday that war may break out at any moment in Korea and that the United States should give up the Panama Canal.

The chapter on Korea did not mention the killing of two American Army officers by North Koreans at Panmunjom, but referred to North Korean statements denouncing the United States during the four-day, 85-national conference, which ended Friday.

"The conference expressed deep concern over the grave situation in Korea created by the imperialists, a situation in which a war may break out at any moment," the declaration said.

"The conference strongly demanded that the imperialists immediately stop their maneuvers to provoke war and remove nuclear weapons, military installations and all other means of war from South Korea.

"The conference called for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korea, for the closure of foreign military bases, for the termination of the United Nations Command and for the replacement of the Korean military armistice agreement by a durable peace agreement."

In the Latin American chapter of the document, which was adopted by consensus without a vote, the Third World leaders said Panama should be given total control over the Panama Canal.

The conference reaffirmed the support of the nonaligned countries for Panamanian control of the canal and reiterated firm support for all efforts that Panama will make before international forums, in particular the U.N.

The Latin American section also called for the U.S. to give up its naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba; to end efforts to isolate Cuba economically and to "halt all political or repressive maneuvers that tend to perpetuate Puerto Rico's colonial status."

The final report contained some chapters distributed or leaked to newsmen earlier, including a section calling for an oil embargo against France and Israel for selling arms to South Africa, and a Middle East section urging more pressure on Israel in the United Nations and possibly her eventual expulsion from the world body.

The text of a separate resolution on Korea approved by the summit, also backing North Korea, was not issued with the final political declaration. Sources said it probably would be distributed next week.

Diplomatic sources said 20 countries had submitted reservations about the resolution, which is believed to contain wording similar to that used in the political declaration, alleging that South Korea had been converted into a military base for nuclear aggression.

Myth of FBI's 'incorruptibility' now being exposed

By JOSEPH VOLZ
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — At the height of Ku Klux Klan violence against civil- rights groups in the 1960s, the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover took reporters to the opening of a new FBI office in the South.

The purpose was to show the nation that Hoover, a bitter foe of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Nobel Prize-winning civil-rights leader, was doing his best to move quickly against the violence. The reporters were ushered into a new office and duly impressed that such a modern and extensive headquarters could have been built so quickly.

But a reporter who leaned against a wall discovered that the office was a fake — a movie set complete with pictures on the wall. It was a sham that no reporter exposed.

A Justice Department investigation is in the process of destroying an even bigger sham nurtured by Hoover for 48 years — that FBI agents are incorruptible.

IN FACT, SOURCES CLOSE to the probe — the most exhaustive in the history of the FBI — contend that Hoover himself would stand a good chance of being indicted for misuse of federal property if he were still alive.

One official, John Dunphy, $37,800-a-year chief of the FBI exhibits section, has already pleaded guilty to taking home lumber to build a birdhouse. Dunphy was allowed to plead to the misdemeanor in return for fingering FBI officials who improperly had the exhibits section handle personal work, using FBI material on government time.

Hoover himself was probably the greatest violator, according to records which have already been made public. FBI employes built a porch on his house, regularly painted the house, installed a blower system and even rigged his TV set so that the picture would flash on instantly.

It is unlikely that any former FBI officials who may be indicted or plead guilty in the months ahead for having work done at their homes or for taking FBI equipment with them will match Hoover's record of abuse.

Oddly, few FBI agents — 7,000 of the 8,500 agents in 59 field offices were named during the Hoover regime — realize that the FBI's current all-time low esteem was caused to a large degree by Hoover. They often talk about the good old days under Hoover and contend that if he were around today, instead of a bumbling nice guy, Clarence Kelley, things would be different.

And perhaps they would be —perhaps the FBI would have continued its unspoken blanket immunity from prosecution. No FBI agent was booked or prosecuted for any crimes involving his job under Hoover, perpetuating the myth that FBI agents, unlike so many local cops, were never tempted to take a bribe or dip into confidential funds.

The men who helped keep the myth alive by not talking to reporters are now talking. The confidential fund, for example, which was supposed to pay informants, paid for a number of other unauthorized things, including free-wheeling nights on the town by FBI headquarters brass. And the recreation fund, which employes "voluntarily" paid into each year for outings, was dipped into by Hoover's long-time aide, the late Associate Director Clyde Tolson. Here again no complaints were lodged by Hoover, but recently the latest associate director, Nicholas Callahan, was fired by Kelley on orders from Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, in part for improper administration of the fund.

Officials who received sizable gifts also are under scrutiny. John Mohr, for example, is under fire for receiving a retirement boat from an insurance company. Nobody bothers to mention that Hoover received a $10,000 "award" from Mutual of Omaha.

The bureau, particularly the New York field office, is under fire for breaking into the homes of supporters of the Weather Underground terrorist group in 1972-73 after Hoover died. The bureau conducted hundreds of break-ins against civil-rights groups, political dissidents and nonviolent organizations with Hoover's support. But in 1966, Hoover, worried that he might be forced out of office, became cautious and banned the practice.

Although the break-ins are in the news now, it is unlikely that anyone will be convicted, mainly because the agents were genuinely attempting to combat violence, had fugitive warrants and were following orders which apparently came from former Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III, although he denies it.

Wherever the FBI heads in the post-Hoover years, it probably will be with a new director. Kelley, unable to get control of the bureau and unwilling to crack down on subordinates who misled him — until Levi forced action — probably will be replaced by either President Ford or President Carter next year.

Aliens burned, stabbed, shot

DOUGLAS, Ariz. (AP) — Three illegal aliens looking for work near here were stripped, stabbed, burned with hot pokers and dragged across the desert, the Cochise County sheriff's department said.

In addition, two of the men were hit by birdshot fired from shotguns as they fled their assailants. The third man was not hit.

The men, all in their 20s, told deputies they had just crossed the border from Mexico and were on their way to the town of Elfrida, about 20 miles north of Douglas in the southeastern corner of Arizona, to seek work.

THEY were identified as Eleazar Ruelas Zavala, 24; Manuel Garcia Loya, 25; and Bernabe Herrara Mata, 21, all of Chihuahua. All were listed in satisfactory condition in a hospital in Agua Prieta in Mexico.

Mexican Consul Raul Aveleyra termed the assault "a very sadistic thing," and said, "The people of Mexico are quite bothered by this incident." Aveleyra said one victim had 125 "BBs" removed from his back; another had 60 removed.

A spokesman for the Cochise County sheriff's department said no arrests had been made.

A detective, who said evidence would be presented to a grand jury this week to determine whether any charges should be filed, gave this account of the incident:

The Mexicans were confronted Wednesday morning by an armed man driving a pickup truck in a desert area about eight miles west of Douglas and about two miles south of U.S. 80.

The man forced the three into the camper of his truck. The victims later told deputies that they thought they had been apprehended by the border patrol.

The man drove to a residence, picked up two more men and returned to the same desert area.

The Mexicans were stripped of their clothes and bound with rope. For almost two hours, various sorts of physical abuse were inflicted on them. One was robbed of $36.

KNIVES were used to cut their hair down to the scalp. One of the men said a rope was tied around his neck and thrown over a tree. All three were dragged across the desert, kicked and stabbed, and had their feet burned with pokers heated in a fire.

The assailants then untied the men one at a time and told them to run. They fired at the first man, but missed him, then hit both the others with bird shot while they ran.

The wounded men walked 10 miles to the border, where they were hospitalized.

Tracked by sub, says anti-whaler

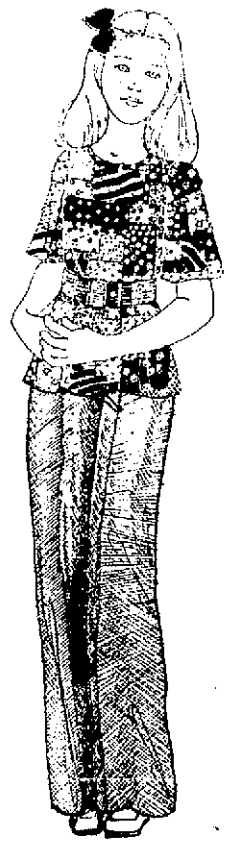
HONOLULU (AP)—A submarine trailed the Greenpeace Foundation's antiwhaling protest vessel Saturday, a spokesman for the group said.

Greenpeace president Bob Hunter, in a radio report to the group's Vancouver, B.C., headquarters, said the intentions and nationality of the submarine, sighted 1,400 miles north of Hawaii, are not known.

A U.S. Navy spokesman at Pearl Harbor, Lt. Michael T. Sherman, said the submarine is not American. A tape recording of Hunter's report was telephoned to Honolulu.

A 10-vessel Russian whaling fleet was overtaken by Greenpeace's converted minesweeper, the James Bay, Friday. Small boats from the ship interfered with the whaling operations, allowing several whales to escape, Hunter said.

The James Bay will continue tracking the Russian ships until it must divert to Midway Island in about two days to refuel, Hunter said.



A "BLIP" appeared on the James Bay radar five days ago, but disappeared when the Greenpeace vessel moved in that direction, Hunter said.

On Friday, the submarine surfaced briefly about five miles away, he added.

The James Bay encountered a Russian whaling fleet 800 miles northwest of Hawaii one month ago and crewmen said they were successful that time in saving many sperm whales.

FBI agents tampered with mail, break-in probe told

By JOHN M. CREWDSON and NICHOLAS M. HORROCK

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Justice Department prosecutors have found evidence that FBI agents stole letters and parcels from the U.S. mails as part of a wide range of illegal techniques directed at the militant antiwar movement over the last five years, sources familiar with the investigation said Saturday.

The prosecutors have also found firm evidence that the agents conducted illegal wiretaps and buggings, according to these sources.

The sources said that the new illegalities were discovered recently in the course of an examination by the department's civil rights division of a number of burglaries committed during the same period by FBI agents hunting fugitive terrorists in the New York City area.

Those agents, who numbered between 20 and 30, were assigned between 1970 and 1973 to an elite "Weathfug squad" in the bureau's Manhattan office. The acronym is derived from the name of the fugitive group, the Weather Underground Organization, whose members have taken credit for several bombings during that period.

EXCLUSIVE

IN THE COURSE OF their largely unproductive three-year search, members of the Weathfug group illegally entered the residence of relatives and associates of the underground terrorists in hopes of finding clues to their whereabouts.

The agents who committed those burglaries, and the FBI executives, including W. Mark Felt, the bureau's former associate director, and Edward S. Miller, its retired intelligence chief, are now subjects of a criminal investigation by the Justice Department's civil rights division.

But the sources said Justice lawyers had discovered, in the course of interviewing some of the FBI agents who have been granted immunity from prosecution in return for their testimony about the Weathfug agents, that members of the team had also conducted unauthorized electronic surveillance of their targets and stolen their mail.

It has previously been reported that the FBI conducted a formal program of intercepting mail in this country between 1940 and 1966, in an effort to identify and locate undercover agents of hostile foreign intelligence services working in this country.

But while that effort was carried out with the assistance of the postal authorities, the mail thefts discovered by the Justice prosecutors involved simply stealing letters from the mailboxes of associates of the Weather fugitives.

According to the sources, the letters were taken to the FBI's Manhattan headquarters, where it was rumored among other agents that the Weathfug squad "had a tea kettle going in the back room."

Once the letters had been opened and their contents examined, the sources said, they were remailed or replaced in the mail boxes.

Because the mail thefts occurred within the last five years, they are subject to prosecution under federal statutes that prohibit tampering with or delaying first-class mail.

The sources also said that the Justice Department had learned that the Weathfug agents had illegally bugged many of the homes and offices they burglarized, and had placed unauthorized wiretaps on telephones in those places and at other locations that had not been the targets of burglaries.

While many of the burglaries were carried out for the purpose of sifting garbage and looking for clues that would indicate the recent presence of a visitor, one source said that a number of the burglaries had been occasioned by the need to "service" the bugging devices.

None of the wiretaps or bugs, the source added, had been accompanied by a court order or written approval of the attorney general. Asked whether the surveillances were therefore illegal, the source replied, "Of course they were."

The civil rights division, which is headed by J. Stanley Pottinger, has officially enlarged its investigation of criminal activities by FBI agents to include the mail thefts, buggings and wiretaps, one source said, adding that he expected indictments to be returned in those matters as well as the burglaries.

A federal grand jury in New York City will begin to hear testimony presented by Pottinger's office next week, but indictments are understood to be months away.

All of the burglaries for which the civil rights division has substantiated evidence occurred between 1970 and 1973 in the New York area and all were related to the search for the 40 or so Weather Underground members, most of whom have never been arrested.

But Pottinger is understood to have obtained a number of leads pointing to similar illegalities in other cities where the FBI had Weathfug squads, and in some places where it did not.

Detroit No.2 cop probed in payoffs

DETROIT (AP) — Frank Blount, No. 2 man in the Detroit police department, is being investigated in a federal probe of narcotics payoffs, city officials confirmed Saturday. Blount was relieved of duties and placed on indefinite sick leave Friday, officials said.

Blount, executive deputy police chief, is the highest-ranking black in the Detroit police force. He denied any involvement in drug trafficking and said he knew nothing of a federal investigation.

"IT'S A lie. It's not true," he said of any suggestion he might be connected with alleged drug payoffs to a variety of police officials being investigated by the Justice Department's Organized Strike Force.

Blount, 51, speculated that his being relieved of duties may have stemmed from a longstanding feud with Police Chief Philip Tannian. And he said an investigation concerning him might have something to do with a conversation he had with another Detroit policeman.

During that conversation, Blount reportedly said he would "kill Tannian or plant a pound of dope on him."

Several sources said Tannian removed Blount from duty to take the heat off himself and to save his own job as police chief. Tannian has been under fire because youth gangs have recently terrorized some parts of the city.

Tannian refused to comment on the reports about Blount.

Blount confirmed that he was on indefinite sick leave, but said he is not ill.

A Justice Department official in Detroit said an investigation was under way and, "You would not be incorrect to say we are taking a hard look at him (Blount), and I am advised that it looks good."

MAYOR Coleman Young said he would demand that the Justice Department give him any details of its probe. Blount supported Young's mayoral campaign and was appointed to his police post by Young.

Sources said Tannian was informed of the federal probe four months ago but that Young was not informed.

Sources told the Detroit News that two civilian officials in the police department and at least one police inspector and several other officers are being investigated.

Kidnap suspect says ransom 'editor's idea'

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — William A.H. Williams, charged with extortion in the 1974 abduction of newspaper editor Reg Murphy, testified Saturday that he only wanted Murphy to read an anti-Semitic leaflet and publish purported FBI files.

Williams, accused of extorting $700,000 from the Atlanta Constitution after Murphy's abduction, testified for almost three hours during an unusual Saturday court session. Then the trial was recessed until Monday.

Williams said the idea of a ransom was Murphy's.

"The $700,000 ransom—that's what messed everything up," Williams said. "He (Murphy) said, 'You know I'm kidnaped, but nobody is going to believe that unless there is a ransom.'"

Williams said that was when he decided to ask for the $700,000. In earlier testimony, Murphy said he believed Williams intended to ask for the money from the beginning.

Williams testified that he wanted Murphy to read a pamphlet called "Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion." He said the pamphlet depicts what he called "the worldwide Jewish conspiracy."

"I had a tremendous hatred of the Jews in this country . . . people like the Kissingers," Williams said. "I have a very deep disdain for him and any other person like him."

He also said he wanted Murphy to publish purported FBI field reports dealing with criminal misconduct by congressmen. He refused to say how he obtained the purported files.

Leggett first to bring up scandal

NORTH HIGHLANDS (AP) — Congressman Robert Leggett brings up the subject of his sex scandal himself in campaign talks. As he explained to one reporter, "The best defense is a good offense."

The seven-term Democrat was giving speeches and meeting with constituents Friday during his first week of concentrated campaign appearances, trying to undo any effects of the disclosures about his personal life.

They included revelations that Leggett supported a former mistress and their two children in a house whose ownership he had transferred to them by signing his wife's name on the deed and allegations that another affair, with Korean-born Capitol staffer Suzi Thomson, had included contacts with South Korean intelligence officers.

"MY LIFE IS OBVIOUSLY an open book," Leggett told one audience Friday in this Sacramento suburb.

He said the personal matters disclosed in newspaper accounts were irrelevant and the implications of wrongdoing were untrue.

Without going into details, he said he wanted to talk about his personal life early in the campaign, "and then not really get into debate in October as to when was the last time I kissed my wife, or whether or not we sleep in separate beds."

His wife, Barbara, will be campaigning with him later, he added.

As for intimations of security leaks or improprieties, Leggett said he has challenged anyone to present any evidence of them.

"To date, I haven't heard one word," he said. "There's no charges, there's no file. There's nothing to dismiss."

But the congressman, earlier considered a cinch for re-election, now faces a heightened effort from Republicans backing challenger Albert Dehr, as well as a potentially formidable Democratic write-in candidate, Sacramento County Supervisor Ted Sheedy.

Leggett said he expects to spend about 50 of the 70 days before the election campaigning in Northern California's 4th District.

Columnist blamed for Baker V.P. loss

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Nashville attorney says Sen. Howard Baker topped the list of President Ford's potential running mates until "one of the best-timed cheap shots in history" knocked him out of the running, only hours before the final selection was made.

Lamar Alexander, a former White House aide and onetime member of Baker's staff, told the Nashville Banner that Baker probably lost the Republican vice-presidential nomination because of a story about his wife published by columnist Jack Anderson last Thursday.

The Banner quoted Alexander on Saturday as saying that Baker's wife, Joy, was involved in a minor traffic accident in Washington on Aug. 12 and that Anderson's column quoted the driver of the other car as saying the Tennessee senator's wife had been drinking.

The column came just one day after it was disclosed that Mrs. Baker, 47, had been hospitalized in 1971 for treatment of a drinking problem.

Alexander, congressional liaison aide in the White House during the first administration of former President Nixon, said Baker's staff denied Mrs. Baker had been drinking before the accident.

He said Baker press secretary Ron McMahan produced affidavits Thursday afternoon from investigating officers and statements from witnesses that showed no evidence of drinking by Mrs. Baker.

Alexander was also quoted as saying that Anderson telephoned Baker in Kansas City and said he realized some of the information in his column about Mrs. Baker may not have been accurate.

"He asked the senator if he would like for him to get in touch with someone from the White House, but Baker declined the offer," Alexander was quoted as saying.

Alexander, who was in Kansas City for the GOP National Convention, told the Banner he understood that Baker was first on Ford's list of running mates as late as 6 a.m. Thursday, and that as late as 9 a.m. that day the eventual nominee, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, was quoted as saying he expected Baker to be chosen.

At about 11 a.m., Ford selected Dole.

Anderson could not be immediately reached for comment on Alexander's statements.

A Ford administration source said Saturday night that neither Mrs. Baker's past drinking problem nor Anderson's account of the traffic accident played a part in determining the choice of the President's running mate.

In Kansas City on Thursday, as the Bakers prepared to return home, Mrs. Baker said she was not upset about disclosure of her drinking problem.

"It's no secret," she said.

Dykema blasts Assembly action

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Dale Dykema, Republican nominee for the 58th Assembly District seat of Fred Chel, Democratic incumbent, Saturday attacked the Assembly on its handling of property-tax relief, welfare fraud and busing.

"On each of these issues," Dykema said, "the Assembly has made the situation worse by action or lack of action.

"Legislative inaction on property taxes has become a state scandal. At least five different bills that would have reduced the property-tax burden have been killed either in Assembly committee or on the Assembly floor."

He said the Assembly made the situation worse by establishing new programs without voting money to pay for them, forcing counties to raise property taxes to pay for the state-ordered programs.

Dykema said the highlight of Assembly action on welfare fraud "was in voting to repeal a section of the tax code that allows examination of the tax returns of welfare applicants and recipients."

He said the Assembly has refused to take proper action on busing, pointing out that "contrary to what most politicians would have you believe, the State Assembly can take steps toward reducing or eliminating forced busing. But the Assembly has ignored any proposals that would give parents more freedom in deciding where their children will attend school."

He said the Assembly's treatment of these issues "shows that they just don't care about the people's dollars, wishes or freedom."

Dykema's headquarters also announced Saturday that Dykema's campaign coordinator, John Philip Sousa IV, will be in Washington Monday to participate in the induction of his great-grandfather, the march king, into the Hall of Fame for Great Americans.

The ceremony is scheduled for Monday evening on the John Philip Sousa stage in the concert hall at Kennedy Center.

BIRCH MEETING

The San Pedro chapter of the John Birch Society will have its monthly educational meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at 1001 S. Pacific Ave., San Pedro.

The program, featuring two short films, will cover "forced busing, functional illiterates, brainwashing and lack of control by parents of their local schools," according to society spokesman Donald D. Ellenbaum.

Reagan wants say in U.S. policy

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press

Ronald Reagan says he intends to have a voice in shaping national policy and does not rule out the possibility of making another run for the presidency. But he quickly adds that, "certainly elected office is not on my mind."

The 65-year-old Reagan plans to resume writing his weekly newspaper column, making speaking tours and doing radio commentaries, which were on the air daily on 350 stations before the former actor and sportscaster entered the race nine months ago against President Ford.

"We aren't going to go back and sit in a rocking chair on the front porch and say, 'Well, that's all for us,'" Reagan told campaign volunteers and staff workers a few hours after defeat in what turned out to be the strongest challenge to an incumbent president from within his own party in 64 years.

REAGAN said on his way home to California from Kansas City Friday that he will campaign for Ford, but only to the extent that time is available after his other activities.

Did the President ask Reagan to actively campaign?

"He said he wanted my help, yes. We couldn't get into specifics because there has been no campaign planning as yet. I will have one problem. I have to go back to making a living here, and it's going to be contingent on that. I'll do what I can," Reagan said.

He said if Ford loses in November to Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter, he and other conservatives will reassess the future of the Republican Party. But Reagan says that does not necessarily mean he would join or lead a third party.

"IF THERE is such a loss by Ford in November, I think the Republican Party, many of us, are going to have to take a look, because there is a great majority about this country with a philosphy which is contrary to the Democratic Party philosophy. . . .

"We really have to have a reassessment of where we go and how we put that great new majority together," he said.

But Reagan answered indirectly when asked if he would ever lead such a party: "I don't think you lead something unless someone wants you to be a leader."

HOWEVER, Reagan is unabashed about his ambition to retain the devoted conservative constituency that took him to within 60 delegates in a convention of 2,259 of toppling the President.

"I'm going to do everything I can to see that that stays together in order to be an influence," Reagan said.

Reagan says he believes his following is a majority of the grass-roots voters, if not the convention delegates.

"I think there's no question that the bulk of the people in this country are, if you have to put a label on them, conservative, whether they know it or not," he said.

LOOKING back briefly, Reagan said he would have won the presidential nomination if it had not been for the intense pressure of party leaders on delegates who really preferred him.

"This was immense. It was one thing for a delegate in his home town to get a telephone call from the state chairman or whatever, and be able to say, 'I'm for Reagan,' or 'I'm uncommitted.'

"But something we hadn't anticipated was the pressure there, literally entrapped with the pressure of their peers all around them, far from their homes, and with all the forces of the establishment in there beating on them," he said.

ASIDE from that, Reagan said the one thing he would have done differently in his campaign would have been to cut back on appearances in California to spend more time in Ohio.

"If we had it to do over again, knowing what we know now with hindsight, of how safe we were in California, I believe that four or five days campaigning in Ohio and we would have carried Ohio."

Reagan won California's primary by 736,000 votes, carrying his home state by a 2-to-1 margin. On the same day he lost Ohio and 88 of its 97 delegates by a 10 per cent 92,000-vote margin.

But that is past. Now Reagan is looking ahead.

Staff aide Peter Hannaford said Reagan will meet Monday with the producer of his former radio show—which provided most of Reagan's net income of $282,253 last year—with the intention of getting the "American Viewpoint" commentaries back on the air by mid-September.

ASIDE from that, Reagan's future plans are uncertain. Asked if his race against Ford was definitely his final run for the presidency, Reagan left the door open just slightly.

"I learned a long time ago as I said so often, that I'm never going to again make a declaration about that (saying never). Certainly elected office is not in my mind."

The presidency was the only political office Reagan had even considered since leaving California's governor's office 19 months ago. Retiring after two terms as governor, Reagan rejected strong pleas from backers to run for the U.S. Senate. And he repeatedly said he would never under any circumstances accept the vice presidency.

BUT HE will be nearly 70 before there is another opportunity to try for the White House, and it sounded as if the thought of his age were somewhere in the back of Reagan's mind when he struggled to hold back tears and speak to a group of young campaign volunteers the morning after his defeat.

"You stay in there, stay in there with the same belief and the same faith that made you do what you are doing here," he said.

"The individuals on the stage may change. But the cause is there, and the cause will prevail because it's right. So don't give up your ideals. Don't compromise. Don't turn to expediency and don't, for heaven's sakes . . . don't get cynical."

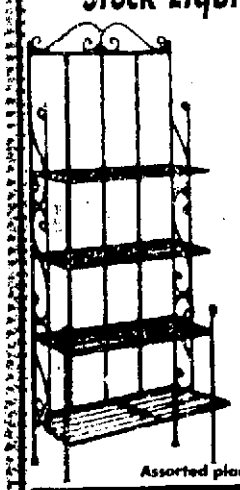
BUT REAGAN, who even on the longest and most grueling days of his campaign looked years younger than his age, says age is not a consideration in his plans.

Ex-governor given nomination

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Democratic Committee Saturday awarded former Gov. Warren Hearnes the nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Hearnes had been defeated in the Aug. 3 primary by Rep. Jerry Litton, who was killed in an election-night plane crash.

Litton, 39; his wife, Sharon, 38; their children Scott, 12, and Linda, 13; pilot Paul Rupp Jr., 44; and Rupp's 18-year-old son, Paul Rupp III, died in the crash at Chillicothe on their way to a victory party in Kansas City.



The committee met Saturday to fill the vacancy caused by Litton's death and awarded the nomination to Hearnes.

MR. AND MRS. WOODROW WILSON

LEADERS

A woman in the Oval Office . . .

By SID MOODY
Associated Press

Man has walked on the moon. May not, some day, woman sit in the Oval Office?

When and if that day comes, will she remember that she isn't the first, not quite? For not long ago, the vast power of the presidency was transmitted through the hands of a woman, one who perhaps fittingly was the great-great-great-great-great-great granddaughter of Pocahontas.

Twenty-Fifth of a Series

Her name was EdithBolling Wilson, a well-born Virginian widow who ran a jewelry shop in Washington, D.C., had but two years formal schooling and little concern with politics until she became the second wife, in 1916, of the 28th president of the United States, Woodrow Wilson.

Wilson had been widowed himself in 1914 and met his wife-to-be through the fiance of the White House physician, Dr. Cary Grayson. Grayson and the handsome Edith Bolling Galt would make a largely unrecorded history. By becoming the caretakers of Wilson when he suffered a paralyzing thrombosis in October 1919, they became in effect the caretakers of the presidency itself.

Blunt and outspoken if need be, opinionated but a devoted wife, Mrs. Wilson would say: "I am not interested in the president of the United States. I am interested in my husband and his health." And that is how she ran the office for a year and a half.

Wilson was victim of his ideal, the League of Nations. The signs of his breakdown were there but misidagnosed during his emotional but exhausting diplomacy in Europe after the Great War had ended. Slight eccentricities had appeared in the logical, pious man who had been a professor and president of Princeton University. He suspected his European house staff of spying on him, worried over inconsequentials, such as a room's arrangement.

He returned from Europe to a draining struggle over ratification of his League proposal with the Senate, refusing any compromise. His obduracy, his slight shifts in character were consistent with the onset of small cerebral blockages.

Visibly exhausted, he nonetheless embarked on a nationwide train crusade to rally the American people to his support.

"If this guarantee is not lived up to, I want to say that in another generation or two we must have another and far more disastrous war," he prophesied in Omaha. Later, in Pueblo, Colo., he was stricken and returned to Washington where he was laid half paralyzed and near death in the great bed of Abraham Lincoln.

A curtain of silence fell over the White House. Memoranda, reports, appeals for decision kept flowing into the president's office. And were unanswered. Some were trivial. Midshipmen from Annapolis had become drunk on a summer training cruise and acquired "immoral diseases" along the waterfront. But they stayed on at the Naval Academy because their dismissal lay unauthorized.

In desperation, Secretary of State Robert Lansing began calling Cabinet meetings. Some time later, Wilson found out about it and fired Lansing for "disloyalty." "I hate Lansing," said his wife.

What reached the lucid but crippled mind of the president did so at the discretion of his wife, who gauged its importance on what effect it might have on his weakened constitution. Of the Constitution she was not concerned.

The amiable vice president, Thomas Marshall, whose diagnosis of the nation's greatest need is best remembered as being a good five-cent cigar, finally stirred himself to ask Mrs. Wilson if there were anything he could do. If she could think of anything, she'd call him, she said. Afraid to take any initiative, Marshall told any official callers he could not act for Wilson but, "I'm glad to see you just the same."

Occasionally, papers submitted for decision would come back with notations on the margin in Mrs. Wilson's untrained handwriting that sometimes ran over onto the envelope.

And yet the country survived. And so did Wilson. In time he succeeded in forcing himself to walk, a pathetic shuffle in which he dragged his deadened left leg behind him. He managed to resume Cabinet meetings, sometimes breaking into embarrassed tears for no apparent reason.

SENATOR Albert Fall, who was to go to jail for his corruption in the Harding administration, finally managed a meeting with Wilson, actually to determine if the president were capable of remaining in office. Wilson rose brilliantly to the occasion while his wife hovered near by, and when the flustered Fall saw his hopes of arguing removal of the president dashed, he told Wilson he had been praying for him.

"Which way, Senator?" Wilson replied.

Indeed, buoyed by his wife, Wilson hoped to win the Democratic nomination in 1920 in a final battle for the League, even though it meant defeating his son-in-law, William McAdoo, another candidate. It came to naught, and the Democratic nominee, James M. Cox, was swamped by Harding, who pledged a return to "normalcy," but ran an administration that was no better and probably worse than Mrs. Wilson's.

How total was her control of the crippled president and thus his government remains a secret of the sick room. Edith Bolling Wilson died in 1961 having remained true to her long-held word: "I am never interviewed. I have no comment to make."

Debates—a victory for voter league

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press

If the League of Women Voters has its way, the first nationally televised debate between President Ford and Democrat Jimmy Carter will be on Tuesday, Sept. 28, in St. Louis.

Somehow, so far, these determined, careful men and women have had their way.

They've been pressing for nationally televised debates between the two major candidates long before those candidates were chosen. The League's Board of Directors made the debates a target at the annual convention in May, and League delegates met the proposal by their President, Ruth Clusen of Green Bay, Wis., with a standing ovation.

The league is currently circulating a petition with a target of four million signatures, it says:

"We, the people, urge the major-party candidates for president to meet in public debate on the issues facing the country."

The league hoped that its petitions would be in by Labor Day, but it now looks as if the two candidates have pre-empted that.

The league's executive director, Peggy Lampl, said the league also embarked on a national public relations campaign in May to convince the candidates they should debate.

Carter accepted the idea in principle more than a week ago, and has named his press aide, Jody Powell, to work with the league's steering committee. He has not, however, accepted the league's auspices yet.

President Ford, in his acceptance speech, also accepted the idea of a national debate, but did not specify who should organize it. The league hopes to meet with Ford people in the near future, Ms. Lampl said.

The league would like to see three presidential debates, one each on domestic issues, foreign policy, and the role of the presidency. It has proposed the weeks of Oct. 11 and 25 for the final two.

It is also considering a proposal for another televised debate the week of Oct. 18 between the two major party vice-presidential candidates. Republican Robert Dole and Democrat Walter Mondale have agreed to a debate, though again no structure has been arranged.

So far, Ms. Lampl says, ABC and NBC have agreed to cover league-sponsored debates.

Colorful canvas

During the television coverage of the summer Olympics in Montreal, we watched the progress of artist Leroy Neiman's large canvas depicting the many sports represented at the games. Each day he added his impressions of that day's events. We've been wondering if copies suitable for framing will be made available. C.J., Norwalk.

Reproductions and limited-edition prints of the 8- by 12-foot mixed media canvas will be available eventually, Neiman told Action Line, but no definite arrangements for their production have yet been made. It has not even been determined where the original painting will be permanently displayed. "When reproductions are available, it won't be kept a secret," Neiman said. He suggested that in the Long Beach area they probably will be on sale at the Upstairs Gallery, 3850 Cherry Ave., which currently sells prints of some of his other works. Neiman, 49, was born in St. Paul, Minn., and was trained at the University of Chicago and the Art Institute of Chicago. He lives and works in New York. Specializing in sports, he has illustrated many articles in Sports Illustrated magazine. He has written a book, "Leroy Neiman Art and Lifestyle," which is available as a reference work at the Long Beach Library, 4500 E. Atherton St. You can write to Neiman at his studio, 1 W. 67th St., New York, N.Y. 10023.

Lost and found

Last April 20 my husband was fired from his job as assistant manager of Big Jeff's Car Wash, 3525 E. Anaheim St. At that time he got his two last checks totaling $180. On the way home he realized he didn't have his checks with him, so he stopped and called the car wash to see if they were there. He was told they hadn't been found. He called every day after that, but the checks didn't turn up, and my husband couldn't get the manager to stop payment on the old checks and issue him a new one. We have written them two letters and called many times. We really need the money because we just had a baby and my husband just now finally got another job. Can you help us? Mrs. M.H., Long Beach.

By now you have received your husband's replacement check. "I had sufficient reason not to trust him," Jerry Smith, owner of Big Jeff's told Action Line. "I didn't really believe he had lost the checks. We in good faith issued the checks, and what happened to them after that wasn't my responsibility." At our request, however, Smith agreed to check the bank statements and issue you a new check if the old ones had not been cashed.

Pet peeve

We have many neighbors who love their pets so much they let them run so that everyone in the neighborhood can "enjoy" them. I know there is a leash law and that it is illegal to let pets soil other people's property, but Animal Shelter officials have to witness the offense before they can cite the owners. Since this is not often practical, is there any evidence I could provide them, such as a color picture of the pet "in action"? Our leash law is great, but it is not really enforceable. F.H., Long Beach.

Your best bet is to call the Long Beach Animal Shelter, 595-5449, as often as the pet is out, said Shelter Director Dorothy Monnier. If they cannot get a truck to your area immediately, they often will call the owner of the pet and tell him that there have been complaints about his dog. Shelter officials also will check the name and address of the pet owner to be sure his dog is licensed. If there is no record of the required license, the owner will be contacted again. It is a difficult situation, Miss Monnier admitted, because there is no way an individual can provide evidence of a misdemeanor being committed. The offense must be witnessed by an officer of the law. "We do send a truck out as often as possible," she said, "but a stray dog is low priority compared to a dog bite, an injured dog or a dead dog." But she said every complaint is dealt with, and she, herself, often calls or writes individuals whose pets are causing problems.

Not so fine print

A couple of weeks ago someone wrote some graffiti on our block wall. Many of my neighbors have the same problem and it makes the alley look disorderly. Is there any way I can get it off? K.W., Long Beach.

Not easily. You can try brushing it with a cleaning solvent such as muriatic acid or acetone, but they may not do a satisfactory job. The best way to remove the marks is to have the wall sand-blasted with a fine silica sand, but this can be expensive. The other obvious alternative is to paint the entire wall with a paint designed for brick or concrete. Most paint stores carry this type of paint and will mix it to any shade you wish. Then you can just touch up over any subsequent graffiti.

day, "committing espionage and a hostile act."

A broadcast of the report, monitored in Tokyo, did not specify what the "hostile act" was, but it said it was "linked with the provocations" that the United States "is conducting without letup in the joint security area."

The 151-mile-long DMZ was quiet elsewhere but armies on both sides were on the alert, and Washington sources said the 51,000-ton aircraft carrier Midway and its 75 warplanes, four frigates and a guided missile cruiser were en route from Japan to Korea.

Pentagon officials have stressed that the military moves, including earlier reinforcement of jet fighter units in South Korea, did not foreshadow military retaliation for the killings last Wednesday but were aimed at discouraging possible North Korean military action.

The official statement of the United Nations, or Allied, Command said merely that a UNC work party had felled the tree and "got safely out."

A free-for-all between Communist and allied soldiers, ending in the two American deaths and injuries on both sides, broke out Wednesday when the North Koreans tried to stop an allied team from pruning branches from the tree, which the U.N. Command said hindered its observation of the North Korean side.

Bonifas and Barrett were axed and beaten to death by North Korean guards.

Military sources have reported that three North Koreans were killed, but this was not confirmed. North Korean broadcasts have mentioned no deaths on either side.

Five hours after Saturday's tree-cutting, U.S. Rear Adm. Mark P. Frudden, chief allied representative on the joint armistice commission, reportedly had a 13-minute secret talk at Panmunjom with Maj. Gen. Han Ju-kyong, the chief North Korean representative.

A Seoul newspaper said the two met at the Communists' request and Han replied to an allied letter to North Korean President Kim Il-sung protesting the killing of the Americans.

South Korean President Chung Hee Park met with his National Security Council on Saturday. Park's spokesman said afterward, "Tension on the Korean peninsula is mounting higher" than at any time since the Korean armistice was signed at Panmunjom in 1953. The outcome of the crisis is strictly up to North Korea, he added.

Koreans fumed, then gave the order, 'Kill'

Korea charged that was a grave new military provocation.

Panmunjom is the only sector in the DMZ where American forces are stationed. Serving as the permanent conference site for occasional North-South meetings, the cramped joint security zone of about 850 yards in diameter at times becomes an emotional pressure cooker.

THERE HAVE been numerous incidents of fist fights and oral abuse between the guards of the two sides. One of the ugliest was an attack on Maj. William D. Henderson, who suffered a fractured larynx after being kicked by North Korean guards on June 30, 1975.

A U.S. diplomat said the North Korean guards are believed to be under standing orders to use as much force as possible to "dominate and intimidate" American and South Korean guards.

The tree-pruning incident has brought new attention to the Korean problem and the presence here of about 41,000 U.S. military personel.

The clash also came at a time when President Chung Hee Park of South Korea has been using the threat of attack from the North to quell political dissidence. A 1975 presidential decree bans virtually all opposition to Park's government.

But the North-South situation was not always tense. In 1972, Park and Kim Il-sung announced talks on eventual reunification of North and South, but the meetings soon bogged down after North Korea demanded that Park scrap his anti-Communist laws.

The sharp denunciations of the Panmunjom killings last week by the United States and Park's threat to retaliate swiftly in the event of another incident, coupled with North Korea's military alert, raised the question in some quarters whether a new war is possible.

South Korea enjoys numerical superiority, with 625,000 military personnel out of its 35 million people. But North Korea, with 467,000 soldiers out of a population of 15.9 million, has more than twice the number of aircraft — 588 to 216.

New bribe arrests hit politicians

New York Times Service

TOKYO — Prosecutors arrested a former cabinet minister and leading political elder Saturday as investigation of the Lockheed Aircraft bribery scandal moved deeper into the ranks of Japanese politicians.

Tomisaburo Hashimoto, 75-year-old former minister of transport, was charged with accepting a bribe of 5 million yen ($14,000) to push the purchase of Lockheed aircraft by All Nippon Airways, Japan's largest airline in terms of passengers, planes and flights.

Hashimoto's arrest was the 18th in the multimillion-dollar Lockheed scandal here and the third arrest of a politician. All three have been from the governing Liberal Democratic Party.

Former Premier Kakuei Tanaka was arrested last month and indicted Monday for allegedly accepting a $1.6-million bribe to use his office to help the Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

And Friday night Takayuki Sato, former vice minister of transport with Hashimoto, was arrested, also on bribery charges.

$2,000 reward for tip in mausoleum slaying

Compton police acting on an anonymous telephone tip at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 2 found the beaten and strangled body of Martha Edgington, 78, of San Gabriel, lying in the second level of the Compton Mausoleum at 1515 E. Compton Blvd. The victim was fully clothed.

Investigators said Mrs. Edgington, last seen alive in San Gabriel the previous day, had been known to make frequent trips to the mausoleum to visit the crypts of a daughter and a son-in-law.

Detectives have been unable to find a motive or any leads to a suspect in the bizarre slaying.

Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of Mrs. Edgington's killer.

Age of the microprocessor

Tiny computer is big business

By RHONDA SEEGAL
Associated Press

It's the brains of a taxi meter that keeps track of five different fares simultaneously. It makes a pocket calculator talk. It will regulate speed on a 1977-model car. It tells a sewing machine how to stitch.

The device is a tiny computer called a microprocessor. And it is being used in a growing number of consumer and commercial products. It is beginning to have an impact comparable to the advent of the transistor 25 years ago.

In the past year alone, microprocessors — the size of a fingernail but with the capability of a room-size computer — also have been used in telephones, postal scales, games, microwave ovens, traffic lights, surveyors' equipment, a blood analyzer and supermarket checkout counters.

The transistor made possible low-cost electronics; everyone could buy a portable radio. Now microprocessors will enable the widespread use of low-cost computing.

Intel Corp., National Semiconductors, Texas Instruments, Motorola, Signetics and others are manufacturing microprocessors by the thousands. Most of their factories are in an area south of San Francisco that has become known in the industry as "Silicon Valley." Microprocessors are made by using a photographic process to reproduce on a small silicon wafer the numerous transistors, resistors and diodes of conventional computers. The silicon wafer is then encased in ceramic. The finished unit includes the wafer and sometimes memory and input-output devices.

EDITOR'S NOTE — The microprocessor is not a dramatic breakthrough in computer technology but rather the culmination of a trend — a culmination that makes computers finally available for hundreds of consumer products.

Mass production of microprocessors is reducing their cost. Some are priced as low as $20, down from more than $100 a year ago. The dropping unit cost is making microprocessors less expensive than mechanical or electronic devices now used in some consumer and commercial products. The microprocessor is faster, more reliable and smarter.

Take the taxi meter. Bru-Der Instrument Corp. of Vancouver is marketing a $305 meter equipped with microprocessor that keeps track of and displays the fares of each of five passengers boarding at different locations. No mechanical taxi meter does that.

A year ago, Amana Refrigeration introduced a microwave oven regulated by microprocessors. It has a keyboard and digital display in place of the old-fashioned knobs. Using the keyboard, the cook programs in type of meat, weight and whether it's to be medium, rare or well-done. The microprocessor then becomes the cookbook.

Singer has placed a microprocessor in a sewing machine. It tells the machine how to make complicated stitches.

"Speech Plus," a calculator built by Telecentury systems of California, uses a microprocessor to speak instructions to the user. "It's about the size of a paperback book and it has a 24-word vocabulary," explains Telecentury's Steve Brugler of the $395 calculator. "Some schools are using them for remedial students because the immediate audio feedback reinforces the learning."

Punch a key — representing a number, an instruction or a total — and the calculator in deep tones repeats the key instruction aloud.

Lately, thousands of people are buying microprocessor units that create video games when attached to television sets. This is the fastest-growing use of microprocessors. For as little as $60, a computerized control box transforms a home TV screen into an arena for electronic tennis, ping pong, hockey, handball, chess and tick-tack-toe.

Researchers at Bell Telephone Laboratories have developed several applications, including a check-verification system and an office phone unit. The phone unit repeatedly dials busy numbers, automatically forwards calls and pages executives — flexibility never before available to a receptionist.

Another microprocessor phone device stores as many as 10 numbers and automatically dials one of them when the caller pushes a button.

CHECKERS at some supermarkets are using a microprocessor system to identify and register the price of every grocery item passed before an electronic eye built into the counter.

There are microprocessors now in store scales that weigh and compute the prices of purchases.

National Controls has developed a postal scale that is programed with postage rates, Zip Codes and the Zip Code location of the scale itself. It weighs a letter or package and computes the exact postage when the operator keys in the Zip Code destination. Although the scale costs $5,000 and up, some companies with big daily mailings say it eliminates excessive postage and thus more than earns back its cost.

Microprocessors are working for communities, too. TRW and Comstar, for example, have cooperated on a project to regulate traffic lights in Baltimore.

Honeywell has used the tiny microprocessor in a blood analyzer for physicians' offices. Surveyors have from Hewlett-Packard a microprocessor tool that computes heights, distances and angles.

THE AUTO industry is a major potential market for microprocessor makers. In recent years, General Motors has built several test cars, using computers of one type or another to control fuel injection, automatic transmission and dashboard information.

"Primarily we're working on engine control, the air-fuel ratio, exhaust and spark timing," says John Auman, executive engineer at GM in Detroit.

The microprocessor is not a dramatic breakthrough in computer technology, but rather the culmination of a trend. The first electronic computer was developed at the University of Pennsylvania in the early 1940s. It used vacuum tubes and cost close to $20 million. In the '50s transistors came into use. And in 1963 the minicomputer was introduced, the size of a two-drawer filing cabinet. The minicomputer used the technique of "large-scale integration" — a way to shrink the size of transistors and pack them more closely. The advent of the microprocessor in the early '70s was the latest link in the development chain, the link that finally makes computers available for many consumer products.

BUT THERE is a problem of training personnel.

"What we're seeing on the West Coast is that 40 per cent of the engineers are scared to even open an operations manual on microprocessors because everything they've learned up to now is obsolete," says Bru-Der President James Bruce-Sanders.

"We went through the same thing when the transistor replaced the vacuum tube," remembers Harvey G. Cragon, head of microprocessor applications at Texas Instruments. "It took five to seven years before the engineering caught up with the technology. A generation of graduates is what it takes to turn the corner."

Stephen Ward of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology predicts that people will use microprocessors to control systems throughout the house, everything from turning on lights to menu planning.

Angela Davis looses her anger on North Carolina

By ELIZABETH DUFF
Knight News Service

For the past four years, Angela Davis has criss-crossed the country sharing her anger with nearly every cause of the moment. Playing on her explosive name, she has briefly illuminated struggles ranging from a Philadelphia teachers' strike to Puerto Rican nationalism.

But all that is ending now, for Angela Davis, the peripatetic warrior of the left, has finally found a target for her anger, something that focuses her very cause — the State of North Carolina.

"The repression there is more systematic and more devastating, affecting more people than anywhere else in the country," she told a press conference the other day.

"SOMETHING very dangerous, very frightening, is going on in the State of North Carolina."

Oppressive conditions in North Carolina textile plants," long hours, low wages and a weak union movement; all combine to give the lie to "the New South," Davis said.

Thus, blacks must move "with an urgency I cannot emphasize enough."

She isn't fighting alone. With State Rep. Julian Bond, D-Ga., and other black leaders, Davis has formed the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression, an organization she hopes will target North Carolina the way the civil rights movement targeted Mississippi a decade ago.

But Davis will be leading this fight. She's a woman whose contradictions uniquely qualify her for the job.

Born in January 1944 to two schoolteachers living in the heart of what passed for the industrialized South, Birmingham, Ala., Angela Davis grew up knowing that "if we went into a store and there wasn't a water fountain with 'colored' on it, we couldn't get a drink of water."

AND YET Ms. Davis became the pinnacle of middle-class respectability. Already studying piano by age 2, she became a "straight A" student, joined the Girl Scouts, attended Sunday school and, under parental duress, took dancing lessons.

Each summer for three years she traveled to New York with her mother, who was studying for her master's degree at New York University.

By age 15, she says, "I planned to go to medical school at Fisk University (then all black), not to become a nurse, but to become a doctor."

BUT something happened that abruptly rechanneled her life: The Quakers, who had been trying to give promising southern blacks a northern education, selected her for the Elizabeth Irwin School in New York.

More a Professor than an Evangelist

She left the South to live with the family of a white, Episcopalian minister who later described her as "a darling child, a sweet growing girl, shy and demure, but one with a great deal of grit."

Riveted to her books, she painstakingly repaired her education by repeating her junior year, mastering her worst subject, French, and eventually winning a scholarship to Brandeis University. Graduating in 1965 magna cum laude, she had already spent a year at the Sorbonne in Paris and would spend two years studying in Germany.

At the same time, Ms. Davis' brothers and sister were also moving into the American Dream: Her sister Fanice graduated from Swarthmore, her brother Ben became a defensive back for the Cleveland Browns and her other brother, Reginald, graduated from Defiance College in Ohio.

Asked why her family was so spectacularly successful, she considered awhile and answered:

"I don't think it has so much to do with my family as the struggle of black people," she said softly. "It just happens that we were able to benefit from the opportunities that came our way. Because those opportunities weren't there for all black people, they couldn't make it.

"I knew a lot of talented people, people who were as talented as I was, who didn't make it."

Studious and aloof, Ms. Davis found her interest gradually shifted to philosophy, and at Brandeis she met the quintessential philosopher of the 1960s — Herbert Marcuse, a Communist.

They developed a kinetic student-teacher relationship that lasted for years and drew her to California, where she studied under him for her doctorate and took a teaching job at the University of California.

Now Davis wears her sympathies casually; a gold hammer and sickle necklace shows she's a Communist, too. She claims it was never a secret.

Others say differently.

When Ronald Reagan, then California governor, discovered her sympathies in 1969, he fired her — and Angela Davis, the daughter of the American Dream, promptly became a cause celebre, the darling of the revolutionaries.

THEN, ON Aug. 7, 1970, three San Quentin prisoners on trial in San Rafael took five hostages, including a judge, and demanded in exchange the release of the so-called "Soledad brothers," three Soledad convicts charged with killing a guard.

The judge and all three prisoners died in a gun battle with police.

One week later a warrant was issued for Angela Davis' arrest. The guns the trio used had allegedly been traced to her.

It would be another two years before a jury would acquit Ms. Davis of all charges — and in the interim she would spend much of her time alone, with only a radio, a few books and cigarettes in solitary confinement.

When she was finally released, a heroine, she became a kind of missionary proselytizing left-wing causes.

A striking woman, tall and pencil-thin with an electric Afro hairstyle and puce nail polish on fingers and toes, she makes her ease in a quiet, singsong, voice.

More a professor than an evangelist, she refuses to give the simple, emotional answer.

INSTEAD she explains her position patiently, using doctrinaire Marxist logic like building blocs, relating the pay of Angolan workers to the burning of a church in North Carolina, all the while delicately jabbing the air with her fingers.

And yet, muted as this is, her enemies are still trying to find their range. Like the night she was leaving a New Jersey fund-raising event and was followed by state police.

She said they were carrying riot guns when they stopped her car for a "routine" check. "The tension was so thick — if any of us had made any kind of abrupt move . . . they would not only have killed us but probably each other in the chaos," she recalled.

Eventually, they released her unharmed.

But sometimes she finds her enemies are simply amusing. Once, in Louisville, for example, she was "very shocked" in the middle of an organizing campaign when she was given given the key to the city.

She accepted it — as a symbol of the people, not as a gift from the city administration.

But shortly thereafter the administration was mortified to learn that Davis was a committed Communist. Quietly, but firmly, the mayor asked her to return their key.

She refused, she explained, smiling, because "the people haven't asked for it back."

Ban on shipment of horses sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., Saturday said he will introduce a bill next week to ban shipment of horses overseas for slaughter.

He said Canada put such a ban into effect in 1974 and a Department of Agriculture advisory committee has recommended similar action by the United States.

"Many persons experienced in the handling and transport of horses contend that there simply is no humane way to ship large consignments of horses by sea over long distances," Williams said.

America's home for royalty

By RON LAYTNER
Special to The I.P-T

Recently, the duchess of Windsor, Frank Sinatra, Princess Margaret, Princess Grace of Monaco and Betty Ford all spent the weekend under the same roof.

It cost them thousands, but others paid less than $50 a day. All were staying at the Waldorf.

The Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City is considered to be America's royal palace. For over 45 years history has been made within its walls.

THIRTY-TWO United Nations ambassadors live at the Waldorf; there are rumors that the Syrian and Israeli ambassadors play poker there on Wednesday nights. Kings and queens and movie stars walk its halls.

The hotel's 33-man security force is expert in diplomatic protocol and international politics. Just this last year it held its breath when Palestinian Yasser Arafat and Israeli Gen. Moshe Dayan both stayed in the hotel at the same time. They were protected by their own bodyguards, city police and agents of the U.S. Secret Service. Although there were threats, nothing happened. The Waldorf made sure the two never met.

Similarly, over many years but with far less tension, the hotel insured that longtime tenant Gen. Douglas MacArthur never ran into his arch-enemy, President Truman, who had fired him.

The hotel was designed for privacy. It has its own driveway, and through it arrive and depart in secrecy the most powerful persons in the world.

Almost anyone important in modern times has stayed at the Waldorf: Churchill, Einstein, Khruschev, Nehru, Golda Meir, Queen Elizabeth, DeGaulle, every American president since it opened in 1931, all astronauts visiting New York, Russian cosmonauts, cardinals and others, such as Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Liberace, the prime ministers of almost all Commonwealth countries and the kings, queens and presidents of almost everywhere else.

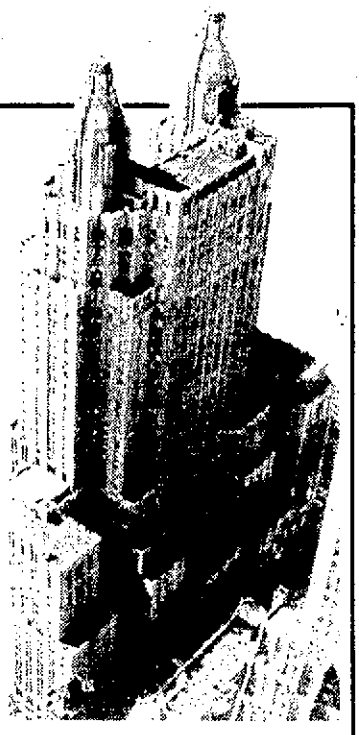
THE WALDORF is 42 stories high and occupies a block of some of New York's choicest location. The value of the land beneath it increases every minute. And the Waldorf extends downward, too. Far below its lowest basement, the hotel has its own private railway station, unused for 20 years.

There are 1,900 rooms and 23 banquet halls, 18 kitchens and a main kitchen a city block square. More than 2,000 people work for the hotel. More than 6,000 meals are prepared each day and 75,000 dishes washed. In one sitting, 5,000 persons can eat at one time. With just 30 minutes' advance notice, chefs can prepare dinner for 500.

Strange jobs abound. Two men do nothing but smash liquor and wine bottles. Another has done nothing but make orange juice for 25 years. He loves it.

Four men continually shine silverware, and another is dedicated to raising and lowering the hotel's 97 flags. Two women work eight hours a day, year after year, bent over, prowling corridors searching for holes in carpets. And eight upholsterers work full-time caring for the hotel's precious antique furniture. At the Waldorf a Louis XIV chair is real.

LOVE AFFAIRS begin and end at the hotel. Once Elsa Maxwell arrived in the Grand Ballroom riding on an elephant. Next day columnist Dorothy Kilgallen reported she couldn't tell which was the elephant. The fight never ended.



Another time Princess Margaret of Britain met for the first time in years with the duchess of Windsor, long snubbed by British royalty for causing the 1936 abdication of King Edward VIII, husband of the duchess and Margaret's uncle.

In fact, the Waldorf was begun in a feud. In 1893 William Waldorf Astor decided to spite his wealthy aunt, socialite Caroline Astor, who owned an adjoining mansion at 34th Street and Fifth Avenue. He ripped down his home and put up the original 13-story Waldorf Hotel.

It became such a success that four years later Caroline's son, John Jacob Astor IV, knocked down her mansion and erected the Astoria Hotel, 17 stories high. The two joined and lasted in splender until 1929, when they were torn down to make way for the Empire State Building.

Today's Waldorf-Astoria opened in 1931 during the great world depression. It was expected to fail and was called a folly, but President Hoover, in a special Washington radio broadcast, hailed it as an "... exhibition of courage and confidence in the whole nation."

On opening day 20,000 stormed the hotel. 50 Girl Scouts served as guides and the first meal was served to the king and queen of Siam. Royalty has eaten at the Waldorf ever since. The hotel went on to become one of the world's greatest, and President Hoover lived out his last years in it.

Guests have included Kings Umberto of Italy, Paul of Greece, Baudouin of Belgium and Ibn Saud and Faisal of Arabia, as well as Queens Wilhelmina and Juliana of the Netherlands and Sirikit of Thailand.

Not long ago 2,000 honored guests stood at attention in total silence for hours in the Grand Ballroom as, one by one, they were presented to the emperor and empress of Japan. It was the first state visit to America by a Japanese emperor.

NOT EVERYBODY can do as he wants at the Waldorf — not even the president of the United States.

The hotel is famous for its macaroon cookies, and guests consume more than 2,000 a day. But one night President Johnson was caught filling his pockets with macaroons by his wife, Lady Bird.

"Lyndon," she ordered, "put them back." And he did.

Charles DeGaulle once caused a French chef to stamp off in anger. DeGaulle had made such a long speech that 2,000 souffles had cooled and gone flat.

That night the French leader ate American ice cream. He never knew that 12 elevators and special operators had stood by and rushed the souffles to the top of the hotel in a split-second operation that he had completely ruined.

There are good times, too. Waiters at the Waldorf love Frank Sinatra. The singer usually eats in the Bull and Bear Restaurant and leaves each waiter working in the giant room a tip of a $100 bill.

THE WALDORF-Astoria is the flagship of the Hilton Hotel chain. In 1949 Conrad Hilton realized a dream when he bought control of the great hotel for $3 million. Today, according to Executive Vice President and General Manager Frank G. Wangeman, more than $5 million dollars a year is put back into the hotel just for upkeep. And the electric bill alone is over $2 million.

Once a young Waldorf cook, Eugene Scanlan, met Conrad Hilton in what could have been a disaster. The mighty hotel man was having his yearly Presidents' Dinner in his mirror-walled owner's suite. The heads of America's top corporations sat on either side of a long table, Hilton at its head.

In came young Scanlan pushing a silver tray containing a sizzling hot roast of venison. He stopped near Hilton and began to carve the steaming meat.

Suddenly, the entire roast slipped from the tray. It fell to the floor and, horror of horrors, slid up against Hilton's shiny shoes. Everyone but Hilton was paralyzed. The hotel magnate ignored the crisis, carefully examining a fork. Somehow, the terrified Scanlan picked up the hot meat in his bare hands, replaced it on the tray and backed from the room, certain he would be fired.

Minutes later he returned with more meat. As he left, the sympathetic company presidents applauded. Hilton must have written down his name, because Scanlan has climbed up the ladder ever since. He is now vice president and manager of the Waldorf-Astoria.

ONE STORY sums up the Waldorf's fame. It happened to Theo Dell-Agnese, manager of the Waldorf Towers for 35 years and personal friend to kings and queens. It took place during a visit to America by Pope Paul VI.

After leaving St. Patrick's Cathedral and the residence of Cardinal Francis Spellman, the Pope was on his way to the Waldorf for a meeting with President Johnson. Dell-Agnese was outside the hotel, waiting for the Pope's limousine.

When its door was opened he got down on the sidewalk on both knees and kissed the papal ring. Like most Hilton executives, Dell-Agnese was multilingual. Both men began to talk in Italian.

"Hello, Dell-Agnese," said the Pope.

"But, your Holiness, you and I have never met," declared the host of the Waldorf.

"No," replied the Pope, "but I have heard of you."

Evidence shows officer shot self

CHICAGO (AP) — A man who spent a year in prison on charges of shooting a police officer was released last month after new evidence indicated that the officer may have accidentally shot himself, authorities said Saturday.

Officials said James Dixon, 23, was released July 28 after an assistant state's attorney received an anonymous tip that Sgt. Richard Scanlon was wounded when his pen gun accidentally discharged in his pocket.

A PEN GUN resembles a fat fountain pen and fires a .22-caliber bullet. Such weapons are illegal for anyone to carry, including a police officer.

Dixon had spent three years in prison earlier on a murder conviction that was reversed after the prosecution's only witness recanted his testimony. He maintained his innocence in both cases.

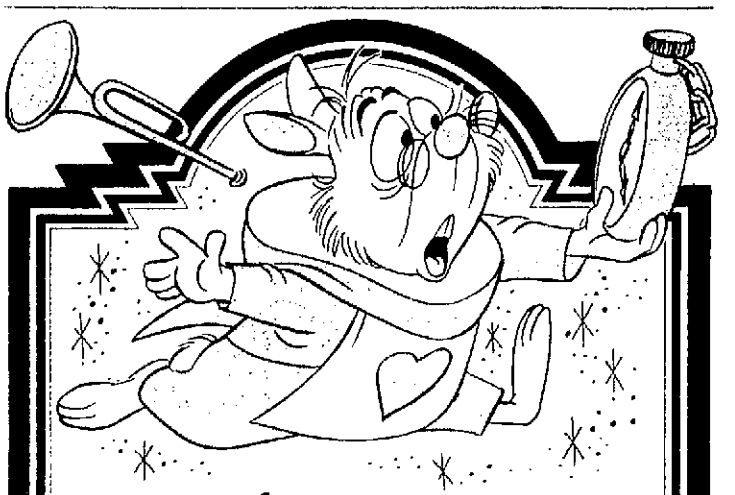
"I've spent more than four years of my life in jail for things I didn't do," he said.

Dixon was last jailed in July 1975 after pleading guilty to wounding the 15-year police veteran during a struggle. Another officer, Francis Zoller, signed a complaint saying Dixon shot Scanlon "intentionally, knowingly and without legal justification."

Dixon agreed to plead guilty to a lesser charge of aggravated battery in exchange for dismissal of an attempted-murder charge.

Dixon's attorney said he advised him not to plea-bargain, but Dixon was fearful of being convicted on the more severe charge if he pleaded innocent and went to trial.

"I knew I didn't shoot the man," Dixon said, "but I looked at it this way — it was either go home in a few days or go to trial and take a chance of being found guilty. With this being a cop that was shot, I'd get 20 years if I was convicted."



The battery charge was dismissed Friday after a judge was told "the state's attorney is now satisfied that James Dixon did not shoot Sgt. Scanlon as alleged, nor has he any responsibility for Sgt. Scanlon's injury."

Scanlon and Zoller reportedly appeared Thursday before a grand jury probing the incident.

"I have no comment to make because I've been told not to say anything," Scanlon said.

Dixon was convicted of murder in 1971, but the Illinois Appellate Court overturned that conviction three years later

Buying a handgun is dead easy

By TIM REITERMAN

VALLEJO (AP) — Before noon, the cavernous auditorium comes alive at Solano County fairgrounds. Two children collect $1.50 ticket stubs at the door. One young woman pours 50-cent wine coolers and beer. Others slop chile dogs on paper plates.

And hundreds of hands heft and stroke bayonets, Nazi swords, knives, antique muzzle-loader rifles, heavy-barreled match target rifles, chromed Lugers converted into carbines, sleek deer rifles, shotguns — and handguns, from mini-Derringers to .44 Magnum cannons.

Sawhorse-legged tables are manned by amateur weapons collectors and weekend entrepreneurs who paid $15 for the space to buy, sell or trade with the hundreds of gun fanciers milling around, many with pistols jammed in their belts or rifles slung across their backs.

ONE MAN with $300 in his Levis wants to buy handguns.

At the first table, he asked the price of a displayed gun, but the burly proprietor shakes his silver ereweut. "I can't even quote you a price on a handgun," he half-whispers. "I might get into trouble."

Nonetheless, he is persuaded to give his name and phone number for a possible transaction outside the auditorium, the walls of which are decorated with notices quoting a new state law requiring a 15-day waiting period for handgun sales.

Minutes later, the buyer is spinning the cylinder of a .38-caliber Smith and Wesson revolver at another table. "How much?"

"Price is on the back of the card," yawns the proprietor, a drawling middle-aged trucker. The card says $105.

"I'll take it." The buyer peels off $100 for the gun and a $1 box of target ammunition.

NOW friendly, the trucker examines the buyer's driver's license and asks whether he is a convicted felon, drug-addict, asylum escapee — or a federal firearms agent. Satisfied by the negative answers, the man writes a receipt. His beaming wife slips the gun and bullets into a wrinkled paper sack.

A minute later and a few yards away at another table, the buyer inspects a husky .45-caliber automatic pistol, the official sidearm of the U.S. military.

"How much?"

"I'm asking $165, but I could easily get $175 at the San Jose gun show," says the seller.

"How low will you go?"

The tall man tugs at his graying moustache, ponders and says, "$155." This deal is sealed with the same series of questions, written this time on a receipt bearing the buyer's signature and driver's license information. The license lists a former address, but not the current one.

In neither sale has the buyer been asked to fill out the official yellow form that the U.S. Government requires of the nation's 160,000 federally licensed gun dealers. The dealers must keep these forms as a record of each handgun sale.

AS THE tall salesman demonstrates the .45, he adds, "I got it from a guy who bought it through the National Rifle Association. It was government surplus. Manufactured in 1944."

The buyer crosses the room to buy a box of Army surplus .45-caliber cartridges for $7. The paper bag rips, so he swaggers outside with both guns in his belt and bullets in his pockets. No one bats an eye.

The guns were purchased by this reporter from men who might have been operating as unlicensed dealers. They certainly violated the state law requiring a 15-day waiting period before a delivery, so the information given by the buyer could be verified.

THE TWO guns were the same types used in two assassination attempts against President Ford last fall.

The .45 is like one that Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, a Charles Manson follower, pointed at Ford in Sacramento after taking it from the home of a friend. The .38 is a similar to one that Sara Jane Moore fired at the President in San Francisco after buying it from a private arms collector.

These two weapons are among an estimated 43 million handguns in the United States owned by dealers and individuals. The estimate was 40 million last year, federal officials say. There is no central record system for this private arsenal, and millions of the handguns are almost impossible to trace.

THERE ARE records, on the other hand, for the two million handguns manufactured domestically each year and the 500,000 imported handguns. Each of these goes to a federally licensed dealer, but once the dealer sells the weapon it often enters a recordless limbo — unless it is resold to a dealer or surfaces as a gun used in a crime.

These guns change hands at gun shows and through numerous sales between individuals. Some are stolen from homes and stores. Others are inherited or passed from friend to friend. So exactly how many handguns there are — aside from those held by the military, police, government agencies and licensed dealers — and

HANDGUN like one shown here was pointed at President Ford by Lynette Fromme, top picture. An Associated Press reporter bought it in an illegal sale at a California weapons show.

The murky handgun market

Federal officials said the .38 was manufactured during World War II and shipped to England as a military weapon, then somehow was returned to this country, possibly as a war souvenir. They said the .45 bore a stamp that indicated it was government surplus sold sometime during the postwar years through the National Rifle Association.

Contrary to what many people believe, there is no federal handgun registration law in the United States, although several states and the District of Columbia require forms of registration.

Under the federal Gun Control Act of 1968, however, the 160,000 licensed gun dealers are responsible for having the purchaser produce identification and fill out a form designed to weed out ex-felons, persons under indictment, fugitives, narcotics users, mental defectives, persons dishonorably discharged and illegal aliens. The buyer's physical description must be noted, and he must sign the form.

"This information facilitates the tracing of a handgun from manufacturer or importer to the retail outlet where the gun is sold, to the purchaser," concludes a survey on confiscated handguns done by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

But the forms are kept by the dealer rather than sent to a centralized records facility — and as one federal firearms agent says, "Some dealers accept even Social Security cards as identification."

With the tug of war between pro-gun and anti-gun lobbyists, no national handgun control bills have been passed by Congress this year. Congress, however, is considering a bill that would ban manufacture of small, cheaply made pistols — the Saturday Night Specials. It would not require registration or otherwise affect existing guns.

The bill also would set mandatory jail sentences for persons convicted of using a pistol to commit a crime and would require a 14-day waiting period between purchase and delivery to check a purchaser's criminal record.

Dropped was a provision creating a national center to help law enforcement officials keep track of transactions by licensed dealers. Critics had complained this was gun registration in disguise.

The gun control bill with the Saturday Night Special provision does not completely satisfy the anti-handgun lobbyists.

"If your criterion for an effective bill is to reduce crimes of violence and death, this is not going to do it, said lobbyist Nelson Shields, whose son was shot to death in the so-called Zebra murders in San Francisco. "Whatever the first bill is, whether this one or not, it's going to be a weak bill, then you build on that."

If the bill passes, Shields said, a next step would be to work for registration and restrictive licensing, perhaps allowing only law officers and others with occupational needs to possess handguns.

That is exactly what the gun lobby fears.

"GUN SHOWS have legitimate people," says Brenton G. Thorne of the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in San Francisco. "But some are there to escape laws requiring licensing of dealers. The ones we're concerned about are not penny ante. They're in it for a dollar and they're going to do volume business."

Federal law does allow a person not licensed as a dealer to make an occasional sale, or to buy firearms at a gun show, as long as he is not "engaging in the business" of buying and selling guns. Authorities say the law is frequently broken.

The shows also are a source of concern because a criminal has an easier time obtaining a gun at them than over the counter of a licensed gun store. Little or no identification is required at shows and there generally is no waiting period before delivery, as required by law in 13 states and Washington, D.C.

Thorne says: "If you offer an extra $25 or $30 over what a gun normally sells for, he (a gun show seller) is generally not going to be particular about getting proper identification."

Hence, a handgun bought at a show often is untraceable. This was the case for the two weapons purchased here by this reporter; weapons potentially valuable for criminals because their ownership can't be determined from existing records.

Summary of Secret Witness cases, rewards

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 68 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $46,000 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount, depending on the seriousness of the offense.

Rewards in all cases, whether or not previously published, will remain in effect until such cases are closed or until notification in these pages that the reward has been withdrawn.

To ensure eligibility for rewards, informants must channel all information directly through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness first — either by calling the special Secret Witness number or by writing to the I,P-T Secret Witness editor.

In cases in which outside organizations or individuals pledge an additional reward to that guaranteed by Secret Witness, the Independent, Press-Telegram assumes responsibility for payment only of that amount guaranteed by Secret Witness.

Today's summaries follow:

SECRET WITNESS

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 16-year-old Freddie Jones and 17-year-old Roderick Williamson of Long Beach, found shot to death execution-style with hands bound behind them near the Terminal Island Freeway at Pacific Coast Highway on June 27, 1976.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and arson conviction of the persons responsible for a fire deliberately set in a one-story classroom building at Millikan High School at 1:15 a.m. on July 1, 1976, causing damage totaling $120,000.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Refugio Chavez, 32, gunned down outside his home on McDonald Avenue in Wilmington at 2:20 a.m. June 13, 1976. Chavez had just arrived home and was attempting to quiet revelers at a noisy drinking party in the street when he was shot.

— Rewards totaling $17,000 are offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Long Beach Police Officer Franke Neal Lewis, shot to death at 2:30 a.m. on Dec. 14, 1975, when he approached a car parked in the 6300 block on Cantel Street to investigate a disturbance. The rewards include $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness, $10,000 from state funds pledged by Gov. Brown and $5,000 pledged by the Long Beach Police Officers Association.

— Rewards totaling $4,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $2,500 pledged by family members and friends — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Felix R. Porrazzo, 55-year-old flower shop owner, who was savagely and fatally bludgeoned during a robbery at his shop at 3950 Atlantic Ave. in Long Beach at about 9 a.m. on Sunday, May 30, 1976.

— A $500 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and armed-robbery conviction of the bandits who held up the manager of Ralph's Market, 4410 E. Compton Blvd. in Compton, on May 1, 1976, forcing him to turn over $5,000, then robbed an armored transport driver who came to the office while the gunmen were there of $29,500. The bandits were described as three black men in their early 20s.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 16-year-old Wendy Blanchard of Santa Monica, whose partly nude and bludgeoned body was found on the morning of Jan. 7, 1976, on a sidewalk near 172 W. Colden Ave. in South Los Angeles. She was last seen alive at 11:25 p.m. on Jan. 6 at the Greyhound bus station in Long Beach, where she was talking with a tall, thin, young black man.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the street robber who fatally injured 87-year-old Laurai McGill of Long Beach when he knocked her down and fled with her purse at 2 Cedar Avenue and Seventh Street at 6:45 p.m. on Jan. 19, 1976.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Do not give us your name. Or write to Secret Witness, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90844.

NFL scouting report

They'll tie an orange ribbon on the old goalposts

By JOSEPH DURSO
N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — This is no time to distract you from the rise of the Yankees, the reappearance of tennis at Forest Hills or the return of the horses from Saratoga next week. But the football season, which waits for neither time nor tide nor World Series, is upon us again. So we have worked up this little scouting report before the kids start asking embarrassing questions like: "Why do they have ribbons on the goal posts this year?"

They have ribbons on the goal posts this year to tell you and the guy kicking the field goals which way the wind is blowing. They're bright orange, they're 2 inches wide and 36 long, they're clamped to the outside of each upright to keep them from getting wrapped around the post and they've got them at both ends of the field because the wind blows in six directions in places like Shea Stadium.

So much for the kids and the orange streamers. Now for the deep-down changes you'll be noticing in the National Football League, which stops playing "exhibitions" and starts playing "games" in exactly three weeks.

The first thing you'll notice about pro football this year is that it has one less league but two more teams. That's because the World Football League went out of business for lack of hard green, while the good old NFL expanded to Tampa and Seattle. So now you'll have 196 games to confuse you until the playoffs instead of only 182.

You will also have a little geography to confuse you, because the Florida team insists on being called the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. In fact, when they played an exhibition in Wisconsin the other week, the Green Bay Packers referred to them as the "Tampa Buccaneers." Piqued by the omission, the Buccaneers threatened to subtract the "Bay" from their rivals' name the next time they met and to call them the "Green Packers."

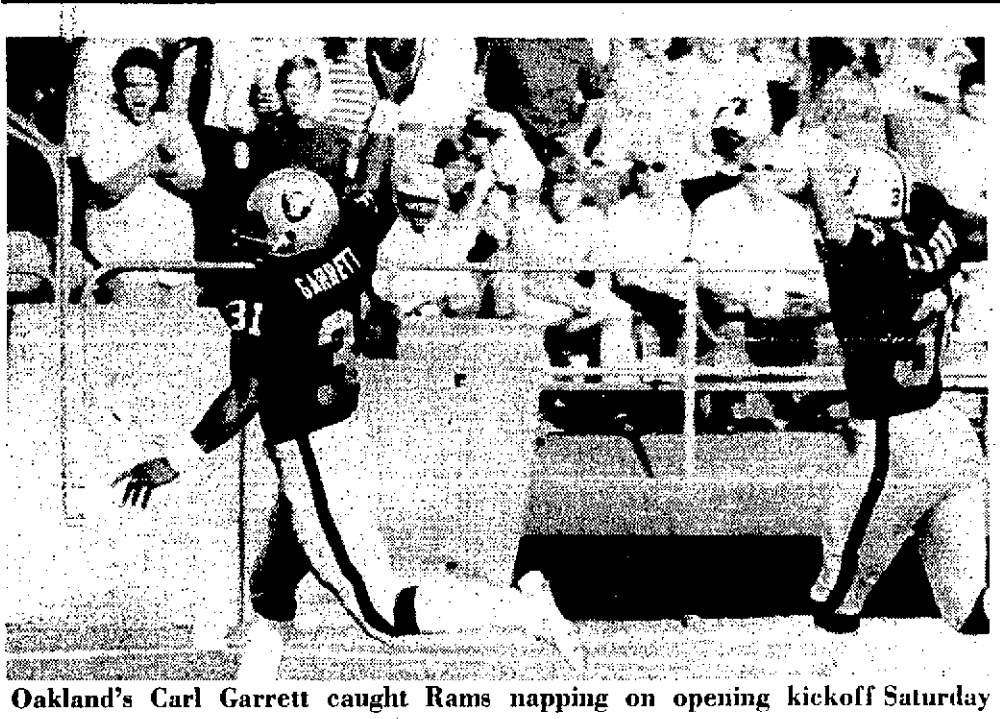
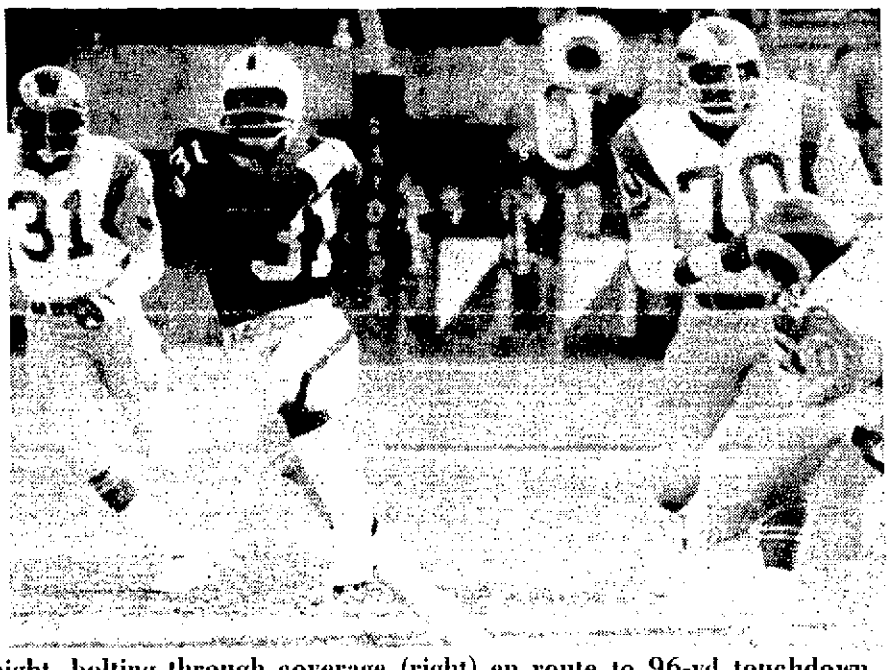
To continue the scouting report: Football has two new teams but three new stadiums this season. Big ones. The Buccaneers will play in the expanded Tampa Stadium, which seats 72,000 now; the Seattle Seahawks will open in the Kingdome, with 65,000 seats, and the vagabond New York Giants will move into the Jersey Meadows Stadium, with 76,000 seats. The home opener there is Oct. 10 against the Dallas Cowboys, giving you plenty of time to think up an answer to the kids' next question: "Why do you call them the New York Giants if they play in New Jersey?"

Down on the field this year, the football people have really stretched their imagination to make things interesting. None of those intricate changes in the rules of two years ago when they moved the goal posts back 10 yards, moved the kickoff back five yards to the 35, allowed only two outside men downfield on punts and placed the ball back on the line of scrimmage if you missed a field goal from beyond the 20-yard-line.



The idea was to restore the touchdown's true value by lessening the "cheap" field goal with its automatic three points. It worked, too. Last season, they tried 288 fewer field goals, made 174 fewer field goals and scored 141 more touchdowns.



Now then, with all those heavy changes in the rules already accomplished, there wasn't much for the NFL to do this year except to add a few little touches. The idea was to "involve" the fan in the action more, whether the fan was watching the game on the tube or on the 50-yard line. Thus, the orange ribbons on the goal posts, plus a few other cosmetic flourishes.

One thing you'll notice, especially if you're the quarterback, is a large 30-second clock at each end of the field. The team with the ball has 30 seconds to put it into play once it's been spotted down by the official. Now everybody can watch the seconds tick off, the way they can watch the 24-second clock tick off in basketball. It will, says the man from the league office, "add a dash of fan involvement" — to say nothing of quarterback involvement.

Another change is a little more subtle: Three minutes before the opening kickoff, the opposing captains will meet at midfield for the coin toss to decide who kicks, who receives, who defends which goal. They used to do it 30 minutes early, then merely go through the motions later. The extra dash in

Harris advises Rams he's their main man

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

OAKLAND — The cab driver transporting the writer to the game had the Rams' quarterback situation all figured out.

"Harris had the job," he explained, "and he ain't done nothin' to lose it."

The cabbie's street widsom became clear a few hours later when James Harris passed for two touchdowns, launching the Rams to an otherwise meaningless 23-14 win over the Oakland Raiders.

The result left the Rams 4-0 for the summer, the Raiders slipping to 3-1, but more significant was the assertion of Harris in establishing himself as the main man, perhaps stronger than ever.

Although coach Chuck Knox would not yet delcare it so, there seems to be little Ron Jaworski can do in his last big shot against Buffalo next Saturday night to sustain his challenge for the job.

That's tough luck for Jaworski, who has played well in the preseason. But settling on a quarterback this early would seem to enhance the Rams' position as NFC favorites to reach the Super Bowl.

Harris completed 11 of 18 passes for 161 yards, along with his only interception of the summer.

"I got off to a slow start," he admitted, "but the line was blocking well and I had a lot of time."

Although he has expressed annoyance that he should have to defend his job, Harris would not be drawn out on an assessment of his status now.

"I'm just here to play," he said.

John Cappelletti also moved closer to a starting position, scoring two touchdowns and running for 71 yards with power and finesse unseen before this season.

Fondling the game ball awarded by his teammates, the 1973 Heisman Trophy winner said, "If they can put me in at certain times or alternate me or switch things around with (Lawrence) McCutcheon going to halfback, that would be fine."

But at this point, Cappelletti and McCutcheon are the Rams' two best running backs, a fact that somewhat suppresses the O.J. Simpson rumors.

They have worked in the same backfield at times this summer, although McCutcheon played strictly at fullback Saturday.

Before the game, the rumbling about the possible acquisition of O.J. continued among supporters of both clubs, the only two in the running for the Second Coming of The Juice.

Oakland's chief executive, Al Davis, greeted Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom and general manger Don Klosterman warily in the pigeon coop that passes for a football press box in the Oakland-Alameda Coliseum.

"Where ya sittin"? Davis asked.

"Right here," Rosenbloom replied. "Where are you?"

"Over there," Davis said, "where I can keep an eye on you."

Rosenbloom and Klosterman were keeping an eye on Davis, too. Most National Football League people do. That's why Davis doesn't take seriously the word out of Buffalo recently that Bills owner Ralph C. Wilson is willing to reopen negotiations for Simpson with the Raiders.

"That's just Ralph talking," Davis says. "It's funny that they would want to come to us now.

'Precious wins rich Los Alamitos dash

She's Precious, the hottest quarter horse in the country at the present time, dashed to her fifth consecutive victory Saturday night when she captured the $100,000 Los Alamitos Championship, the nation's richest quarter horse invitational, before more than 12,500 racing fans at the Orange County oval.

With 10 of the finest sprinters in the nation locking horns, the brilliant mare won by a half-length with the remaining nine horses finishing heads apart at the end of the 440 yards.

She's Precious, who earlier in the meeting established a 400-yard track record of 19.57 seconds with a victory in the Go Man Go Stakes, raced head-and-head with the remainder of the field for the first half, then methodically drew away to her relatively easy win.

"She's the best there is," jockey Terry Lipham said following his second Championship victory. "We raced in the pack early in the race and then I tapped her a couple of times and she got about a neck on them. From there on I didn't have to do a thing, she just kept going."

With the victory She's Precious, became the first six-time winner of the meeting. She pushed her 1976 bankroll over the $117,000 mark and her lifetime earnings to $218,000 as she clinched horse-of-the-meeting honors.

The winner, a $4,000 purchase as an unraced two-year-old in 1973, was sent postward as the solid 4-5 favorite and returned $3.80, $3.40 and $2.80.

The swift mare's victory was tainted somewhat when runnerup I Can Go, who closed strongly to finish a head in front of Heza Charger, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage following the race and died.

The Go Man Go stallion had posted a pair of stakes wins at the meeting and would have received an invitation to the Champion of Champions next winter for his runnerup effort. He had earned $240,000 during his career.

CLIPBOARD A MUST FOR SIDELINE QB

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Back-up quarterback Terry Hanratty of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who spends most of his time on the sidelines charting plays, is now endorsing one of his professional tools.

"You need a clipboard," a smiling Hanratty says from a magazine advertisement. "How else can you take notes from the field, chart your rivals' moves and look busy all the time?"

Hanratty has a line of special autographed "Pro Models."

No-hitter by Baron pitcher

BY DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Big Jack Van Voorst hurled a no-hitter and Al Goldberg collected four hits Saturday night as Lakewood Manny's Barons scored a 3-0 victory over Dubuque, Iowa, in the 30th International Softball Congress World Tournament at Blair Field.

The 6-foot-5 Van Voorst retired the first 13 batters before walking Pat Sullivan in the fourth inning. He also walked Bill Schaeffer to lead off the sixth. These were the only Dubuque base runners as Van Voorst fanned eight.

Lakewood scored in the third inning with two out when Goldberg laced a single to center and came home on Frank Van Patten's triple to right.

The Barons added an unearned run in the sixth. Goldberg opened with his third consecutive hit, advanced on a bunt and moved to third on a fly ball. On that play the Dubuque rightfielder threw wildly and Goldberg waltzed home.

Lakewood's final run came in the seventh with Goldberg driving it in. Vic Munoz opened with a single and Nick VanLue ran for him. One out later, Larry Diel singled to set up a punch hit to left by Goldberg.

Diel made the most difficult play of the game to save Van Voorst's gem. The shortstop went in the hole to throw out Terry Boleyn leading off the seventh inning.

Five games preceeded the Jets victory.

Sutton close to perfection

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Don Sutton was mowing down the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday night, one after another, and through seven sparkling innings he had not allowed a hit, not even a baserunner.

"When Bill Buckner made that catch," he said of Buck's diving, sprawling grab of Richie Zisk's soft liner to end the seventh — the 21st successive batter he retired — "I figured this might be the night."

But it wasn't. Not quite.

Sutton fanned Wilver Stargell to lead off the eighth inning — the 22nd Pirate in a row to go down — but big Dave Parker slammed a long drive into the rightfield pavilion, spoiling the no-hitter as well as the shutout — but not the Dodgers' sixth successive victory, a 5-1 triumph before a Hollywood Stars Night crowd of 42,235 at Dodger Stadium.

For those seven magnificent innings Sutton was the brightest star of them all.

In the end he settled for his seventh two-hitter — he has four one-hitters, as well — and his 15th victory of the year and eighth in his last nine decisions.

"I've never pitched a game in which I made more pitches in good locations as I did tonight," said the 31-year-old Sutton, pitching in his 11th and — say some — his final season with the Dodgers.

"But I figured if I was going to get it — I started thinking about it around the fifth inning — I had two awfully tough guys to get out — Dave Parker and Manny Sanguillen," Sutton said.

"Parker is so strong he can muscle one over the infield — or over the fence, which he did. And Sanguillen, well, there's no such thing as a perfect pitch to him. It seems he's always swinging in the same arc that I'm pitching."

He was right about Parker and Sanguillen. Besides Parker's homer in the eighth, Sanguillen doubled in the same inning for the only other Pittsburgh hit.

In all, Sutton retired 27 of the 30 batters he faced, eight times retiring the Bucs in order. The only other baserunner was the result of an error, also in the eighth inning.

Ironically, it was just last week in Pittsburgh that the Pirates' John Candelaria no-hit the Dodgers.

But Saturday night Sutton benefitted from a 10-hit attack that included Steve Garvey's thunderous home run over the centerfield fence, a two-run blow in the fifth, and three singles by Bill Buckner.

He benefitted, too, he said, from the catching of Ellie Rodriguez.

"He made it a lot easier," Sutton said of Rodriguez. "He gave me the sign and I threw the pitch."

Until Buckner's diving catch of Zisk's fly ball in the seventh inning, the closest thing to a hit was Bill Robinson's grounder wide of third in the fifth inning. Ron Cey made a good play for the putout.

Sutton was in command throughout, striking out four — including Parker the time before he homered.

"He hit a fastball," Sutton of Parker's homer. "It was the right pitch but the wrong location.

Reds play it too loose, Cubs prevail

CINCINNATI (AP) — George Mitterwald's run-scoring double and two unearned runs gave the Chicago Cubs a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Saturday night.

Rick Reuschel, 11-9, gave up seven hits before he was lifted in the eighth inning, when Cincinnati loaded the bases on three successive singles. The Reds then scored their only one run when reliever Bruce Sutter made Dan Driessen hit into a double play.

The Cubs got their first unearned run in the first inning. Rick Monday singled and moved to second on Jose Cardenal's groundout. After Manny Trillo walked, Mitterwald grounded to second baseman Joe Morgan but shortstop Dave Concepcion dropped the relay throw on the attempted double play, allowing Monday to score.

Chicago made it 2-0 on Mitterwald's run-scoring double in the third after Trillo walked and stole second.

The Cubs scored their winning run in the fourth when George Foster dropped Reuschel's two-out fly ball, allowing Rob Sperring to score from second.

Morgan hit a solo homer in the fourth inning.

Johnstone's on a tear for Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jay Johnstone continued his torrid hitting, doubling in Philadelphia's first run and driving in another during a four-run fifth inning as the Phillies beat the Houston Astros, 7-4, Saturday night.

Jim Kaat, 11-8, picked up the victory with solid relief help from Larry Christenson and Ron Reed, who notched his 12th save. J.R. Richard, 14-13, was the loser.

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the second on Cliff Johnson's seventh homer of the season. Johnstone doubled in Mike Schmidt to tie the game in the fourth.

Johnstone finished with three for four to increase his National League leading average to .348. He is 37 for 83 for a .445 average during the month of August.

Koosman wins 16th as Mets rip Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lefthander Jerry Kossman tossed a six-hitter for his sixth victory in arow and led the New York Mets to a 7-1 victory over the San Diego Padres Saturday night.

Koosman struck out four and walked four while improving his record to 16-7 with his 11th complete game of the year. It was the Koosman's 10th victory in his last 11 decisions.

The 16 victories for the 33-year old Koosman makes him the second second-winningest pitcher in baseball, trailing only Randy Jones, the Padres' 19-game winner. Jim Palmer of Baltimore also has 16 victories.

John Milner led New York's 10-hit attack with a pair of runscoring singles, one coming in the Mets' four-run seventh inning. Felix Millan contributed a pair of singles and an RBI double.

Rusty nails the Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Torres cracked a solo home run in the 10th inning to give the Angels and relief pitcher Mickey Scott a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday night.

Torres — a former Yankee who was hitting .181 entering the game — belted his fifth homer of the year, victimizing reliever

Angel of Day

TORRES homered in 10th to defeat New York, 4-3.

Dick Tidrow, 4-3. Scott improved his record to 2-0.

Gary Ross went 7 2-3 innings for the Angels before running into trouble in the eighth and leaving in favor of Scott, who retired Chris Chambliss to end a mild Yankee threat.

The visitors opened the scoring against Yankee starter Dock Ellis in the first inning. Jerry Remy singled, stole second base and scored on Tony Solaita's single.

The Angels increased their lead to 3-0 and routed Ellis in the second. Bob Jones singled and later scored on Dave Chalk's single. Chalk moved to third on Dave Collins' single.

Then, with Remy batting, Collins stole second and Ellis unleashed a wild pitch permitting Chalk to score. Ellis was replaced by Grant Jackson who retired Remy to end the inning.

The Yankees tied the game in the fourth on Oscar Gamble's 14th home run of the season, a three-run shot into the lower deck in right field. It was Gamble's second homer in as many nights.

The Yankees got successive one-out singles by Chambliss and Carlos May in the fourth before Gamble's homer into the right field stands. Aside from the three successive hits in the fourth, Ross permitted only an infield hit by Roy White over the first six innings.

The Angels loaded the bases on singles by Chalk, Collins and pinch-hitter Tommy Davis against Jackson in the seventh but the Yankee reliever struck out Solaita, ending the threat.

Ellis lasted only 1 2-3 innings before New York manager Billy Martin removed him in favor of Jackson, who went 5 2-3 innings, allowing six hits but keeping the Angels from scoring. He was replaced by Tidrow with one out in the eighth.

NO-HITTER—

Salt Lake opened the day session with a 5-1 win over Logan, W. Va.; Kahului, Hawaii, outlasted Canyon City, Colo., 3-2 in 10 innings; St. Paul routed San Antonio, 8-2, and Fort Wayne, Ind., stopped Tulsa, 1-0.

The first game of the night session was a 14-inning marathon won by LaCrosse, Wis., 3-2 over Somerset, Pa.

Two championship bracket game were played at nearby Joe Rodgers Field. Another Lakewood team, this one from Colorado, nipped Rock Island, 3-2, and Fresno RKT topped Denver 3-0.

All four Long Beach and Lakewood teams play today or tonight.

The defending champion Long Beach Nitehawks, who drew a first-round bye, open against a quality opponent, St. Paul, Minn., at 8:45.

The Lakewood Stevenson-Forester Jets face a formidable foe in Fresno Winchell's at 3:30, but they won't be meeting the pitcher who stole the show Friday night.

Actually, it was Saturday at 1 a.m. Ralph Salazar hurled a no-hitter against Albuquerque, 3-0, and fanned 13.

Fresno will send Herman Dunkirken against Ed Bentley of the Jets. Dunkirken is the No. 2 Winchell's pitcher but good enough to be No. 1 on most teams.

The Barons come back against Kahului at 7:15 and the Long Beach Firefighters, surprise winners in the Friday opener, go to Joe Rodgers field to face powerful Prescott at 9:30.

Here's how the marathon day unfolded:

Salt Lake got a two-run homer fron Gary Stahl and five-hit pitching from Val Peterson to easily handle Logan. Bobby Jardine's double ended the extra-inning game for Kahului as the losing Canyon City team stranded 10 runners.

St. Paul erupted for seven runs in the sixth inning to overcome San Antonio, which had taken a 2-0 lead against Darwin Tolzin, who pitched for the Lakewood Jets last year.

Brothers Dan and Jerry O'Connor drove in five runs for St. Paul and Al DeWall sparkled in relief of Tolzin, allowing only two hits in four innings.

The pitching duel between Ft. Wayne and Tulsa was decided on two singles sandwiched around a sacrifice bunt. Mark Balough drove in the run to support the three-hit pitching of Jim Kees.

The victory was preserved by two diving cathes by rightfielder Joe Labrato.

In the marathon night opener, LaCrosse stranded 17 runners before finally winning it in the fourteenth on an uneaned run.

An error was followed by a swinging bunt single and a sacrifice, setting up Darwin Severson's hard-smash single to right-center.

The final two games at Blair did not get underway until nearly midnight. Ft. Worth met Phoenix and Owen Sound, Canada was to face Oshkosh, Wis.

DODGERS

It was against the Pirates in the 1974 National League playoffs that Sutton won two games, 3-0 and 12-1.

"That shutout is still the best game I've ever pitched," he said, "but I'd have to say that to retire 22 Pirates in a row has to be the highlight of my career."

Sutton, the club's top winner with 15 victories, has flirted with no-hitters several times. But this is the cloest he's come to pitching one.

He pitched one-hitters against the Giants in 1969, the Astros in 1971, the Padres in 1974 and the Reds last year. He now has seven two-hitters.

DODGERS THIRD

DODGERS FOURTH

With two out, Lyttle singled to center. Rodriguez singled to right. Sutton singled to center, scoring Lyttle. Lopes forced Sutton. One run, three hits, two left.

DODGERS FIFTH

PIRATES EIGHTH

this case is that the teams now will have only three minutes to prepare their first series of downs, though some people suspect that George Allen has already figured out his first series of downs for Game No. 10.

Finally, they are hanging little microphones under the shirts of all 15 referees in the league so that their penalty calls can be heard in the press box, on the public-address system and in the television control truck. You know: "We have clipping on No. 74, Browns." They've been doing this in some games for a year, but now it'll be done in all games, though they're having some isolated trouble avoiding conflicts with police-call and taxicab frequencies.

"We taped some of last season's experimental broadcasts," the commissioner's man says, "and sent them to all the referees. They've been listening and rehearsing. Some of them probably are practicing in front of mirrors. Some refs are outstanding public speakers, like Tommy Bell of Lexington, Ky. He's a lawyer with style and a drawl. Or Jim Tunney, who's an educator, like so many of the other referees who are teachers or principals and who have sports backgrounds — and weekends off."

So there you are, football fans, from orange ribbons on the goal posts to microphones on the teachers. Any questions, kids?

'Bird' loses touch in 10th; Twins triumph

DETROIT (AP)—Mark (The Bird) Fidrych was bombed for four runs in the 10th inning Saturday, two on a single by Butch Wynegar, as Minnesota took a 7-3 victory over the Detroit.

The loss was only the fifth for rookie sensation against 14 victories. He entered the game with a major league-leading earned run average of 1.97.

Fidrych gave up 12 hits, the most he has allowed in any of his 20 starts this season. He had never given up more than four runs in a game.

Bob Randall began the Twins' rally in the extra inning with a one-out single. Braun followed with another single and when Roy Smalley lined a single to center, outfielder Ron LeFlore threw to the plate to nail Randall.

But Smalley took second on the throw and Fidrych walked Rod Carew intentionally to load the bases. Fidrych then hit Dan Ford to force in the go-ahead run. Wynegar followed with his single and Lyman Bostock added a run-scoring double.

Was Fidrych tired in the 10th?

"I wouldn't say that, that's an excuse," he said. "The hits just fell in. I had the defense and I had three runs.

"It's hard to believe. Seven runs...seven earned runs, too. It's hard to believe.

"Maybe it's the best thing that's happened to me. I can keep my head together more now. I'll say to myself, 'Hey, you're human after all!'"

The loss was only Fidrych's third at home against 10 victories. The other two losses were 1-0 shutouts. It was the first time in a couple of months that the crowd didn't chant, "We want Bird!, We want Bird!" afterwards.

Yaz leads Bosox win

BOSTON (AP)—Carl Yastrzemski drove home two runs with a pair of doubles, and the Boston Red Sox downed the Oakland A's, 5-2, Saturday at Fenway Park.

Yastrzemski's two doubles raised him to 28th on the all-time list with 486.

First baseman Cecil Cooper also homered for Boston, his 11th of the season, and Don Baylor hit his 13th of the season for Oakland.

Yastrzemski's first double in the fourth inning broke a 1-1 deadlock, forged by the two homers. He drove in Denny Doyle, who had singled, and scored when Jim Rice singled.

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Stein's single with two out in the 12th inning scored Jim Essian to give the Chicago White Sox an 11-10 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday.

Stein's single came off Mike Cuellar (4-13) the Orioles' sixth pitcher. It hit the third base bag and caromed into leftfield, scoring Essian, who bunted safely to open the inning and was sacrificed to second.

Rangers back Perry with 12-hit outburst

ARLINGTON (AP)—Gaylord Perry fired a seven-hitter for his 15th complete game of the season in pitching Texas to a 5-3 victory over Cleveland Saturday night.

Perry (12-10) benefited from a 12-hit Ranger attack. The Rangers scored twice in the first with the aid of Mike Hargrove's bad-hop single. Danny Thompson led off with a single and moved to second when Toby Harrah walked.

Hargrove hit a perfect doubleplay grounder toward Duane Kuiper at second, but the ball took a bad hop over Kuiper's head and went into rightfield for a hit to score Thompson and send Harrah to third. Roy Howell's sacrifice fly then scored Harrah.

Meet Red Meairs of the Nitehawks

This mailman manages just fine, thank you

Los Altos residents can always tell when it's softball tournament time.

Their mailman goes on vacation.'

"I get a month every year," says Red Meairs, "and we always schedule our vacations so we can go back to the tournament. One year we didn't go, but I took my vacation, anyway."

This year it's even better. The tournament has come to him.

Meairs, who seldom answers to his first name of Irvin, is manager of the Long Beach Nitehawks, defending champions of the 30th International Softball Congress affair under way at Blair Field.

The Nitehawks have won the ISC 10 times. Red should be excited. They are seeded first this year. Red should be ecstatic. But is he?

"Nobody likes the Nitehawks. I don't know why. Jealous, I guess. It's been that way ever since I've been with 'em." —Red Meairs.

"The thing that gets me," he says, "is I pushed this tournament for Long Beach so they'd fix up Joe Rodgers Field . . . make it into a good ballpark with grass and good seating."

THE LONG BEACH Fire Fighters Association is running the tournament, but Meairs recalls a pitch he made to former city manager John Mansell.

"When we had our first meeting Mansell says, 'How about us having it at Blair Field?' I said, 'That's a great place, but I got the tournament so you'd fix up my ballpark.'

"So he says, 'I'll tell you what I'll do. We'll have the tournament over there this year, and I'll build you permanent stands next year' — and now he's gone."

So the important tournament games are being played in Blair Field, a modern baseball park, pride of the city and in-season training home of the Rams. Losers' bracket games, appropriately, are shuttled across the street to Joe Rodgers, which was less than a showplace even when it was known as Park Avenue Field.

"They're spending $17,000 to fix up Blair Field for softball," Red says, "and then they're going to convert it back into a baseball field, when they could have used Joe Rodgers Field. It doesn't make sense."

ALSO, IF MEAIRS' Nitehawks win the tournament, he can look forward to losing some of his better players.

RED MEAIRS..
"Nobody likes the Nitehawks"

"Whenever I win a world championship somebody buys off my ballplayers," he says.

Wait a minute—this is an amateur softball tournament. Do the players get paid for playing?

"Not on my team," Meairs says with emphasis—which may explain why he has trouble keeping the best ones.

It wasn't always so.

"The old Nitehawks were like a family," says Red, whose modest home in east Long Beach is filled with hundreds of trophies and mementoes, most accumulated under the late manager Joe Rodgers but many collected since Red took over the club in 1968.

RODGERS AND Meairs were opposite personalities.

"He was fiery and he was in charge at all times," Red says in recalling the barrel-shaped pepperpot of softball. "He didn't give a darn what he said to anybody."

But while Rodgers was always visible and vocal, Meairs regards himself as more the Walt Alston-type of manager — a "quiet man." Clint Herron coaches third and Billy Greene coaches first.

"Both men know softball in and out," Red says. "I let them do most of the arguing."

Red was a utility player from the time he joined the club in 1953.

"The players had respect for Joe, but deep down they didn't like him because he was such a hard-nosed guy. I wanted to play more, but I respected him, and he was a fine man. He was like I am in that he went out there to win."

RODGERS PRACTICED something of a profit-sharing plan.

"At the end of the season," Red says, "he'd take the gate and split it among the guys. The regulars would get quite a bit more than I would, being the 10th man.

"But Joe had good crowds and good, permanent stands—and sponsors. I don't have any sponsors, and a lot of people won't come because of those bad seats."

When the Nitehawks compete in tournaments out of town, the city contributes $3,000 toward expenses.

"But last year in Wisconsin it cost $5,000 for the motel, food and plane fare," Red says.

Red and his wife Connie hustle the rest by selling hot dogs, coffee, soft drinks and tamales at the Joe Rodgers concession stand and by selling advertising for a Nitehawk annual.

"This year I went all out with a bicentennial edition," he says.

RED'S ALL-TIME NITEHAWKS

Manager Red Meairs picks his all-time Nitehawk team:

"It would be mostly old Nitehawks. The catcher would be Stan White. The pitchers would be Jack Randall and Leroy Zimmerman, first base Larry Silvas, second base Cleo Goyette.

"The shortstop would be between Jimmy Jones and Don Sears, whom I have now, and . . . oh, gosh, the outfield. I have another guy now I'd have to put in there—Jack Johnson. Lucky Humiston? I wouldn't want to put him out there but I'd have to. We don't get along too well. Lou Novikoff could be, but he was so erratic as a defensive player.

"Nick Hopkins could be the designated hitter—and he's another shortstop! Buddy Bomar would be the other outfielder. God, he hit the ball!"

The book sells for $1.50 and one day will be a collector's item. But it will not make Meairs rich.

"This year, because we aren't traveling, I'll get to pay myself back some," he says. "I usually have to go to the credit union."

MEAIRS, USUALLY with Connie alongside, gives virtually every night to the Nitehawks from spring to mid-summer, when the last tournament is played. On nights the Nitehawks aren't playing, Red and Connie can be found pushing goodies at the concession stand.

It's a sacrifice not totally appreciated, least of all by Nitehawk rivals.

Red notes that high-grade softball is not the friendly sport it once was. There was considerable uproar a year ago when the 'Hawks finished third in the Western Softball Congress but voted to accept an invitation to the ISC in Kimberly, Wis., joining champion Santa Ana and the runnerup Lakewood Jets, who accused them of "freeloading."

Then, when the Nitehawks won, there was a great gnashing of teeth.

"There are two or three people," Red begins slowly . . . "Well, let's put it this way: Nobody likes the Nitehawks. I don't know why. Jealous, I guess. Everybody wants to beat the Nitehawks or get the Nitehawk players. It's been that way ever since I've been with 'em."

But Red is not discouraged or disillusioned enough to give it up. His roots are too deep. His world has revolved around the neighborhood of Wilson High, where he was a three-sport athlete, to Joe Rodgers Field across the street.

He served in the Navy—and played softball—at Los Alamitos and for a time was a welder's helper at California Shipyard, also performing on the company's City League team.

"I'll be 55 on May 30 of next year," Red says, "and I'll have 30½ years in the post office. I think I'm gonna retire . . . and devote most of my time to softball."

RED SMITH

New Yankee image: It's called 'bush'

NEW YORK — In the years the Yankees dominated baseball, many adjectives were applied to them, not all complimentary. Depending on where the critic stood, they were mighty, arrogant, gifted, proud, magnificent, supercilious, splendid, smug, stately, pompous or grand. "How can you root for the Yankees?" an actor asked. "It's like rooting for United States Steel." But nobody ever called them bush. Not then. Not until now.

In a game with the Orioles in Yankee Stadium, a decision at first base went against the home team and the home fans booed. They booed again watching instant replay on the peachy new scoreboard, and they booed for a third time when the names of the umpires were flashed on the board — Bill Kunkel, Dave Phillips, Rich Garcia and Lou DiMuro.

It would be gratifying to report that the last boos were directed at the busher who was trying to put the umpires on the spot, but of course they weren't. The crowd was being purposely incited, and it responded as crowds do.

LEE MacPHAIL, president of the American League, also responded, as a league president should. He slapped a $1,000 fine on the Yankees for a bush performance, and he rejected as unworthy of notice George Steinbrenner's telegram of complaint about the umpires. (The Yankees' chief owner, in his infinite wisdom, advised MacPhail not to assign DiMuro's team to "crucial" series such as the one in which Baltimore cut New York's lead to nine games.)

This country used to be populated by Yankee-haters simply because the Yankees won all the time. Their success aroused envy in other American League cities and even in the National League, though they used to beat up on the Nationals only in October. They were pictured as a swaggering collection of robots assembled by a cold-blooded and efficient business office that was accused — usually inaccurately — of buying pennants.

Yet nobody ever denied that they had class. They outclassed every other team in baseball, and they did not suffer bushers gladly. One day Willie Grieve called a close one at the plate against them in a game with the Red Sox as New York and Boston battled for the pennant. The winning run scored on the decision, giving Boston a one-game lead with a week to go. Naturally, the Yankees disputed Grieve's call hotly, and, naturally, they lost the argument.

WHEN IT WAS ALL OVER a spare outfielder named Cliff Mapes, who hadn't even been in the game, put in his bit. "How much did you have on the game, Willie?" he demanded of the umpire. Bush. Mapes hung around another season or so and then was shipped to the St. Louis Browns, where he belonged.

Times have changed, and so have the Yankees. The other day when MacPhail imposed the fine for a deliberate act intended to "produce fan reaction against the umpires," the Yankees accused him of a "cover up" policy. Bush.

Unhappily, the same adjective applies to the decision to foul up the World Series by using designated hitters in alternate years. This is a corruption of the essential nature of the game. It was introduced by the American League as a gimmick to stimulate ticket sales, there is no evidence that it has had that effect, and the National League was flatly opposed to it. Bowie Kuhn broke the deadlock by casting the commissioner's vote in favor.

The beauty of baseball is the exquisite balance of offense and defense achieved by the rules in a century of evolution. One of the qualities that distinguish a good manager is the ability to decide when to take out the pitcher. Needing a run late in the game with the pitcher coming to bat, he knows that if he uses a pinch-batter in the hope of getting a run, he must lose the services of the pitcher. Situations like this are the very essence of the game. With the designated hitter, the manager pinch-hits for the pitcher every time around and never has to pay the price. It is bush.

To the Rose Bowl

Trojans anxious to return 'home'

They've only been away for one season, but USC's Trojans would like to go back to the Rose Bowl — as quickly as you can say John Robinson.

"We should have a good team," says Robinson, the new USC coach. "Heck, we have a chance to have an outstanding team. Every player who comes here expects to be a champion. Our goal is to be a champion again."

JOHN ROBINSON
'We should be good'

Robinson and the Trojans start pursuing their goal Monday when two-a-day practices begin at 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. As usual, the players will work in shorts the first three days, before conning pads on Thursday to begin contact work.

An enthusiastic, optimistic man of 41, Robinson is no stranger to USC or success. When he moved to USC from Oregon the first time back in 1972 he served an offensive coordinator for the only team ever chosen unanimous national champions. In three seasons as John McKay's offensive coordinator (1972-74), Robinson was associated with teams that went 31-3-2, won two national championships, marched to three Rose Bowls and averaged 32 points a game.

LAST YEAR John was offensive backfield coach for the Oakland Raiders who went to the AFC title game.

Although the Trojans lost four successive games last year after a 7-0 start in McKay's final season, Robinson has a big win to build on and a flock of talented, experienced players to build with.

The big win came in the Liberty Bowl, where Heisman Trophy candidate Ricky Bell led USC to a 20-0 blitz of Texas A&M, the nation's leading defensive team.

And the experience? Including the unanimous all-America Bell, the Trojans return 14 starters — eight on offense and six on defense — and 28 lettermen. Only 14 lettermen and eight starters have graduated.

"Our players were not happy about what happened last year," says Robinson, "and their intensity in spring practice was tremendous. So I see similarities between this team and the one in 1972. That was also a hungry veteran team with a lot of guys who didn't play as well as they should have as juniors. But we do have tangible problems this season:

"We have to get effective performances from our quarterbacks, particularly in our passing game. Last year the quarterback position was a failure.

"WE HAVE TO REBUILD the weak side of our offensive line. Our starters at weak tackle, weak guard and center are all unproven.

"And we must replace both of our inside linebackers and half of our secondary.

"We've got a lot of work to do. All of USC's losses last season can't be blamed on psychological reasons."

By "psychological reasons," Robinson refers to the aftermath of McKay's late-season announcement that he was leaving to coach Tampa in the NFL. The Trojans were 7-0 at the time, ranked fourth, had a 28-game Pac-8 unbeaten streak, 25-game home unbeaten streak — and didn't win again until the Liberty Bowl.

In truth, however, injuries also caught up with USC. In 1976, the Trojans lost 14 starters for at least one game, six of those for the season. Still, three of their four losses were by a total of just seven points.

Led by Bell, the entire offensive backfield returns, but because of uncertainty at quarterback and in the offensive line, Robinson says his defense must be good right away.

"WE COULD HAVE A GREAT DEFENSE," says the coach, "But it's very important that it's great early in the season. We have excellent defensive speed, and we're going to try to utilize it as much as we can."

Offensively, USC passed for only 919 yards last year, completing just 35 per cent. The tireless Bell, the nation's leading rusher, accounted for an incredible 50 per cent of USC's total offense with his 1,957 yards on the ground. The 6-2, 218-pounder's total also represented 65 per cent of all USC's rushing yards.

McKay finds a home in Tampa

...And good cigars, too

By EDWIN POPE
Knight News Service

TAMPA — John McKay occasionally uses his cigar like a baton. It is a suitable gesture in that he has settled into pro football coaching in the stogie factory of America. The velvet sweep of McKay's Cuesta Rey did not waver when a stranger to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers training camp advanced a proposition that could be considered insulting.

The stranger said, "Barry Switzer of Oklahoma said you're going to find it different in the pros, because all the college recruiting you ever had to do was sit in your living room and make phone calls, and then watch the talent flow in from all over Southern California."

McKay's retort sliced through the last word of the charge. "Switzer is young and falls into the syndrome of those coaches who sometimes make statements about things they know very litte about. In my 16 years at USC, we recruited as far as Elizabeth, N.J., but it is true that I did not believe in running off the campus after every prospect. My attitude was that I was not going to a high school prospect's house for an education, that he was coming to USC for an education."

HARDLY CHANGING INFLECTION, McKay dropped the ax: "A lot of other coaches in California had the same opportunity."

He found it superfluous to add that those other coaches did not win four national championships.

Like "Baretta" says on TV, you can take this to the bank with you — McKay neither equivocates nor is often found in a defensive stance. His freshly baked Bucs have allowed no touchdowns in their last six exhibition quarters going into Saturday night's dance with the Dolphins. But McKay, 53, rumored holder of a five-year $2 million contract, forever is on the offensive.

"You know I've said pro coaching is not so different from college coaching, and also I have heard it said that I will find out later that I am wrong," McKay said.

His gaze came through his spectacles , beneath a snow-white 1950 style haircut, with a laser effect. "I also have heard that line about people not wanting to be the first coach, but the second coach, of an expansion team like this one. But I assure you that when and if there is a second head coach here, he will inherit a solid foundation, and he will not find that the future has been traded away for a win-now philosophy, and I will wish him well, and I will fade into the sunset."

McKAY MIGHT HAVE PURSUED the George Allen course of immediate victory at all costs "if I had taken a job with an older team." But he said that would not be fair to owner Hugh Culverhouse or Tampa fans. "It would be a crime."

Building ground-upward, then, what would be a reasonable number of victories for the original Buccaneers?

"I have asked myself that," he said. McKay seems to have asked himself everything before anyone else even thought of the questions. "And I couldn't answer it. I'm so damn arrogant, I think I can win every game, but I'm not so stupid to really believe I can win them all. I just want to get this franchise as quickly as possible to the point where nobody will overlook us."

McKay's cigar-baton kept moving. "They said the Atlanta Falcons were 'overlooking' us when we beat them, 17-3, last week. If they were, it was very strange that they were using people like Claude Humphrey and John Zook and John Gilliam and Tommy Nobis 98 per cent of the game.

Well, only one original coach of an expansion team has ever lasted." Tom Landry at Dallas," McKay said quickly. "And, oh yes, Paul Brown at Cincinnati, but he owned part of the team."

THIS MAN McKAY is totally untroubled by such history. He came to the pros because, aside from the money, he was tired of taking midnight flights out of Oshkosh after offseason speaking engagements, on top of the brain-stretching regular season. "And it just wasn't fair to my wife to be away so much after working the hours (the same 17-hour shift, 6 a.m. until 11 p.m. he puts in here) that I did during the season."

Along with wife Corky and their last live-in child, 17-year-old Richie, Pa McKay was suppose to bring to Tampa the wit that stamped him as surely as his college championships.

On request he describes himself as "a no-nonsense coach with a sense of humor." Some in these parts would delete the qualifying phrase. "McKay acts as though it's an imposition to talk to us at all," one media man said, remembering Don Shula's twice daily press conferences in Miami.

But people have been known to lose their heads by putting them too close to Shula's mouth , and neither was Vince Lombardi an around-the-clock Happy Harold and Chuck Noll isn't exactly Mr. Interview, and Georgeous George seldom declaims except to his whiskered warriors in Washington.

"My idea both for myself and my players is to get the job done first and then enjoy yourself," McKay said. "I tell my pros exactly what I told my college players, 'Don't do anything to embarrass me because I sure won't do anything to embarrass you.'" He was proud of "getting through the Blazing Sixties without any major troubles at USC."

His cigar-baton quit waving. McKay placed it precisely on the edge of an ash tray. The diversion was over. McKay had a larger concert to direct. One had the feeling it might be a long one, more on the order of Arthur Fiedler than Spike Jones.

THE QUOTEBOOK

- JOHN McKAY, asked to compare coaching at USC and Tampa Bay: "Well, there's a three-hour time difference." Commenting on the eventual intrastate rivalry with the Miami Dolphins, McKay said: "It will happen eventually but, if I had my choice, we'd be playing Florida State first."
- BILL KILMER, Washington Redskins quarterback, claiming his arm is stronger than ever: "I'm throwing a harder wobble this year."
- CORNELL GREEN, retired Dallas Cowboys defensive back, asked when a player knows it's time to quit: "When he's too tired to make the postgame parties Sunday night."
- DUANE THOMAS of the Dallas Cowboys, reportedly commenting on the Clint Longley-Roger Staubach problem: "There is no room on this team for malcontents."
- LARRY CSONKA, New York Giants fullback, shrugging off a sprained neck incurred in an exhibition game: "You can never hurt a Hungarian by hitting him in the head."

GONE FISHIN'

JAMES OWENS...football player now

Rather than tacklers, Owens still sees hurdles

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press

It's football season but James Owens can't seem to get the Olympic Games out of his mind.

The 21-year-old UCLA sophomore, who has finished second in the NCAA high hurdles each of the last two years, had what he called a poor 1976 season. Yet he made it to the finals of the Olympic hurdle event and placed sixth. It was a good performance for a kid who one year ago was virtually unknown.

"Yeah," he signed, "I know it's football season, but I can't stop thinking about the Olympics. Especially the final. I run it over and over again in my mind."

Owens got a great start and was the leader after the first two barriers. But he smashed into the third and fourth, bumped the fifth and wasn't in contention after that.

"I still can't figure out how I hit those hurdles," he said. "I guess I was out so fast they just started coming up on me too fast.

"Maybe I was nervous, too. That was the worst pressure you cover ever dream of. The people just scare you..."

Guy Drut of France won the race and Owens said he was impressed with the size and speed of the 6-3, 185-pound Drut. "But what impressed me more was his technique. I learned a lot at the Olympics and one thing was that technique is the big thing. I have a good start and good speed, but I guess my technique has to get better."

Then Owens grew reflective: "I personally enjoyed the Olympics. It was a great experience because it was more personal than football, not a team effort but something you do on your own.

"But it taught me a lot of important things. I learned a lot from the coaches and my teammates, and I learned to listen more to adults. I think it'll help me in becoming a wide receiver."

Owens was interviewed on the opening day of the Bruins' football practice. He was dressed in his No. 3 uniform. For publicity purposes someone had brought a hurdle out on the grass and James was jumping over it with a football in his arms.

"Once picture day is over I won't have to hurdle any more for a while and maybe I'll be able to get the Olympic Games out of my mind and start thinking about football, the way I should be doing."

But Owens admitted that will last only as long as the 1976 collegiate season; "I'll be back in track next spring. With better technique..."

Harris sparks Rams, 23-14

They wouldn't talk to us about him. They were determined to do it with the Rams."

Wilson would rather do it with the Rams than the Raiders, who have less defensive help to offer.

"Injuries have wiped out our depth," Davis concedes. "We wouldn't want to trade a bunch of guys for Simpson and then end up like Buffalo—watching the playoffs on TV."

Klosterman is no more optimistic of bringing Simpson to the Rams—not for the record, anyway.

"There have been no negotiations recently," Klosterman says. "I wish I had something definitive to give you, but I don't. I have nothing that would shed any light."

Klosterman added his opinion that the chances of a deal decrease as the regular season—now three weeks away—approaches.

"At this stage, it's getting so late, a coach wants to get his team ready. You can't be changing key players.

"It's also very upsetting to the players. It's very disconcerting. That's why we've never mentioned any names. I was told by (Raider coach) John Madden today that all of his players are being mentioned, too.

"Besides," Klosterman concluded, "every indication is that O.J. has retired."

By halftime the Rams had dismissed another major concern — the selection of a starting quarterback.

Harris had to come from seven points behind after Oakland's Carl Garrett returned the opening kickoff 96 yards, and he sputtered and stalled for awhile until finally getting the offense in gear in the second quarter.

One drive stalled when former USC player Skip Thomas intercepted Harris's long pass to Harold Jackson in the end zone but Shack put everything together from then on.

On two successive drives, he completed 7 of 8 passes for 110 yards and both touchdowns. He took the Rams 50 yards before arching an end-zone flare to Ron Jessie, who had broken outside of Thomas.

Then, with 2:13 remaining before recess, he breezed 80 yards an climaxed it all with a flourish — a fake reverse to Jack Snow followed by a delicate toss to Cappelletti at the two. Cappy barrelling over the goal line.

Tom Dempsey's kick made it 13-7 at halftime although the Bayou Boomer had blown the earlier conversion as well as a field goal attempt — his first miss after five in a row.

Garrett, acquired by the Raiders from the New York Jets at the start of training camp, provided the opening fireworks. He took Dempsey's kickoff at the four, moved to the left sideline and shook off three Ram defenders as he cut back at midfield and broke free.

Following a 41-yard field goal by Dempsey in the third quarter (Rams, 16-7), the Raiders struck again early in the fourth when another ex-Trojan, Mike Rae, passed 18 yards to tight end Dave Casper to make it 16-14.

Jaworski's reply to that was a patient 13-play, 72-yard drive boosted by Neal Colzie's face-mask infraction against tight end Terry Nelson and Jaworski's 13-yard pass to Bob Klein.

The drive almost sputtered when Jaworski had to scramble to save a third-and-goal at the five, but Cappelletti collected his second touchdown, following Doug France's bulldozer blocking around left end.

Knox was most pleased that the Rams' running game returned after an impotent 77-yard effort in Seattle last week.

"We must have had over 200 yards tonight," he said. It was 206, topped by Cappelletti's 71 and McCutcheon's 66.

Jaworski was 4-for-10 in his 30-minute stint, but isn't counting himself out.

"I'm just looking for a big game against Buffalo," he said. "James has been playing well and I feel I've been playing well. It's going to be a difficult decision . . . a great situation for the coaches but not so great for the quarterbacks."

Broncos stampede Seahawk defenses

Associated Press

Denver's offense has been anemic at best through four games. Saturday night the Broncos took out their frustrations on the unsuspecting and equally unprepared Seattle Seahawks.

Scoring on its first four possessions and rolling to a 38-0 lead, Denver ultimately buried the expansionists, 52-7. The winners, held to 12 net passing yards last week, rolled up 300 against Seattle's young secondary and added another 191 on the ground.

A crowd of 71,718—largest of exhibition season—saw host Tampa drop a 28-21 decision to downstate rival Miami. In other action, Dallas socked Detroit, 36-16; Kansas City trimmed Washington, 23-20; St. Louis stung Chicago, 20-14; New England clubbed Atlanta, 28-17, and New York's Jets nipped winless Houston, 27-24.

Bob Griese threw three touchdown passes in the first half and the Dolphins defense held off the determined Bucs in the final 30 minutes for Miami's fourth victory.

Griese tossed three yards to Jim Mandich, 10 to Howard Twilley and six to Larry Seiple as the Dolphins scored on their first three possessions.

Field goals of 19, 45 and 47 yards by Mirro Roder kept Tampa within reach. Steve Spurrier went the distance for the losers, tossing underhanded to Vince Kendrick for a nine-yard score after being trapped behind the line of scrimmage in the second quarter and throwing 26 yards to tight end Larry Burton on fourth-and-six with three minutes remaining.

Danny White, playing before many of the same Memphis fans who cheered him in the World Football League last season, hit wide receiver Duke Fergerson for TDs of 13 and 8 yards to extend a 13-9 Dallas advantage in the second half.

Renee's new racket

Dr. Renee Richards, the well-known she who used to be known as a he, displays new-found feminine form in defeating Cathy Beene in opening round match of Tennis Week Open Saturday at South Orange, N.J. Renee had a little help from her rival who became so nervous that she double faulted 11 times and lost match, 6-0, 6-2.

Renee's rival was nervous to a fault — 11 of them

By NEIL AMDUR
New York Times Service

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Cathy Beene said her problems began when she knew she could win.

"The first game, I wasn't nervous," the 24-year-old Texan said of her opening women's singles match against Dr. Renee Richards in the $60,000 Tennis Week Open Saturday. "Then, when I realized I could beat her, I got nervous."

So nervous that Miss Beene served 11 double faults ("more than I've ever served in a match in my life") and lost, 6-0, 6-2, to Dr. Richards, 42 years old.

"I thought she'd be a lot tougher than she was," said Miss Beene, a former national collegiate doubles champion, who was playing in her first profssional tournament. "But she was as nervous as I was."

"I was exhausted." Dr. Richards said afterward of the 95-degree heat, 60 per cent humidity and the emotional strain of the last few days that overshadowed other elements of the 55-minute match.

It was a bizarre scene before a crowd of 2,700 at the normally staid Orange Lawn Tennis Club. Dozens of photographers crowded for key positions at mid court to capture Dr. Richards's first match in the New York metropolitan area since Richard Raskind, the New York ophthamologist underwent a sex change operation last August.

National television cameras taped Saturday's match, and Howard Cosell, the ABC broadcaster, stood in the north corner of the court and offered commentary while the match was in progress.

The controversy that has raged over the presence of Dr. Richards in the tournament also extended to the spectators, many of whom said they had come to the match out of curiousity.

"I don't think she should be allowed to play in women's tournaments unless she agrees to a sex test," said Dorvin Rosenberg of Warren, N.J.

However, Rosenberg's wife, Ilene, disagreed.

"I think nature is not always correct," Rosenberg said, echoing the sentiments of other women spectators. "She looks like a woman, plays like a woman. She is a woman. Chromosomes make things scientific, but nature is not always 100 per cent correct."

Although she won only six points in the first set, Miss Beene was convinced that Chris Evert and other top women pros could beat Dr. Richards.

"She's not as strong or powerful as I anticipated," the 5-foot 7-inch, 130-pound teaching pro from Houston said, of Dr. Richards, who is 6-2, 147 pounds. "She's got deceptive ground strokes, and I think she's a little steadier than she proved today."

Kathi Harder, another pro, who could meet Dr. Richards in the third round, said, "She's very good, and she's not even playing all-out."

J.C. Snead Massengale deadlocked

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP)—Rik Massengale had just blown a two-stroke lead with a double bogey on the 17th hole, had fallen back to a tie for the top but looked his questioners in the eye.

"What do you want me to say?" asked the young Texan.

"I'm happy to be where I am. I'd rather be leading than back behind trying to catch up."

The complexion of the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open golf tournament changed with speed of summer lightning Saturday. Massengale, whose consecutive 65s had set the pace through the first two rounds, looked over a six-foot putt on the 16th hole that would have given him a three-stroke lead and put him in position to run away with the tournament.

But he missed the putt. One hole later he was tied for the lead with big, easy-going J.C. Snead, who was notably unimpressed with the shift in fortunes that staked him to a share of the top spot.

"I don't care about that," said Snead, a former pro baseball player and a five-time winner on the pro golf tour. "I don't wish anybody any bad luck. Let 'em all play good."

Then he paused and grinned.

"Just let me play a little better."

Snead had a two-under-par 69 in the steamy, muggy heat and tied Massengale with a 54-hole total of 200, 13 under par on the 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course which, as usual, yielded some of the lowest scores of the year. The leaders' total matched the lowest three-round score of the year.

Massengale could do no better than one-under-par 70 in Saturday's third round. The double bogey was the key to the whole thing. He missed the green to the left, chipped well beyond the pin and then three-putted, missing from about 1½ feet on the second one.

It appeared to be a two-man race for the title.

"I can't shoot good enough to catch those guys," said Lee Trevino, whose 66 lifted him into the group tied for third at 204. Also at that figure, four shots back, were Chi Chi Rodriguez, Al Geiberger, Mac McLendon and Bobby Wadkins. Wadkins had a 67, Geiberger and Rodriguez 68s and McLendon a 69 in the muggy heat.

Hot rod event is rescheduled

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — The $200,000 International Hot Rod Association U.S. Open national championship event, scheduled for this weekend, became a victim of tropical storm Dottie Saturday morning.

The eighth annual three-day event, which was to have begun Friday, was rescheduled for next weekend, Aug. 28-29.

England captures Double Diamond

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP)—England won the Double Diamond match play team golf championship at Gleneagles Saturday, edging Gary Player's Rest of the World team by two holes.

England and the Rest of the World won two matches each in the head-to-head match play final over Gleneagles' 6,813-yard, par-70 King's course. But the holes record of the English quartet was two better than that of their opponents, so they won the first prize of $2,700 a man.

Scotland and Europe drew 22. The Scots, with a nine-hole advantage, won third place in the tournament.

Johnny Miller, captain of the humiliated United States team, watched the final and commented on television. The Americans were eliminated in the qualifying stages and failed to reach the semifinals.

The tournament fluctuated over the three days, with some strange results on the hard, sun-baked fairways.

"You get a lot of bad bounces in these conditions," Miller said.

Gary Player, after two days of uneven form, turned his game around Saturday with a fine effort for the Rest of the World. The South African defeated Martin Foster, 2-1.

But England came back to win the next two matches. Neil Coles defeated Simon Hobday of Rhodesia, 3-2, and Tommy Horton mastered Kazuo Yoshikawa of Japan, 2-1.

The man who denied England an shutout was Vicente Fernandez of Argentina. He defeated Tony Jacklin by one hole.

In the morning's semifinals England defeated Europe, 3½-½, and the Rest of the World beat Scotland, also 3½-½.

Horton snares Women's Am

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Donna Horton of Jacksonville, Fla., went ahead for the first time with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 31st hole of play Saturday and beat Californian Marianne Bretton, 2-1, to win the 76th U.S. Women's Amateur golf championship.

Miss Horton won the tournament a year after losing to Beth Daniel of South Carolina in the finals. Miss Bretton was playing in the event for the first time.

The 22-year-old U. of Florida graduate was 3-down after the first five holes of the match scheduled for 36 holes over the 6,175-yard Del Paso CC course. Miss Bretton, 18-year-old UCLA student from San Diego, also led 3-up through nine holes after posting seven pars and two birdies.

But after being virtually immune to bogeys for five days, Miss Bretton took six on the back nine including four in a row starting at the 15th, and the match was even after 18 holes on the cool and breezy day.

Miss Bretton twice went 1-up in the afternoon before Horton tied the match on the 29th hole, winning it with a par four.

Two holes later, at a 480-yard, par-five, Miss Bretton twice hit tree branches after hooking her tee shot and was lying four on the green when Miss Horton made her go-ahead putt.

The new champion, who won several junior titles in her former home state of North Carolina before moving to Florida, reached the semifinals of the Women's Amateur in 1973 before losing. She plans to get married next year to another Florida graduate, Michael White, and probably will embark on a pro golfing career.

Ohio divers collect AAU outdoor crowns

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — Two Ohioans, Kent Vosler and Barb Weinstein, won the men's and women's 10-meter platform events as the National Amateur Athletic Union's Outdoor Diving Championships came to an end Saturday.

Vosler, 20, of Eaton, Ohio, pleased the crowd and the judges with his last dive Saturday—one and one-half somersault with three twists. Three of the judges gave him perfect 10 scores.

That high score came after a poor showing on his next to last dive, a reverse two and one-half somersault, which is generally his best dive. Vosler finished fourth in the Montreal Olympic Games in the 10meter event, and he was only four points away from winning a bronze medal there.

Miss Weinstein, a 17-year-old freshman at Ohio State from Cincinnati, easily won the women's 10-meter platform championship. She said she didn't know what the scores were when she attempted her last dive, a three and one-half somersault.

"I knew when I went straight in I made it," Miss Weinstein said.

Robert Cragg, 22, of Maple Glen, Pa., and Cynthia McIngvale, 25 of Dallas, Tex., won the men's and women's high point awards for accumulating the most points during the five-day meet at Decatur's Point Mallard Aquatic Center.

Mrs. McIngvale won the one and three-meter springboard events early in the competition. But during Friday's semifinals for the 10-meter platform, she balked during a handstand and scored no points for that dive. Despite that, she finished ninth in the semifinals, but only eight women qualified.

Cragg did not win any event during the championships, but finished high enough to collect more points that anyone else.

Finishing second in the men's 10-meter competition Saturday was Bob McHenry, 20, of Warminster, Pa., and third was Greg Garlich, 20, of Kirkwood, Mo. Second in the women's platform competition Saturday was Lori Wettlaufer, 18, of Birmingham, Mich., and third was Melissa Briley, 19, of Miami, Fla.

After Saturday's competition, the diving pool was named for Jenni Chandler, gold medal winner in the three-meter springboard competiton at the Montreal Games. The Lincoln, Ala., resident finished 15th in semifinals for the three-meter competition Saturday. Eight women qualified for the event.

Two-way tie in ladies golf

Post catches Whitworth

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Sandra Post fired a two-under-par 71, including birdies on the last two holes, to move into a tie for the lead after the second round of the $55,000 Patty Berg Golf Classic.

Miss Post and Kathy Whitworth, who shot an even par 73 Saturday, both were seven under par after 36 holes on the 6,023-yard Keller Golf Course.

Bonnie Bryant, the only lefthanded golfer on the tour, eagled one hole on her way to a 71 to finish five under par after the second day.

Miss Post carded her 71 despite starting the back nine with a bogey and a double bogey. "Believe it or not, I was still in control when I started the 12th hole," she said. "Then I parred the next five holes and figured I was in good shape from then on."

The par 4, 373-yard 17th hole, the No. 1-rated hole on the course, proved the nemesis of several players, including Jane Blalock, whose 68 was the low round of the day and brought her two under par for the tournament.

Miss Blalock toured the front side five under par and had birdied two holes on the back before taking a double bogey on the 17th.

"My long irons are usually the best part of my game and my sand play is second best," she said. "I really don't know what I did out there."

Miss Whitworth said she was happy with her score, a par 73, but "I'm not happy with the way I got it." She three-putted three greens, misjudged a club selection and "my concentration went out the window there for a while." Miss Whitworth had fired a course record 66 to take an strong first-day lead.

Feuerbach easy winner in shot

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Al Feuerbach won the shot put and Willie Davenport captured the 110-meter hurdles Saturday at an international track meet watched by only 1,500 spectators in rainy weather.

Feuerbach's toss sailed 65 feet, 4¼ inches, while Herman Neudolt of Austria could do no better than 54-10¾.

Davenport won the hurdles in 13.96 seconds, well in front of Olympic gold medalist Guy Drut of France, who was clocked at 14.08. Another American, Charles Foster, was third in 14.27.

Debra Sapenter won the women's 100-meter dash in 12.19, trailed by Ursula Wecker of West Germany in 12.63, and James Gilkes of Guyana won the 100 meter dash in 10.56 seconds.

Mike Boit of Kenya won the 800 meters in 1:47.50.

Arnie Robinson, America's gold medalist in the long jump, finished a disappointing fourth.

L.B. cagers win tourney

Spano's Cafe of Belmont Shore won the Costa Mesa Mens Open Basketball championship Friday night at Estancia High defeating Woody's Warf of Newport Beach 78-75.

Most Valuable player and leading scorer Chuck Terry, formerly of Long Beach State basketball fame, scored 28 points, while Dan Frost, a graduate of Millikan and LBCC contributed 24.

Behind the playmaking of Bill Spano and Dean Decker, also a graduate of LBCC, Spano's Cafe came back from a three-point deficit late in game when Decker followed up his own steal and scored the go-ahead basket.

World Cup 1978 tourney still on

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The military government on Saturday reaffirmed its intention to stage the 1978 World Soccer Cup championship in Argentina despite the terrorist assination of the president of the championship organizing committee.

The committee president, retired Gen. Omar C. Actis, was killed Thursday when suspected terrorist gunmen fired at him as he left his home in Wilde, a Buenos Aires suburb.

It's a Pleasure

Honest Pleasure coasts to the wire, four lengths in front of runnerup Romeo, Saturday at Saratoga to win the 107th running of the historic Travers Stakes. Guided by jockey Craig Perret, Honest Pleasure broke the track record for the mile and a quarter romp with a clocking of 2:00⅕. —AP Wirephoto

Honest Pleasure back in form, wins Travers

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — Possibly because he didn't have to look Bold Forbes in the eye again, Honest Pleasure acted as if he owned the racetrack Saturday in the 107th running of the Travers Stakes.

Bertram Firestone's 3-year-old colt not only won the 1¼-mile race by four lengths, he set a track record in the process. Given a front-running ride by Craig Perret, Honest Pleasure came home safely ahead of a 45-1 long-shot named Romeo in 2:00⅕. In a leafy setting where time supposedly stands still, no other horse in the history of America's oldest stakes event had ever run it any faster.

LIVONIA, Mich. — The career of Royal Glint, thoroughbred racing's 19th million-dollar earner, was touched by tragedy Saturday when the horse broke down during the $100,000 Michigan Mile and One Eighth which was won by Sharp Gary. Royal Glint, the 3-5 favorite, was starting to draw away with one-half mile left in the race when he bobbled and his jockey Jorge Tejeira pulled him to the outside—away from oncoming horses. Track veterinarians reported that the 6-year-old gelding suffered a fractured sesamoid bone in his left foreleg and that attempts were being made to save Royal Glint's life. His total career earnings stand at $1,004,815. Running the 1⅛ miles in 1:50⅘, Sharp Gary returned $29.80.

New, old at harness meet

Come forth my brave steed, for the dew is on the flowers,
And we will away the speed of the hours,
The breath of the summer rides on the gale,
And health is abroad on each mountain and dale.

The only "mountains" are the lifts and rises of the turf course and the only "dale" is the infield where lakes, flowers and a goose or two flourish.

But it is mid-summer and the "brave steeds" from the standardbred ranks are picking 'em up and laying 'em down as they go through preparations for the Aug. 26-Dec. 13 Western Harness Racing meeting at Hollywood Park.

Nearly 700 trotters and pacers already are on the scene. Along with the human population they have turned the stable area into a mini-city.

With more horses yet to arrive, the backstretch soon will resemble the interchange of the San Diego and Santa Monica Freeways as early morning workouts, which began Thursday, create their usual traffic jam.

THERE'S SOMETHING new and old at every turn of the stable area as drivers and trainers try to scale the mountain to the winners' circle.

The familiar smile of Gene Vallandingham comes through brighter than ever as he puts his 35-horse stable through its paces. The driver-trainer has been a mainstay at Hollypark in recent years and he always has a surprise or two for his followers. This year, it is Midnight Choo Choo, a $50,000 purchase.

Eddie Dunnigan, Vic Frost, Denny Hawk and Jack Beelby are names not too familiar with Hollypark fans, but they make up a sizeable part of the new faces on the WHR scene.

Dunnigan hails from the Eastern circuit. After a stint with the famed John Chapman, he hitched on as a second trainer for Bill Haughton before going on his own in 1973.

Frost, should Western Harness land the World Driving Championships as expected, would represent Australia. His 11-horse stable is loaded with talent.

Hawk is coming from The Meadows in Pennsylvania, and, according to director of racing Pres Jenuine, he "could be the surprise of the meeting."

Beelby, a native of Saskatoon, Can., is also making his first junket west and is ready to make strong impressions.

The list of returning drivers and trainers is also strong, with such as Shelly Goudreau, Joe Lighthill, Mark Aubin, Doug Ackerman, Bobby Williams, Steve Desomer and Larry Gregory ready to return to action.

Always known for its innovative promotions, Western Harness will get off on a good note, featuring bands the first three nights of the season.

Judging from the parade of newcomers and oldtimers, the tune should carry through to the Dec. 13 closing.

Barons edged, 5-4, in state tournament

Petrolock of Lancaster surprised the Lakewood Barons, 5-4, in the winner's bracket final Saturday at Cypress Park in the ASA State Open softball tournament.

Petrolock plays the winner of today's noon game between the Barons and Gordon's of Orange at 2 p.m.

Gordon's defeated the Lakewood Truckers, 1-0, in 13 innings in the highlight of the day that was marred by Trucker outfielder Bill Hardy pushing and then ripping the shirt off base umpire Bill Rider.

ASA commissioner Norm Stephens of West Covina, present at the game, announced Hardy would be barred for all of 1977 as a result of the action against the umpire.

Tournament results
Truckers 4, Huntington Park 2 (12 innings); Cypress 3, Gordon's 0; Barons 5, Truckers 1; Petrolock 2, Cypress 1 (11 innings); Huntington Park 3, Cypress 0; Gordon's 1, Truckers 0 (13 inn.). Gordon's 2, Barons 1.

Toro loses 'battles,' wins Del Mar 'war' vs. Pincay

A loser of two earlier "battles" to hot-riding Laffit Pincay by the slender margin of a nose, Fernando Toro won the "war" Saturday as he piloted Sweet Robbery to victory over favored Bold Baby and Pincay in the featured $27,00 Osunitas Stakes.

In the sixth race, Toro appeared home free on Bingo II until collared in the final stride by Silver Saber and Pincay. It was the same story in the seventh as Pincay got Blue and Gold up in the last jump to nose out Toro's mound, Triggairo.

In the Osunitas Stakes, a mile and one-sixteenth test on the grass for fillies and mares, Toro sent the speedy Sweet Robbery right to the lead, rating the daughter of No Robbery masterfully. When Bold Baby and Pincay threaatened in the stretch, Sweet Robbery showed gameness in Hanging on to tally by a half-length in 1:42⅘ for the distance.

Madam Gaylady, a 21-1 longshot, was third, a nose in front of Tuscaroro in the field of eight.

Sweet Robbery paid $9.80, $4 and $3.80 while earning $16,450 for her owner Mary Ann Tanz. Jerry Fanning conditions the three-year-old bay filly who was scoring her fifth triumph in 16 starts this year.

Bold Baby, who was conceding seven pounds to the winner, 122 to 115, rewarded her supporters in a crowd of 19,904 with $3.40 and $3.20, while Madam Gaylady returned $6.20 to show.

HAVING established herself as one of the top sophomore fillies in the West with a series of strong performances at Hollywood Park and Golden Gate Fields, Francis A. Stearns' Franmari will make her Del Mar debut today in the $40,000 added Del Mar Oaks.

Go March, another hard-hitting stretch runner, is expected to provide her toughest opposition in the mile and one-eighth turf event which lured a field of seven.

Don Pierce is the regular rider for Franmari, and Pincay has the call on Go March who Pierce directed to victory in the recent Sa Clemente Stakes at Del Mar. Peacefully, I Going, Pennygown, Miss Gallivant and Quintas Fannie complete the field.

Sweet Robbery was an entry in today's feature but scratched to run in the Osunitas, a happy choice. Pennygown, on the other band, scratched from the Osunitas to try her luck today.

Cardinals rebound with win

FARMINGTON, N.M. (Special) — The Long Beach Cardinals employed a pair of two-run innings and a combined two-hitter by Stan Williams and Dave Hill to subdue Nashville, Tenn., 4-1, Saturday night in the Connie Mack World Series.

It leveled the Cardinals' Series record at 1-1 and earned them a day off today. The team resumes action Monday.

Long Beach broke a scoreless tie in the fifth inning when Williams knocked in Mike Berberet from second base with a booming double to right. Williams later scored on Mike Carpenter's sacrifice fly.

In the sixth, Dan Gausepohl slashed a one-out single, stole second and surprised everyone by racing home on an infield roller by Dan Graf. Kevin Miller followed with a single and pinch runner Bruce Heiser came in on Berberet's second hit of the game.

Nashville .... 000 001 0— 1 2 3

Great albacore bite continues

The albacore run is still going strong along most parts of the Pacific Coast and even as far north as British Columbia, but as predicted, the greatest catches this year are occurring along the Southern California coast. Perhaps "along" is not the word because the fish still are far out for the San Diego boats.

A San Diego boat starts out just before midnight and usually the first stop is about daybreak 45 miles out. That same boat may travel 20 or 30 more miles south or southwest before the return trip begins, but the catch is averaging almost three fish per passenger. What's more, the fish are larger than they were, ranging from 16 to 20 pounds.

The Royal Polaris returned from a long-range, multi-day trip Friday with albacore that averaged out at about 25 pounds. The Polaris and the Qualifier 105 are two long-range craft that use Fisherman's Landing in San Diego for home port.

One of the surprises of the week just ended was the report of albacore running within 25 miles of Avila Beach. Skip Sato, who operates Port San Luis Sportfishing at Avila, said that passengers are averaging two to five fish on the Marauder, which has been fishing albacore exclusively for a week. Skip plans to start the landing's other boat, Diablo, on albacore runs today. The fish at Avila are running from 20 to 25 pounds, with some occasionally larger.

IT WOULD BE NICE to announce that the albacore were "along" the coast off Long Beach. Nobody can say why the longfins don't come near us except that the water temperature isn't right, or perhaps the albacore just don't like any part of Orange and Los Angeles Counties and the offshore waters. When they travel north, the best place to get them is off Avila Beach and Morro Bay.

Skip Sato has some words of advice for albacore fishermen on lines and hooks. He says: "Regardless of the size of the fish that we are catching, 20- or 25-pound-test lines are all that a person should need. Even 30-pound-test line is OK provided it has a small diameter. Forty-pound-test is a no-no in albacore fishing. Use No. 1 or No. 2 hooks."

Veteran albacore anglers always carry extra rods and reels. If a fish breaks off one terminal rig, the angler can grab another outfit and start fishing. Often the albacore rise to trolled lures and may stay on the surface for only a short time so the situation calls for rapid action on the part of anglers before the fish decide to sound and seek deeper water.

Sato's boats use far stronger test line for trolling. Even though those boat rigs raise and catch fish, the skipper always gives the fish to customers who have not had any luck at a bait stop. This should be done on all sportfishing boats everywhere.

THE HARRY DAVIS MARLIN tournament of the Balboa Angling Club will be held on Labor Day weekend (Sept. 4-6) and the entry fee will be $15 per angler. The event is open to all anglers and is not restricted to those with club affiliations. The money raised is used for the club's youth program. The club usually charters two or three fishing boats to take out underprivileged youngsters for a day of fishing.

The club's secretary, Helen Smith, announces there will be an added incentive this year for the anglers who pay the $15 entry fees. The BAC has been able to make arrangements with Motorboat magazine to qualify the Harry Davis Tournament in the magazine's annual contest. It is known as the "Motorboat Magazine Master Angler Tournament."

Each entrant in the BAC's tournament automatically becomes eligible to compete in that Master Tournament. The country is divided into eight regions. At the conclusion of the regionals, the winners will be flown to Florida with all expenses paid by Motorboat. There they will fish for three days in February on some of the most famous fishing boats in that state.

Applications and rules may be obtained from the Balboa Angling Club, or you may call (714) 673-3520 after noon on weekdays for information.

THE WEEKLY TROUT SUMMARY from Bishop and points north showed a definite change over the last weekend when about an inch of snow fell at most lakes, streams and resorts at 9,000 feet and higher. Below that, there was scattered rain. Packers reported that most of the people in the high back country had to stay in their tents.

One early-morning temperature reading at Bridgeport was 23 degrees, but that kind of weather didn't keep Greg Price of Reseda from taking a 13-pound brown trout in Bridgeport Lake. He was still-fishing and using a night crawler for bait. Three four-pounders also were reported.

Four $100 bonus trout remain in June Lake and there is one $100 bonus fish each in Gull, Silver and Grant. The tagged fish must be caught before Labor Day, closing time for the June Lake Loop derby.

In a weekend of strange weather, anglers had to depend mostly on lakes and streams that had been planted by the Department of Fish and Game. Such as:

All the forks of Bishop Creek, Sabrina Lake, which was high and almost spilling over the dam, Upper and Lower Twin Lakes (Bridgeport) and Robinson Creek, Rock Creek Lake and also the stream, Mary and Mamie Lakes in the Mammoth group and the San Joaquin River at Reds Meadows.

There was little activity in the Owens River and in Hot Creek.

Records in peril at Marine Stadium

The International Speed Ski and Barefoot Association presents its second championship event today at Marine Stadium with world record performances not out of the question in three divisions of competition.

In the open barefoot quarter-mile ski run, five entrants will shoot for the elusive 100 mph plateau. The record is 93.66, held by Hacienda Heights' Gordon Epling, who will be on hand in an attempt to better his mark.

His chief competition will come from former recordholder Craig Vestermark (105 unofficial), Lee Kirk (94.00 unofficial), Mike Plunkett (93.00) and John Taylor (97.00 unofficial). Vestermark, Plunkett and Kirk are from Long Beach, Taylor from San Diego.

In ski competition, Danny Churchill's 126.40 mph mark will be under fire from Chuck Stearns (122.11) of Bellflower, Australia's Gary Williams (122.00) and Laguna Beach's Craig Wendt (116.00), winner of last Sunday's Catalina race.

Also entered are Bakersfield's Bob Davis (113.00) and Mission Viejo's Tim Guckes (110.00).

In women's barefoot competition, world record holder Michelle Fisher of Australia will attempt to better her 63.00 mph mark.

In the blow fuel hydro class, Fresno's Earl Bachant, who recorded a 195 mph run two weeks ago at Marine Stadium, will shoot for the world record of 204 mph. Bachant will drive Golden Thing.

Bachant's competition will come from Ed Hyder, LaPalma, Western Wheels; Hal Kenvaride, Fresno, Mekins Special; Dave Harris, Pacheco, Down 'n' Out; Jay Gordon, Pacheco, Black Magic; Ernie Smithly, Fresno, Hot Jaws; Gene Dever, Alhambra, Blood, Sweat, Nitro, and Mike Burbeil, Santa Ana, Mr. Ed.

In blown fuel K boat circle competition, world record holder Vic Vannella of Bellflower (130 mph) in Trojan Ghost, will be challenged by Lonnie Fuent of Fresno driving Dark Side of the Moon.

Gates will open at 8 a.m. with competition beginning at noon.

A fish story with a happy ending

Ridder News Service

SANTA CLARA — For Mr. and Mrs. Don Blair, it was one of those situations—like in a movie cartoon—where an enraged fish could have dragged their small boat over the bounding main.

The Santa Clarans were in a 13-foot boat fishing on Suisun Bay when Don snagged what he thought was the bottom. Suddenly, however, the bottom started moving with great vigor.

He had hooked a 201-pound sturgeon, a prize almost bigger than the boat. A hectic half-hour struggle ended happily when good Samaritans in a 25-foot cabin cruiser came alongside and wrestled the huge fish aboard.

The Blairs are having it mounted.

LBCC to host professional volleyballers

The L.A. Stars and Santa Barbara Spikers, battling for second place in the Western Division of the International Volleyball Association, will meet Saturday night at Long Beach City College.

This marks the Stars' final home match of the season.

The contest is important to both teams because the first and second-place finishers in the IVA West automatically qualify for the playoffs.

The Stars currently are second with a 20-13 record while Santa Barbara is third, 18-14.

The Stars were to have played at Long Beach City on Tuesday against Phoenix, but the match has been postponed because of a schedule change involving Phoenix and Tucson. No makeup date has been set.

A new game starts each Thursday
All correct entries qualify for the Grand Prize Drawing

★ HOW TO PLAY ★

CA$H-O is a weekly game played with numbers. Games begin on Thursday and end on Tuesday. A CA$H-O chart will be published each of these days in the Independent Press-Telegram. A CA$H-O chart contains 24 number boxes and a CA$H-O box in the center. Three or four new numbers will be published each day Thursday through Tuesday. A total of 22 numbers will be published by Tuesday.

Copy the published numbers on your CA$H-O entry form (or draw your own entry form) as they appear in the Independent Press-Telegram each day, Thursday through Tuesday. By Tuesday you will find that there are only two numbers missing. When you fill in the two correct numbers you have solved CA$H-O.

How you arrive at the correct solution to CA$H-O and what the two missing numbers are, is what makes CA$H-O a real challenge. Look out! CA$H-O may fool you. To solve CA$H-O you may have to add, subtract, multiply, divide or you may have to do a combination of those things. You may even have to find another way to solve CA$H-O, such as by inverting numbers or by seeing a pattern develop which could lead you to a solution. CA$H-O is tricky. It's not only a new game with a new solution each week, but the method of solution may also change each week. Watch it!

★ RULES ★

1. It is not necessary to buy or subscribe to the Independent Press-Telegram or to use a CA$H-O entry form. Copies of these newspapers can be checked at public libraries. You may submit an entry by copying on a plain sheet of paper the entry form and the published numbers as they appear in the Independent Press-Telegram together with your solution of the two unpublished numbers. Photo or mechanically reproduced entries will not be accepted.

2. After you have completed your CA$H-O entry, mail it to:
CA$H-O
Independent Press-Telegram
P.O. Box 420
Long Beach, CA 90801
or bring your entry to the Independent Press-Telegram building at 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

3. There is no limit on the number of entries you may submit, but each entry must be in a separate envelope and each must be received no later than 5 p.m. of the Monday following the end of each weekly contest. Prize winners will be determined by random drawings among the correct solutions received on time. If no correct solutions are received or fewer correct solutions are submitted than the number of prizes offered, the prizes, or the remaining prizes, will be awarded by means of random drawings from all entries received by the closing time. The decisions of the Independent Press-Telegram judges are final in all cases.

4. PRIZES: Each week one first prize of $300, one second prize of $200 and five third prizes of $100 each will be awarded. BONUSES: A 10% cash bonus will be awarded to regular CA$H-O weekly winners who are verified daily home delivery subscribers to the Independent or Press-Telegram as of the date of the drawing.

GRAND PRIZE: After the last CA$H-O game, the Grand Prize 1977 Ford Thunderbird winner will be selected at random from all correct entries received, including past winners.

Winners' names and the answers to the weekly puzzles will be published in the Independent, Press-Telegram on the Wednesday following each game's deadline. Cash prizes will be mailed.

5. The contest is open to anyone 18 years of age or older, except employees, circulation representatives and their immediate families of the Independent Press-Telegram, Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc., its affiliated companies, and Marden Kane, Inc.

6. The winners grant the Independent Press-Telegram the right to publish their names and photographs without additional compensation. Local, state and federal taxes, if any, must be borne by the winners.

7. NO TELEPHONE INFORMATION REGARDING DAILY NUMBERS WILL BE GIVEN.

Swift Pearson sitting on pole

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — David Pearson, winner of six of eight races at Michigan International Speedway since 1972, will start on the pole position in today's Champion 400 Grand National stock car race by virtue of a sizzling, record-breaking qualifying run.

Pearson zoomed around the high-banked two mile oval Saturday in his white and red Wood Brothers prepared Mercury at an average speed of 160.875 mph almost three mph better than the record he set in 1974.

Cale Yarborough, who had turned the fastest laps in Friday's practice, settled for third starting position, behind Buddy Baker, whose speeds picked up dramatically from Friday. Baker averaged 159.875 in his Ford and Yarborough's Chevrolet was at 159.546.

Lennie Pond surprised for fourth place with a speed of 158.593. Next were Richard Petty, pole winner here for a race in June, Bobby Allison and Dave Marcis—all above the previous track record.

"Man it was out of sight," said Pond. "I feel like anytime I start in front of Petty I'm ahead of the game."

The first 20 qualifiers were bunched within 1.7 seconds of each other, despite Pearson's edge of a full mile an hour.

Pearson, who won a duel with Yarborough, Allison and Petty here in June, said, "We don't change too much to run here each time. The Woods have a good idea how to set up a car for this track.

"Still, I think I could have gone faster if I hadn't gone into the first turn so hard on my best lap. The car started sliding and I had to let off for just a second to regain control."

A cleaver stunt at Riverside

RIVERSIDE — Hollywood stunt driver Bobby Ferro, the biggest winner in off-road racing, will start in the pole position today in the feature unlimited dune buggy main event of the SCORE World Championships of Off-Road Racing at Riverside International Raceway.

Ferro, 28, of Sherman Oaks, averaged 42.2 mph on his fastest lap around the 2.5-mile obstacle course today to become the fastest four-wheel driver during a marathon series of 42 two-lap qualifying races.

Fastest overall was a motorcycle rider, Terry Clark, 23, of Lancaster, who was clocked at 43.691 mph on the 50-turn course.

Ferro will start on the front row of the 25-mile dune buggy feature with the Pikes Peak Hillclimb champion, Rick Mears, 23, of Thousand Oaks, who qualified at 41.981 mph, and Malcolm Smith of Riverside, who averaged 41.978 mph.

Rick's older brother, Roger Mears, 26, of Bakersfield, will start on the pole for the two-seat dune buggy main event with Dow Hadaway of Sun Valley, riding as navigator. Mears, who won the single-seat race the last two years and who is qualified fourth fastest in that race, averaged 40.146 mph to turn fast time in two-seat buggy qualifying.

The first of eight 10-lap races will begin at 11 a.m. today.

Another baseball title for Taiwan

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Taiwan pitchers Yung-Chang Chang and Chung-Yung Lee combined Saturday night for a one-hit, 4-0 shutout of Broward County for the the Big League Little League World Series title.

It was the third title in as many attempts for the Taiwanese in the World Series for boys aged 16-18. They have won all 12 Series games they have played, including four in this year's double elimination event.

Taiwan pitchers have given up only three runs in three years, including two runs last Sunday in a 7-2 victory over USA West.

Right-hander Chang worked the first two innings and southpaw Lee the final five for Taiwan.

Taiwan, which had seven hits, jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Hua Wei Lin doubled, moved to third on a single and stole home off losing pitcher Greg Thomas.

Johnny is first in line

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Johnny Rutherford was the first car out on the track Saturday in qualifying for today's Tony Bettenhausen 200-mile championship car race, and he was still No. 1 when the last car came off.

Rutherford, driving a yellow McLaren-Offenhauser, covered the one-mile State Fair Park oval in 27.79 seconds, averaging 129.543 miles an hour in winning the pole position for today's race.

Next fastest was Gordon Johncock in a Wildcat-Offy, averaging 128.940 m.p.h. Tom Sneva, in a McLaren-Offy, clocked 128.848 m.p.h., and Bobby Unser, in an Eagle-Offy, had a speed of 128.801 m.p.h.

The Adult Amusement Park.

❶ Welcome to the Grandstand. For two bucks and two bits, you're in. To a night of fun, and possible gains (Last year, one of our Exactas paid over $2,500). That's a lot of entertainment for you, and your money.
❷ Ripple-ripple. Honk-honk. Naturally, there are plenty of lakes, flowers and geese. If that's what turns you on.
❸ When the track announcer says, "They're rounding the far turn, and heading for home," here's where you should be looking.
❹ The Turf Club is one of the most elegant spots in the park. In fact, in the town. The food is superb and you can reserve a terrace table by simply calling (213) 678-1181, ext. 391. Radiant heating at no extra charge.
❺ This is what it all comes down to. The wire. For those who seek fun and profit, it's the most important place there is.
❼ Everybody needs a rest now and then, so there are 26 rooms throughout the park for that purpose. They're called restrooms. Here's one. Find the other 25, and you'll miss a great night of harness racing.
❽ Hot dogs! If a cold beer and a red-hot is your idea of a blast, you'll be in frankfurter-heaven here. 18 snack stands grace the premises. All carefully placed for fast between-race service, and equipped with color videotape replays of each race (In fact, there are 75 color replay sets throughout the park), so you won't miss a hoof-beat.

People Talk

DEATH IS cold. The officialdom that attends death can be even colder. The family of 55-year-old Adam J. Scalabrine of Long Beach can testify to that.

On June 22, Scalabrine bade a distraught goodby to his family and fled to Los Angeles in apparent escape from the physical and mental ills that had shadowed his life since World War II. Five days later his badly decayed body was found on the floor of a cheap rented room on Sawtelle Boulevard, where he taken final refuge.

The West Los Angeles Division police officers who answered the "dead body" call did their routine paper work, established that no foul play was involved, then turned the body over to a Santa Monica mortuary which was serving as "coroner of the month."

It was officially assumed that the dead man was a transient and had succumbed of natural causes sometime between June 22 and June 27.

If the coroner's representative had bothered to look in Adam Scalabrine's wallet, he would have found a Gemco membership card (with Long Beach street address), a card proclaiming Scalabrine's life membership in the Disabled Americans Veterans, a Veterans Administration hospital registration card, a driver's license (with color photo and address), a record of physician appointments—and a sheet of note paper listing a score of names, addresses and telephone numbers to be checked in the event of emergency.

Any one on that list could have been notified by the mortuary. Any one. But they weren't called. Adam Scalabrine's body lay in the mortuary unclaimed.

On June 25, a missing persons report had been filed with the Long Beach Police Department by Mrs. Ethel Scalabrine, who had divorced Adam some years before but had remained on friendly terms with him, always solicitous of his welfare. She had last seen him on June 22, and he had been talking suicide, as he had on many other occasions. She feared for his life.

Being a missing person isn't a crime for an adult. They're missing because they want to be. Adam Scalabrine wanted to be missing, and yet he wanted to be found, too—the wealth of identification in his wallet testified to that.

Long Beach sent out a missing persons bulletin to other police agencies, including Los Angeles. Nothing was heard back. The anguish of Ethel and Scalabrine's daughter, Rose, ground on.

On July 26, Ethel Scalabrine called missing persons at the Long Beach Police Department to offer a suggestion in the hunt for her former husband. By cruel coincidence Long Beach had just received a cancellation of the Adam Scalabrine bulletin. He had been found, dead, on June 27.

The ordeal was over. Now came the questions. Why had it taken a month for authorities to notify the family? Why had the papers in Adam Scalabrine's wallet been ignored by the coroner? Surely, he could have called one of the names on Adam's list. Or if not the coroner, then the deputy public administrator. Somebody could have taken the time.

But nobody did.

The mortaury where Adam had been kept for 29 days offered no explanation, no sympathy. All the mortuary offered was a bill for $1,200. Ethel and Rose paid it, and Adam Scalabrine was laid to rest in Twenty-Nine Palms.

I've seen the contents of Adam Scalabrine's wallet. I've seen the police reports, the mortuary bills and the canceled checks that closed the story. But I have yet to see any reason why the family was kept in the dark so long.

The Long Beach Police Department did its part. And it's hard to fault the police of Los Angeles, who followed routine. The police care, but they get busy, work shortstaffed during vacation months, haven't the time to follow up every missing persons report, not when the files of such reports sometimes measure two inches in thickness on a given day.

But somebody had the time to call. In less time than it takes to fill out a funeral bill of $1,200, a telephone call could have been placed.

The only person who had the time was Adam Scalabrine. He had an eternity of time, but no one would listen to the messages in his wallet.

Ethel and Rose Scalabrine still have no autopsy report, no established cause of death. There are so many things they don't know.

It's too late to help the Scalabrine family. But maybe it's not too late to help others who may some day face a similar situation.

The way to help is to ask—and keep asking—why. When officialdom is cold, subject it to heat, and lots of it.

Volunteer divers look for ways to safeguard kelp

By DICK HOWLAND
Staff Writer

The kelp beds at Whites Point off San Pedro fill a role similar to that of storybook giant trees, growing new branches faster than Jack's beanstalk at night and providing shelter and oxygen for a teeming population of marine life.

But the kelp is vulnerable during the day. Masses of hungry sea urchins move in with a taste only for the roots of the kelp plants. A few urchins alone often wipe out a large mass of kelp by destroying the roots. The kelp, vital to the ecology, then washes ashore and dies on the beach.

During a 24-hour research project that began at noon Saturday at Whites Point and ends today, volunteer divers are studying the growth patterns of the kelp and the feeding habits of the urchins.

The goal of the project's sponsor, Coastal Monitoring Systems, is to understand the Whites Point ecosystem and to guard against the devastation of the kelp, which has only recently been saved from near-extinction.

Terry Lackey, a director of the group, said the public is invited to attend lectures today at noon at the research site: at the south end of a beach that can be reached by taking a road down the cliff from Paseo del Mar about a 100 feet south of Western Avenue. Topics include tides, currents, salinity and marine taxonomy (the academic classifications of animals).

Members of Coastal Monitoring have already taken underwater topographic surveys, marking compass coordinates on concrete blocks embedded in the rock.

This weekend, 24 divers and 24 safety observers, assisted by medical personnel and statisticians, are participating in the project.

Different teams of divers are working two hours underwater in four-hour cycles, tagging the most recently sprouted new branches and, at the end of the project, counting how many additional branches have started and measuring their length.

As they leave the water, the divers are providing data on the metabolic changes the recreational diver undergoes while reacting to stress underwater.

Lackey said the project may be undertaken on a quarterly basis with support from the State Department of Fish and Game. Coastal Monitoring is working on the establishment of an underwater city park at Whites Point.

'Big Daddy' just good father, husband now

By BRAD ALTMAN
Staff Writer

As the 'Beatnik Millionaire' he says he never made more than $10,000 a year.

"Hello— I'm Ed Roth," the man said, wiping his hands on grubby, paint-splattered pants and offering a strong handshake. "Be right with you."

Roth turned toward a neighborhood youth in the cluttered garage attached to his La Mirada home. "I should have the car pinstriped by late this afternoon."

He smiled earnestly. "I pinstripe all cars for $25 if they bring them to my home," he explained.

There was a pause and Roth's 255-pound, 6-foot-3 frame seemed to sag a little. "These kids are too young to remember," he said wistfully. "They don't know my reputation."

Once well-known as "Big Daddy," Roth has sunk into anonymity since the days when he was called "King of the Customizers" and the "beatnik millionaire."

Although he's still involved in an occasional promotion, few people outside the automotive world recall the "good crazy" image he projected in the 1960s when journalist Tom Wolfe immortalized him in a classic Esquire magazine article, "The Kandy-Kolored Tangerine-Flake Streamline Baby."

In the 1960s Roth built 25 customized cars, was an originator of the silk-screening T-shirt process, became famous for his car designs of model kits for youngsters and founded a magazine for motorcycle enthusiasts.

In the 1963 article, later reprinted in a book, Wolfe described Roth as the Salvador Dali of the custom-car movement . . . "the most colorful, and the most intellectual, and the most capricious. Also the most cynical . . . a showman by temperment — a prankster."

The Hell's Angels were his friends in the mid-'60s when he "rode around with them" on his Harley-Davidson chopper. His trademark was a black hearse with his fiberglass cars towed behind.

Roth estimates he visited 300 car shows nationwide in 10 years and won as many trophies for his car creations. The transient-like existence came to a halt in 1970 when his wife of 18 years divorced him.

Roth talked about his marriage and career Saturday while puttering in his garage workshop. He kept his hands busy, cutting, shaping, grinding a plaster mold, never allowing the conversation to be the total focus of his energy.

In 1970 Roth didn't like long hair and loud music, especially the kind that has drug-related lyrics. His five sons, then aged 10 to 16, apparently liked both. So he asked the oldest, "Do you want to drive a car or have long hair?

"My wife's answer was, 'They will have both.' My response was, 'Take the kids or me.' She said goodby. After 18 years of marriage, I thought she was kidding."

Roth said he "sold everything" after the divorce. He remarried a year later and today, at 44, lives with wife, Beverly, and her two children in a neat tract home. Parked on the front lawn is a small foreign car with his phone number printed on the side to advertise his part-time pinstriping hobby.

In the past few years Roth has gone in new directions. He shaved his goatee 18 months ago: "I decided it had to come off because when you present yourself to new people you have to be non-offensive to communicate."

For a year he has worked at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park, where he is a graphics designer: "I want to work here until I retire. I like the employe benefits and the company's clean image."

He joined the Mormon Church: "Man, I dig it when I go to church on Sunday and sing 'God Bless America.' Mormons don't let habits like drinking or smoking rule their lives." He brandishes his hands around the cluttered garage. "Here's my habit. But I tinker after all my obligations are out of the way."

(Turn to Page B-4, Col. 6)

"BIG DADDY" Roth, once widely known, today is a graphics artist at Knott's Berry Farm, left. In the late 1960s, right, Roth was known as the "King of the Customizers."

Vans are a habit owners wouldn't dream of kicking

Vans are the covered wagons of the 1970s.

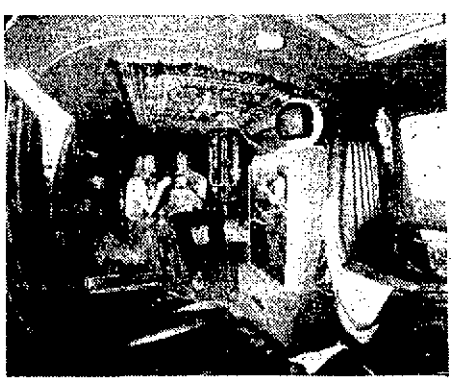
Super deluxe perpetual-motion machines stylishly moving their youthful riders from one place to another.

Vans are the American love affair with the automobile taken all the way to Nirvana.

It was the rough riders of the 1960s with their pickup trucks and their shaved down Chevys. Those Chevys have been replaced by the pleasure package of the 1970s—vans—and the riders call themselves the vanners.

Some vans have painted flames pouring from their engines. Others have serene sunsets emblazoned across their sides. Some just have a factory paint job.

Customizing a van is a powerful individual statement. As individual as vanners themselves.



The advertisement for one major van maker shows a stripped-down van just off the assembly line.

"We've done our thing," the ad proclaims. "Now you do yours." The bottom half of the ad shows a van with super scoups (front-end wind directors), a spoiler (rear-end wind deflector) and flares (wind fenders to accomodate wide tires).

Deluxe.

"Let's get one thing straight right off," said Ivas Berzins, owner of Discount Vans in Carson. "A van is not a van unless the engine is in the front."

With that one statement, Berzins, who has been into van mania for eight years, automatically banished the rear-engine Volkswagen vans to lowly "bus" status.

SURROUNDED by a television, refrigerator and plush carpets and rugs, Bob and Teri Rath toast each other in Rath's van "Cherry Hill." —Staff Photo by CURT JOHNSON

"Everyone wants to create an individualized environment," Berzins continued. "Vans give you room for self-expression."

Berzins' store, 1339 E. 223rd St., stockpiles all the goodies needed to customize a van — from smoked plexiglass potholes (windows) to "Deluxe Super Scoops" to the hot items like a decoupaged snack tray.

The most popular tray is one with a man and a woman standing on a beach with a scenic sunset as a backdrop.

L.B. squad gets third place

County team captures junior-lifeguard crown

The Los Angeles County team captured the overall championship Saturday and the host Long Beach squad finished third in all three divisions of the first Junior Lifeguard National Team Championships.

The competition, sponsored by the Long Beach Junior Lifeguard Program, the National Surf Lifesaving Association and Beck's Sail Inn, was held on the beach near the 62nd Place lifeguard station.

The county team, which was made up of the best of the program's 3,000 junior lifeguards, earned 145 points to win the overall title.

The Huntington Beach city team finished second in the overall competition with 130 points, while Long Beach collected 94 points to win the third-place trophy. Teams from Huntington Beach State Beach, San Clemente and Santa Barbara also participated in the competition, which is part of the 11th annual California International Sea Festival under way in Long Beach.

The county team won the A Division title (for boys and girls 14 to 17) and finished second in both the B (12-13) and C (10-11) divisions.

Huntington Beach City Beach won the B and C divisions and was second in the A division.

Approximately 2,000 spectators turned out to watch the 400 junior lifeguards compete in such events as distance runs and swims, paddle board and swimming relays, run-swim-run and musical flags, which is designed to test the competitors' agility on the beach.

The best event for the Long Beach squad was the C Division musical flags. Ken Schanz, Jim Serain and Jeff Aldinger gave the hosts a one-two-three sweep.

Steve Corfield and Jon Danner gave Long Beach its only other one-two finish in the A Divison run-swim-run.

Reagan, a touch of class

KANSAS CITY— Ronald Reagan's active political career was concluded Thursday in much the same way it began 12 years ago — with a speech associated with defeat.

In both cases, there was associated with the speech a considerable touch of class.

REAGAN'S 1964 speech for Republican Presidential Candidate Barry Goldwater was a skillful exhortation for the free enterprise system, and was written and delivered with such mastery that it was easily the most upbeat, memorable moment in the otherwise downbeat, disasterous campaign.

Goldwater lost, but Reagan was thrust, because of the speech, into a meteoric ascendancy which carried him to the governorship of California in 1966, to within 59 slim votes of his party's presidential nomination 10 years later, and to another speech, perhaps the briefest, most impressive speech of all.

It was, "No thank you. This night belongs to him."

"Him" was President Gerald R. Ford, who had been selected over Reagan Wednesday night at the Republican National Convention.

It was not the speech Ronald Reagan wanted to give, of course. He dearly wanted to give a speech which included the words " I accept your nomination as the Republican candidate for the presidency of the United States."

And — and this is the point — it was not the speech he could have given. He could have accepted an unprecedented invitation to address the convention.

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

Had he done so, he could have, before the largest single television audience ever to have heard or seen him, deliver the 1976 version of what, in 1964, had come to be known as "The Speech."

He could have exhorted again. He could have made one more call to his cause. He could have entreated, rallied, warned, inflamed, preached, as he, perhaps better than any other contemporary politican, had so often done before.

He could have — and he obviously knew this — diluted the impact of the acceptance speech Gerald Ford was later to give. He could have, because his introduction and speech each would have prompted a lengthy demonstration by his impassioned supporters, pushed the President off prime-time television.

He could have, but he didn't. Instead he said, "No, thank you. This night belongs to him."

Ronald Reagan frustrates and angers liberals, because he fails completely to comprehend their concerns. Conservatives and liberals frequently fail to understand each other, of course, but Reagan's failure is particularly vexing to liberals because he is such an effective advocate of his cause.

NOT WITHSTANDING that effectiveness, Ronald Reagan represents a minority point of view among Americans and, indeed, among Republican as well, as Wednesday's balloting demonstrated.

He declined to accept that conclusion, but perhaps he may in time, and in time come to comprehend the reasons for it.

That may be difficult for him, but no more difficult, certainly, than accepting the fact of his defeat. And he did that Thursday with grace and with class.

Unity in the GOP

The tumult and the shouting has died in Kansas City, and the Republican candidates are Gerald R Ford for President and Robert Dole for Vice President.

Despite the hard-fought battle for the nomination between President Ford and Governor Ronald Reagan, the GOP convention appeared to end without bitterness. Sadness on the part of Reagan supporters, of course; but not bitterness.

Both men have made great contributions to the Republican Party and the country, and it was gratifying to see them stand together at the podium in a display of unity as the national convention neared its close.

We were pleased to hear President Ford's challenge to Jimmy Carter to "go before the American people and debate the real issues face to face." We endorsed such debates a few days ago, and the League of Women Voters has offered to sponsor them.

In his acceptance speech, the President conceded that the polls have shown him running behind the Democratic candidate, but he told the convention delegates and the television audience that "the only polls that count are the polls the American people go to on Nov. 2."

It will be an uphill fight, however. President Ford is not a flashy campaigner, but he has a good record in his two years in office — he referred to them as years of "peace, prosperity and public trust" — and he indicated this will be the backbone of his campaign.

His running mate, Senator Dole of Kansas, is perhaps not well known to many outside the political arena, but he has a record of six years in the House of Representatives, eight years in the U. S. Senate and a brief tour of duty as Republican national chairman.

The 53-year-old Dole is an aggressive campaigner and, particularly in that area, will ideally complement the President. Pre-convention experts were saying President Ford would need an articulate running mate who can "stand up and slug it out" with the Democrats. Dole certainly can do that.

Dole, himself, in an interview before the convention, complained that too few Republicans "lash out" at Democrats. Addressing the convention as its temporary chairman, the Kansan said Republicans must hammer home the point that it was the Democratic-controlled Congress that passed the laws, or failed to pass them, which are the source of voter dissatisfaction.

"You can't give the Democrats a free meal," he said. "You have to point out the differences between President Ford and the Democrats in Congress."

In the interview, Dole was asked his ideas on the qualities needed by a running mate for President Ford.

"You need somebody who can stand up and fight," he replied.

It looks as if it will be a most interesting campaign.

A freeze on salaries

Under present law, Superior Court judges in California get automatic wage increases based on the consumer price index. Under that system, they are scheduled on Sept. 1 to start drawing $49,200 a year.

That is $100 higher than the governor's salary!

It is not for that reason that Governor Brown has been proposing a two-year freeze on their salaries, but it certainly is an action that should be taken.

The California Conference of Judges has been opposing the governor's efforts, but has now offered to accept a one-year freeze. We still think the two-year freeze is a reasonable request, but commend the judges for recognizing that in these times of financial crisis in government, automatic pay hikes are, at the very least, irritating to taxpayers.

The State Senate Finance Committee, which had killed earlier attempts by Governor Brown to repeal what he called automatic "generous" pay raises for judges, this past week approved a bill which will impose a 5-percent limit on any future salary increases for them.

The committee amended the bill, however, to include the "compromise" proposed by the judges, reducing the freeze from two years to one year. Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, who is carrying the bill for Brown, said the governor will veto the new version, but Gary Davis, Brown's chief of staff, said the governor might accept it because it would "accomplish our principle goal, to stall the judges' skyrocketing raises."

Judges are the only public employes in California who automatically receive annual cost-of-living pay increases based directly on the consumer price index. Theirs is a big responsibility, but we cannot see it justifies such exclusive benefits.

Of particular interest to Los Angeles County residents is the fact that salaries of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors are tied to those of the judges, as a result of a 1952 amendment to the county charter.

In 1952, Los Angeles County supervisors were paid $18,000 annually. They now get $45,299 a year, and this will increase to $49,166 on Sept. 1—regardless of what happens to the legislation.

We need a freeze on supervisors' salaries, and a lot of other county expenses.

Rockefeller wins for right wing

By ANTHONY LEWIS
N.Y. Times News Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — As theater, the 1976 Republican convention has been good value: spirited, funny, above all human compared to the Nixonian plastic of 1972. No onlooker can fairly complain about a political meeting at which Alf M. Landon tells the hall: "It warms the cockles of my heart — whatever that means."

But it would be a mistake to take the drama too seriously: to believe, for example, that the contest between Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan was a desperate struggle for the soul of the Republican party. There were flashes of bitterness. But this was no 1964 festival of hate, no great clash of ideologies.

THE REPUBLICANs' ideological war is about over, in fact, and this convention showed that the conservatives have essentially won it. Their views dominate the platform: on economics, social issues, the environment, foreign policy. And apart from such far-out cases as Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, they act like winners now, relaxed and self-confident.

The party's moderate and liberal figures were lost souls at this convention. Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, Sens. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, Charles Mathias of Maryland, Mark Hatfield of Oregon and their like did not hide their sense of isolation.

The moderates worked extremely hard for President Ford in the delegate-hunt out here, and that fact itself indicates the shift in the party's center of gravity. They would have found it hard to believe a few years ago if they had been told that they would be on the barricades for a man as deeply conservative as Gerald Ford. The best they can hope for now is that he will swing a little back toward the center to compete with Jimmy Carter.

The country has moved to the right in the last decade, so it is natural enough that the Republican party has. But those who remember the Eisenhower victories, or before that the Willkie-Dewey years, will want some further explanation for the extent of the GOP shift. And I think one reason was in evidence here in Kansas City: Vice President Rockefeller.

Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller has dominated what used to be the Dewey-Eisenhower wing of the party for 16 years now. In that time it has been difficult, perhaps impossible, for any of the younger moderates to emerge as national figures. Several surely had outstanding potential, but they have remained local or regional personalities.

IT WOULD BE one thing if Rockefeller had been making a tenacious fight on issues of principle. But most of his supposed liberal principles have long since proved nonexistent. As governor of New York he turned out to be the scourge of welfare, the author of the country's most punitive drug laws, the man who allowed mass slaughter at Attica and never regretted it.

No, Rockefeller was not engaged in defending the tradition of liberal Republicanism. He was on an extended ego-trip. As he increasingly became a divisive figure in the party, its moderate forces paid dearly for his ambition. And he remained oblivious to it all — as was so wonderfully clear when he spoke to the convention the other night.

There was Nelson Rockefeller, unyielding supporter of the Vietnam War, deploring the sad cost of that war. There was the man who took New York State near bankruptcy with his grandiose building schemes now denouncing big government. One close Rockefeller observer remarked that the only thing he left out was a denunciation of his friends in the construction unions.

THE ROCKEFELLER speech may not quite have won the chutzpah award here. That honor probably goes to John Connally, who made his way to power and wealth in the Democratic party and now attacked it, in Joe McCarthy's ugly locution, as "the Democrat party." But there was a special quality on obliviousness in Rockefeller's ignoring of his own past. The truth is that he probably did not even know he was being inconsistent.

The amazing thing about Nelson Rockefeller is how he managed to persuade so many reasonable people for so long that he was a good-government man, humane, a sensible liberal. As it happens, that reputation is visibly crumbling nowadays in his home state. Even his great legislative monument, the drug law, has been found unworkably vindictive and been amended by bipartisan agreement.

The perfect symbolism of Rockefellerism is the "Empire State Plaza," his $2 billion marble mall in Albany. An art critic, Thomas B. Hess of New York magazine, appraised the mall recently in the following terms: "You seem to have stumbled into the capital of a two-bit, Latin-American dictatorship, suddenly become prosperous, run by a tinhorn colonel who's decided to show who's boss — in marble."

The Nelson Rockefeller saga may, of course, not be over. He could be secretary of state or defense in a new Ford Administration. His resilience should never be underestimated. But he has probably completed his most important contribution: to the right-wing movement of the Republican party.

Budget hearings by-passed

WASHINGTON — If a corporation spent its money like the federal government, the business would be bankrupt overnight.

Fiscal reform and "zero-based" budgets are two things Democrats and Republicans agree on this political season. As tools to control federal spending, they have suddenly become articles of political faith, as popular as motherhood and apple pie.

Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

The latest congressional budget reforms have been praised by liberals and conservatives alike. But the changes still haven't eliminated the monetary shell games that have been played on Capitol Hill for years. In fact, they have created some new ones.

In order to meet the strict deadlines of the new budget act, the Senate Appropriations Committee has all but dispensed with one of the most crucial steps in the spending process: public oversight hearings. To camouflage its misfeasance, one sub-committee even went so far as to fabricate an entire series of hearings.

Public hearings, of course, are supposed to give the members of the committee a chance to hear and evaluate expert testimony on government programs. Theoretically, committee members can then make their funding decisions intelligently, separating boondoggles from necessary expenditures.

BUT IT DIDN'T work that way this year. Take the case of the subcommittee that controls a major portion of the nation's domestic spending, the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Warren Magnuson, D.-Wash.

The subcommittee was supposed to examine the President's request for $52.6 billion to run the 20 agencies and their programs. It took the House more than 30 days of public hearings to examine this complex subject. By contrast, the Senate subcommittee held only seven days of actual hearings on the Health, Education and Welfare programs. Two days of hearings were held on the Labor Department budget. Yet they produced a hearing record of six volumes, totaling 4,145 pages.

They are mostly phony. The Senate subcommittee simply took official statements, staff questions and agency replies and printed them up as if a hearing colloquy had actually taken place.

VOLUME THREE, for example, opens with the "Tuesday, February 3, 1976" hearings on the National Institutes of Health. Sens. Magnuson, Ed Brooke, R-Mass., and Richard Schweiker, R.-Penn., are listed as present. They were not. Neither were any of the seven witnesses who appear on the pages. Not one "live" hearing was conducted on any health program.

Yet the subcommittee added $491 million to the NIH research budget over and above President Ford's request. That was $215 million more than the House, after extensive hearings, approved.

The subcommittee devoted only one day of "live" hearings to the seven "related agencies" that come under its jurisdiction. It did not take testimony from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, yet $10 million was tacked onto the House allowance. Neither did the subcommittee hold a hearing on Elementary and Secondary Education, but $128.8 million in excess of the House figure was added. That was $580 million more that the White House requested.

In fairness, it must be noted that Ford's budget request was unrealistically low, according to most experts. The House upped the President's request by $4 billion and the Senate, without the benefit of public hearins, added another $1 billion.

VIRTUALLY EVERY one of the 13 Senate appropriations subcommittees is guilty of shirking public hearings. The budgets for the Departments of State, Commerce, Justice and the Judiciary, for example, commanded a total of one full day of hearings.

Many of these agencies and programs, it could be argued, need and deserve additional funds. But the senators really don't check for themselves. It is actually their anonymous and powerful staffers who make all but the most controversial funding decisions.

Budget reforms may have come to Capitol Hill, but it is clear that more are necessary.

Ford makes a 'Doleful' choice

KANSAS CITY — The political process has worked its way and produced two Presidential candidates worthy of the respect of the nation.

Neither party is very satisfied with the result of the nominations, but on the question that has troubled the Republic for almost a generation — the character of the men of power — Ford and Carter measure up better than most.

Maybe this is the consolation of this election so far. Compared to Nixon-McGovern in 1972, the choice this time of Ford-Carter is almost reassuring, but the Republican convention here has raised some troubling questions at the end.

For his vice presidential nominee, President Ford has picked Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, a leading apologist for Richard Nixon, and this convention's most vicious critic of Jimmy Carter. If you'll forgive the pun, it's doleful news.

In these last few days in Kansas City, the President has been under severe pressure to select a running mate (1) with experience and conservative credentials (for example Reagan or Connally); (2) with appeal to the liberal urban areas of the northeast and the middle west (Richardson, Ruckelshaus, Mathias, Percy, etc.); (3) with ties to the South and the border states (Baker of Tennessee); and (4) with some of all of these quantities but particularly with the capacity to attack and provoke Carter into political blunders.

Ford, in the end, went with No. 4, and with Dole. It made no sense in sectional politics — both of them coming from the middle west. It had no appeal to the liberal Republicans, but it was a power play to put Dole against Carter.

James Reston

New York Times News Service

— Dole could attack Carter as an inexperienced hypocrite, but Ford, who had promised to run a "positive and responsible" campaign, could not.

— Dole could attack the anti-Kissinger Republican foreign policy platform, but Ford had to look the other way.

— Dole could imply that Carter was a "liar" on busing, taxes, and abortion, whereas Ford could not.

Maybe the President was right in making this short-run gamble with Dole, but one wonders. His main political strength in this campaign is that he is the President of the United States.

This is what got him through this convention against Reagan. This is also what has enabled him to hold his party and even the opposition together in the last two difficult years. But his choice of Dole is almost a declaration of political war against the Democrats.

It was Dole who attacked Carter here as a "quick-change artist," and a "mass of contradictions," who misled the voters in the primaries about busing, abortion, taxes, and government reorganization.

Dole made this speech primarily when Vice President Rockefeller and others were urging the President to adopt a strategy of provocation against Carter and to pick a vice-presidential nominee who could cut up Carter as a vague and inexperienced accident of national politics. Apparently it worked.

Maybe President Ford had this in mind all along, but it seems doubtful. He has always said he would run a "positive and responsible" campaign, and pick a vice-presidential nominee who was the best possible "potential president."

But what he picked under pressure was the most aggressive and combative anti-Carter speaker he could find, and this is bound to have its political consequences.

First, it minimizes Ford's reputation as an objective, decent, "Presidential figure," and second, it dramatizes the desperation of the Republicans as they go into the campaign, with Ford running one to two against Carter.

Ford has had his worries here, but he won. He has many advantages facing Carter — the Presidency, his long experience in Washington, his amiable personality, and the fact that not many people are really mad at him.

But his choice of Dole has bothered even many of his most fervent supporters, particularly those on the abandoned liberal Republican left. For his choice of Dole seems out of character, a desperation move to win by attacking and destroying the opposition rather than concentrating on his own strengths.

The President has not acted here as a confident man with a vision of the future but as a man of the opposition. He opposed Reagan and just barely squeaked through, and is now opposing and trying to destroy Carter indirectly through Dole. It is a surprising strategy, especially since it hurts Ford's own major strengths as a Presidential character who has in the last two years won the respect of even his political opponents.

The real issue

South Africa produces half of the world's gold. The Communists know that whoever controls ths gold can and will control the world. So what could be more natural than that the Reds should be seeking, by whatever means is most likely to succeed, to overthrow the existing pro-Western government of South Africa and establish instead a Communist-controlled "people's republic?"

This is the one central fact around which all other issues hinge. All the other hotly debated issues in South Africa are merely smoke screens to obfuscate the one real issue — African gold — and whether the Communists or the West will control it — and the world.

"Such goings on"

I was just reading about how today's mailmen were causing postage rates to rise.

The plan now in operation calls for compensation for such things as fallen arches — one man did get $29,000 — even though an orthopedic specialist diagnosed the condition as congenital.

Similarly, a carrier in New York received compensation after claiming a hoarse voice from working in an air-conditioned building at 70° for 1¼ hours.

I carried mail from Dec. 12, 1908, to June 30, 1951, and never heard of such goings on as this. There's no wonder that postage rates are so high. The public is being taken for a ride.

Why Humpty fell

Have you heard about Humpty Dumpty? He was a good egg, with a position (sitting on a wall), but he fell and was ruined (the whole way, inside and out). The best of man or beast couldn't put him together again ("all the king's horses and all the king's men").

He needed to be "born again" (John 3:7), but, as far as I know, he never called on Him "who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of Kings and Lord of lords" (I Timothy 6:15).

Healthy discussions

The stories on page A-1 and A-14 in your June 18 issue were very enlightening. Open free discussions are vital to the health of any city. The present and past practice of private and secret negotiations for leases of city park, shore and other city lands has led to both individuals and organizations filing law suits. With a general mistrust of all city officials.

Many of these privately conceived projects can not get financing. Most businesses do not want to put money into an area when the people object. Most businesses feel to be a financial success, they must have the support of the community.

If the commissions and committees were used as they were intended to be used, many of the problems troubling the city would not have developed.

Despotism, no matter how the benevolence is administered is still despotism.

Learn the language

In answer to Mr. Mackenzie's linguistic arrogance, I have this to say: The Flag of this country is the Star Spangled Banner, and this country's official language is English, however bastardized.

To follow the obscure reasoning of Senor Mackenzie, Louisiana should also be bi-lingual French and English and Northern California should insist on Russian as a second language.

Does Senor Mackenzie realize that before the Mexican invasion of California, the Spaniards were here, and before the Spaniards, the local natives were Indians with a language of their own? The Spaniards forced their language and customs on the local natives. Then California was legally annexed and became an integral part of the United States, whose official language happens to be English. Senor Mackenzie must certainly be aware that all of the descendants of the Spanish families of California still in existance have no problems with the English language. They are the nobility of California.

Senor Mackenzie rushes to the defense of a breed of Mexican newcomers, many of them illegal immigrants whose first and second generations have made no effort to learn the local legal language, and this is an affront to the country which magnanimously allowed them to settle and be able to live on a much higher standard than in their native "paradise," Mexico.

Confused bleeding hearts of your kind have cost the taxpayer dearly, indeed. Instead, let's salute the legal immigrants who have had the decency to learn the local language. These are the true Americans, by choice rather than by luck of birth.

So, please, no more bi-lingual nonsense. Let this minority learn our language, muy pronto.

Soaring city budget

An excellent editorial in the I, P-T titled "A taxpayers' revolt?" highlighted the problem of rising taxes, the responsibility of the Long Beach City Council, and the need for action on the part of the taxpayers.

The editorial included this statement: "If taxpayers truly want economy in government, they have to quit asking it for more facilities and services, and they have to elect officials who will follow such a course."

Based on a study of the city's budget for 1976-77 and attendance at four City Council budget hearings, I am convinced the city's budget can be reduced by millions of dollars without any significant impact on services provided. Taxes can be reduced a corresponding amount.

For example, why do numerous small staff organizations have high-salaried assistant heads? Here is an opportunity to reduce costs by at least $200,000.

During the past two years the planning department's budget has increased 50 per cent, from about $600,000 to $900,000. What are the taxpayers getting for this additional $300,000?

Traffic engineering studies are costing about $170,000 more a year. The benefits, if any, are certainly not apparent to commuters who encounter the major bottleneck intersections at Seventh Street, Pacific Coast Highway and Bellflower Avenue, and at Second Street, Marina Drive and Pacific Coast Highway.

The budget for the city attorney and his staff is about $1,540,000, an increase of about $450,000 during the past two years. Why does our city government need 19 lawyers and 18 legal secretaries?

The budgeted salary for the city manager is $54,636. The budget lists salaries for an assistant city manager, special assistant and three executive assistants, ranging from about $40,000 to $50,000. The city manager's budget for himself and his personal staff totals about $470,000. Have the taxpayers been receiving commensurate value?

The above are but a few, obvious examples of where the City Council members could reduce the budget — if they wanted to. However, their record is not encouraging. All of them rubber-stamped the city manager's proposals for the departmental budgets for the current fiscal year. They are led by Mayor Thomas Clark, who not only voted for the purchase of the Queen Mary in 1967 but over the ensuing years has approved the $64 million wasted to date on that financial disaster.

Taxpayers who are sufficiently concerned presumbly will make their views known to the council member in their district. Perhaps a citywide taxpayers' revolt will be required, involving the recall of council members who are unwilling to make significant cuts in the city's budget.

QM for the colleges

Now that the Queen is to truly be ours, I have a suggestion. I propose this plan, knowing full well there may be howls of laughter or dismay. I still feel it has merit. Perhaps you will also.

Could we find one man, woman or group with the vision and determination to make our Queen a prideful, vital force in Long Beach? Why can't our colleges — City, State and B.T.D. — take over several sections?

Surely, there are professors and teachers of ichthyology, enginering, music, commercial studies, finance, dancing, art, music, drama, band, orchestra; classes of welding, plumbing, carpentry, food service, etc., who could conduct a semester aboard.

There could be a discotheque for our young peole, and dancing on the decks these beautiful nights.

We might not realize a profit, but to break even and keep the Queen Mary alive, and give us a unique educational and social center is important.

Let's make it a reward to serve aboard the Queen in any capacity and show the world we can take a different, unprecedented situation and turn it into a real plus for all of us.

News in Grunge Bluff

By MICHAEL KILIAN
Knight News Service

GRUNGE BLUFF, Mo. — At last, having been shifted all over the Midwest by the Republican National Committee, we finally arrived at Kansas City — or at least in sight of it.

Pulling into Grunge Bluff in and on our official RNC host committee flatbed truck, we paused for a rest stop at Uncle Bob's Bluff-Vu Motel and Car Wash. It was there that we got the news that the Republican convention had just ended and that the delegates had nominated President Ford and Kansas Sen. Robert Dole.

Stan Twindle, the RNC liaison man who's been travelling with us, seemed deeply moved by the news.

"Dole?" he said.

Even though we were a mere 20 miles from the convention center, Mr. and Mrs. Tipsword Quince, the Missouri Ford alternates in our party, suggested we linger on in Grunge Bluff for a while.

For one thing, they lived in Grunge Bluff and were tired of travelling. For another, they didn't think Twindle looked very well.

"Dole?" Twindle said.

It developed that Uncle Bob, the motel keeper, was a cousin of Old Man Krundlesink, the Pussywillow Falls, Wis., motel keeper who's been tagging along with us since the convention began. To celebrate, Uncle Bob broke out the house drink — Southern Comfort and Coca-Cola — and a merry reunion was had.

It was made all the merrier by the discovery that Old Man Krundlesink's 15-year-old common-law wife, Rapunzel, was also the common-law wife of Uncle Bob.

"Dole?" said Twindle.

While Uncle Bob refilled our glasses, we went back to the RNC flatbed truck to free Rolf Hewn, the Reagan alternate from Arizona. During the drive, he had tried throwing everyone else off the truck, compelling us to tie him to the cab roof.

"The convention's over," I said, as he slid to the ground. "Reagan lost."

Hewn stood there a moment — whimpering, muttering, and shrieking — then turned and plunged off into the brush.

"He'll be happier in the wild," Mrs. Quince said.

"Dole?" said Twindle.

We then repaired to Uncle Bob's porch, where we sat a spell sipping our Southern Comfort and Cokes and watching the traffic on the highway out of K.C. Lighting two of his Russian cigarettes, Nicolai Cynicieseu, the visiting columnist from Romania's Bucharest Blade, remarked on a strange looking procession.

There were perhaps 15,000 of them, men and women, stumbling and dragging along with crazed, pained looks in their baggy, red-rimmed eyes. Their hair was tangled, their clothes askew; they moaned and bleeted. Some drank heavily from flasks.

"My God," said Cynicieseu, coughing. "Is defeated Reagan camp."

"No," I said. "It's just the news media. They're like this after every convention."

"Dole?" said Twindle.

A few minutes later, along came another procession. The people in it were tanned and smiling, marching along in swinging step as they sang World War II victory songs in unison. In their midst, bathed in a lustrous ray of sunshine, a heroic figure smiled and waved.

"Aha," said Cynicieseu. "Is Ford camp!"

"No," I said. That's the Reagan camp." I pointed back up the road to where a man was shuffling along, trying to catch up with the crowd. He kept saying: "Oh thanks, Ronnie. Oh gee . . ."

"That's Ford," I said.

Up the road still further was a cloud of dust and some snarling and barking.

"Is Ford's dog?" asked Cynicieseu, coughing.

"No," I said. "That's Dole."

"Dole?" said Twindle.

"I am deeply moved," said Cynicieseu. "Everything propagandists in my country say turns out to be true."

'Big Daddy' settles in

But Roth isn't too concerned about how the public might react to his new pastimes. For one thing, his reputation was based on lies. The label "beatnik millionaire," tagged on him by a Life magazine reporter, wasn't challenged at the time, but now Roth admits: "I never earned more than $10,000 in any one year. I spent a lot of money building up a crazy image. . . .

"I never cared what people wrote about me. It was all good publicity."

Many of Roth's custom cars are on display at Cars of the Stars in Buena Park, where Roth once worked.

The cars, with names like the Outlaw, Beatnik Bandit and Tweedy Pie, are not worth a phenomenal amount of money.

He's willing to sell his latest creation, a three-wheeled cycle weighing 300 pounds, for $2,800—parts cost $800. The vehicle, which he calls Rubber Ducky, looks like a fancy go-cart. He recently drove the 728-mile trip to Salt Lake City on one 25-gallon tank of gas (it gets 80 miles a gallon).

"I've always been a weirdo," he declared. "I never made a car for other people commercially. Building cars has always only been a hobby. My business before coming to Knott's was designing the T-shirts."

Roth was one of the first persons to personalize T-shirts. He started spray-painting them in the late '50s at car shows to keep from getting bored, and it later developed into a self-supporting business. But he got out of the business when "pornographic" T-shirts, in his view, began flooding the market in the late '60s. "We used to do from 200 to 300 shirts a day with an airbrush," he recalled.

Born in Hollywood, Roth grew up in Bell and first took an interest in car designing as a teen-ager in 1946: "My friends and I would go to a junkyard and buy old Model As and then put a late-model V-8 engine in them."

After a stint in the Air Force and a couple of years at UCLA, he began working on his first fiberglass vehicle. He also learned the fine art of auto pinstriping.

Not many people call Roth "Big Daddy" any more, a name that stuck in 1962 when his car designs came out in model kits for young persons.

Roth doesn't deny he missed many opportunities to become wealthy. But "money doesn't buy happiness," he said. "The No. 1 thing is to support my family."

Tax penalty reminder

From Our LA Bureau

Personal property taxes not paid by Aug. 31 will be subject to a 6 per cent penalty, Los Angeles County Tax Collector H. B. Alvord warns.

Personal property taxes are generally imposed on business inventories, boats and aircraft and should not be confused with the tax bills on residential property, which are mailed near the end of October.

Alvord points out that personal property becomes subject to seizure if the taxes remain unpaid.

Vans show off their owners

"Vans started working their way into the mainstream of Southern California life-styles in the early 1970s," Berzins said. "Pickups were expensive, plus you'd still have to build on a camper unit."

Berzins put a $4,000 price tag on the stripped-down basic van unit.

You build from there. A deluxe paint job — one with a mural scene runs about $2,500.

Charley Margiotta, president of Pacific Vans of Long Beach, sums it up briefly, "The van is a big chunk of my life. Take away my van . . . well, it just doesn't leave me with too much."

Pacific Vans is one of 300 clubs in the Southern California Van Council. Vanners are basically do-it-yourself people when it comes to customizing.

Margiotta's van has carpeting plush enough to lose a shoe in.

The interior sports a diamond pleated naughahyde pattern carefully highlighted by two mirrors recessed into the side panels.

"The first items a vanner usually buys are high-back seats that recline ($195 per pair)," said Berzins, whose own van sports a pair of the well-cushioned chairs.

"Next comes the overhead console. Most vanners have CB radios and tape decks.

"A van is like a habit. Once you get started, it's difficult to stop," Berzins said.

Ken Jones' "Massage Parlor" is one of those vehicles that makes some van owners drool.

The mirrored walls, flocked wallpaper, television, full wet bar, telephone and five-gallon fish tank — complete with fish — cost Jones, who lives in Redondo Beach, a neat $10,000 and that's only for the interior.

Gull-wing doors, silk-screened window designs, bubble tops, sides, travel scoops — all items geared to allow you to kick back and enjoy the good life without really putting down roots.

"There is no real ultimate van," Berzins said. "The real fun is putting together a package that reflects your personality at the time. Interests and personalities change . . . so do the vans. They're bought, fixed up, driven around for a while and then sold. After that, you just start over."

A part of the excitement of van ownership are "happenings."

This weekend Pacific Vans is hosting "Smoke on the Water II," which features a van show, with blown fuel hydros, drag skiers and a live band tossed in, at Marine Stadium.

"Happenings are really the greatest," said Terri Cristanelli, editor of Vannist, a newspaper for van owners. "It's unreal how quickly you can make friends. Lots of games and parties going on. Good feelings between people. Vanners are friendly people," she continued, "most of them work during the week and then want to relax on the weekend with people who are as crazy about vans as they are."

Vans are a fluid commodity in a fluid life-style.

There are four times as many vans in Southern California than in any other part of the United States.

Our attachment to cars in the Southland is nothing new.

There's an old saying that goes, "If a Southern Californian could drive his car into his bedroom to save himself the bother of walking. . .he would."

Vans are the ultimate. The bed is built in.

Blast fatal to 7 blamed on dust buildup

ANDERSON (AP) — An explosion and fire that killed seven particle-board plant workers was caused by "poor housekeeping" in violation of state safety regulations, state officials say.

U.S. Plywood Co. has been fined $1,000, the maximum civil penalty allowed by law, in the March 23 explosion, the State Division of Industrial Safety announced Friday.

Division head Art Carter said results of the investigation will be turned over to the Shasta County district attorney to see whether any crimes were involved.

"Investigators have now determined that excessive amounts of very fine sawdust were allowed to accumulate throughout the plant," Carter said.

The sawdust was ignited by a spark, causing the explosion and fire that killed seven workmen and injured 12.

The state findings contradicted a local investigation that said U.S. Plywood did not appear to be at fault.

Damage to the plant was estimated at $20 million, and it has been closed. Company officials say they haven't decided whether to rebuild, because insurance covers only a third of their rebuilding cost.

2 L.A. men flee Louisiana lockup

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two Los Angeles men charged with murder were among five prisoners who escaped from a lockup in suburban Gretna Saturday, police said.

Michael Beresford, 27, and John Howe, 28, were among a group of prisoners who fled as they were being booked in an alleged assault on a fellow inmate, sheriff's officers said.

Chicano students weigh engineering

Twenty-six Chicano high school students are taking an introductory engineering curriculum at UC Irvine to see if they would like to make it their career.

The studies are part of a two-week program established at UCI to encourage minorities to enter engineering studies. They finish their introduction Aug. 28.

The program consists of classes, laboratory demonstrations in computers and an introduction to mechanical, electrical, civil, environmental and biomedical engineering.

The 12 girls and 14 boys in the campus summer study course will also visit industrial plants in Orange County.

At the conclusion of the course, each will receive counseling to determine whether engineering would be a suitable subject for future study.

Most of the students are from California, but one is from Phoenix and another from Queretaro, Mexico.

Hollywood Notes

Kramer the craps player

By HARRY TESSEL
Motion Picture Editor

HOLLYWOOD—"Making pictures is a great creative crap game," says Stanley Kramer.

The celebrated producer-director is betting $5 million on his latest movie, "The Domino Principle."

And he's ready to put $14 million on the line on his next film.

"You read a piece of material and you think, 'Oh, that would be wonderful entertainment,' and you make the picture," Kramer says.

"Now sometimes you are right, and sometimes you're wrong, and that's the gamble."

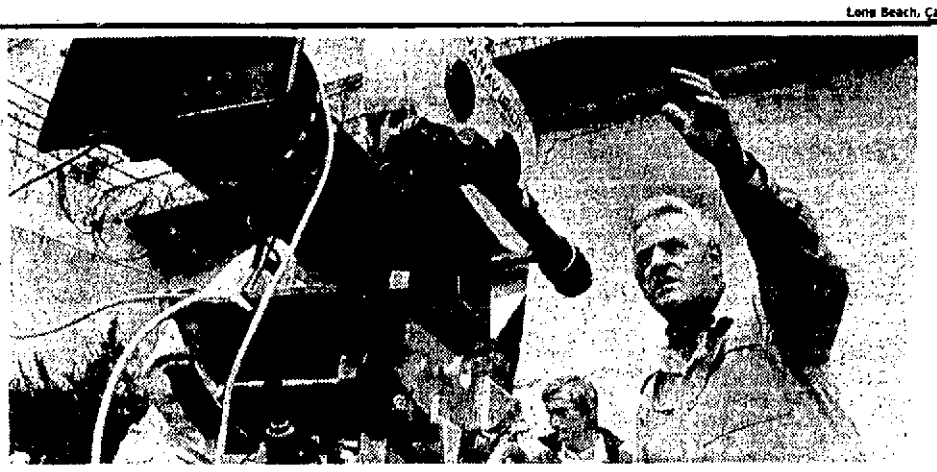
Kramer, now a white-haired 62, has been right most of the time.

His films include "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," "Champion," "Home of the Brave," "The Men," "Cyrano De Bergerac," "Death of a Salesman," "High Noon," "Member of the Wedding" and "The Wild One."

And, "The Caine Mutiny," "Not as a Stranger," "The Defiant Ones," "Inherit the Wind," "Judgement at Nuremburg," "Ship of Fools" and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner."

Now, he's editing "The Domino Principle," in which Gene Hackman plays a convict freed from prison by a mysterious and sinister organization in order to assassinate a political figure.

The film also stars Candice Bergen, Richard Widmark, Mickey Rooney, Edward Albert and Eli Wallarh.



Kramer's next picture will be "The Shieks of Araby," and he says:

"It's a comedy—in the milieu of 'Mad, Mad World'—about the Arabs' having all the money as well as all the oil in world. (An earthquake funnels all the oil in the Middle East into the land of one poor Arab.)

"Maybe Alan Arkin will be the leading Arab character. The picture (a road-show epic about three hours long) will have all the comedians, and a few other surprises. I hope to get it off the ground late next spring.

"From the time you first read a piece of material until you put a film into release can be anywhere from a year and a half to two years.

That's a long time, and to know just how long it is you would have to suffer the pain of failure.

STANLEY KRAMER directing his latest film, "The Domino Principle," starring Gene Hackman, Candice Bergen, Richard Widmark, Mickey Rooney, Edward Albert and Eli Wallach.

"When you work two years on a piece of material, and then are rejected by the public first, and only secondarily by the critics, it's very painful."

Kramer, honored in 1961 by the Motion Picture Academy with its prestigious Irving Thalberg Award, has tackled such themes as racial prejudice ("Guess Who's Coming to Dinner"), world guilt ("Judgement at Nuremberg"), the responsibility of command ("The Caine Mutiny"), the human waste of war ("The Men") and youthful rebellion ("The Wild One").

"But there is no such thing as a message story," Kramer says:

"Your responsibility as a filmmaker is to make a film of entertainment, of provocation, of electricity—so that a filmgoer is entitled to some surprises.

"The fact that there may be extra dimensions in content is completely beside the point.

"And if you can't provide that entertainment, you don't do the the picture. . . . There is something wrong with it—you're on some sort of soapbox, and it doesn't add up to anything.

"You then should be in some other medium. You should be making documentaries.

"When I felt that I was being limited in that way. . .for example, I was at Lt. Calley's court-martial. I knew him personally, and I was interested in his thread of thinking and how the war in Vietnam was revealed through his court-martial.

"Now that wasn't a piece of entertainment, and it was hard to do other than documentarily, so I stayed away from film and went to television as a two-hour special."

Kramer says he always wanted to be a director, and adds:

"I was a producer first, a kind of 'wunderkind' boy producer, which I didn't want to be.

"Producing was where the power was, and where you made the kind of films you wanted to make. So you had to be the boss, and the boss was the producer in those days.

" 'Champion,' 'Home of the Brave,' 'Cyrano,' 'Death of a Salesman,' 'The Caine Mutiny,' 'The Wild One'—those were early films I produced.

"I started as a director with 'Not as a Stranger' and went on to 'The Defiant Ones,' 'Inherit the Wind,' 'On the Beach,' 'Judgement at Nuremberg,' 'Ship of Fools.' . . ."

Kramer wistfully recalls how he came to Hollywood:

"I was an English major at NYU, and took a couple of business courses, and was going to be a lawyer. I'm the original of the son of the mother who said, 'My son, the lawyer.' But it just didn't work out.

"I came out to Hollywood originally with several other young men from eastern universities as what were then called 'junior writers.'

"We were apprentice writers who were to be taught the craft. We had written for college magazines and that sort of thing.

"Well, it was a publicity ploy because nobody here read what we wrote, and I'm sure had they read it they wouldn't have been very interested.

"I was 19, and I was in the job and out of it in three months. Then I ran out of money, so I got a job as a laborer at MGM on the swing gang moving furniture off the sets at night.

"I sold a couple of original stories to what was called the 'grapefruit circuit'—Republic, RKO and Columbia 'B' pictures—then got a job in the film-editing department at MGM.

"I worked in research, the sound department and the casting office, and just when I thought I was really getting somewhere and learning something, I was drafted into the Army for four years and three months."

SHORT SUBJECTS:

"THE SHOOTIST," starring John Wayne and Lauren Bacall, opens in the Long Beach area Wednesday. It's about the last of the legendary gunfighters.

RUSSIAN BALLET STAR NUREYEV will play the title role in 'Valentino," recreating the career of the silent-film star. Filming, with Leslie Caron, begins in Spain later this month.

REDD FOXX AND PEARL BAILEY will be hitting the road soon on a personal-appearance tour to publicize their new comedy, "Norman . . . Is That You?"

""EXTREME PREJUDICE," an action film about subversion and espionage in the U.S., will be written and directed for Warner Bros. by John Milius, scripter of "Magnum Force" and "Jeremiah Johnson."

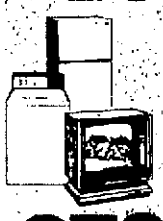
FIRST SOUND MOVIE PROGRAM BEING RESHOWN

By JOE BALTAKE
Ridder News Service



Vitaphone, the process which ushered commercial talkies into existence, was financed by Warner Bros., concocted by Western Electric and premiered in the Warner Theater in New York on Aug. 6, 1926.

The program introducing Vitaphone was a three-hour demonstration to show how well moving pictures could project the other arts (opera, dance, symphonic concerts, dramatic presentations, etc.).

Throughout the years, via the efforts of dedicated buffs and organizations alike, the Vitaphone debut program has been preserved—and now, on the 50th anniversary of its premiere, the same program is being screened in a limited number of cities throughout the United States.

High point is John Barrymore in Alan Crosland's production of "Don Juan." The film, essentially a silent one, was well into production when Vitaphone was perfected. As an afterthought, Warners decided to add synchronized musical accompaniment (performed by the New York Philharmonic, directed by Henry Hadley).

Stage review

'Out of Frying Pan' at Playhouse

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

"Out of the Frying Pan," a fresh and unpretentious comedy about young people trying to break into show business, currently is on stage at Community Playhouse as its annual late-summer "young people's show."

A large cast directed by Jerry Iovine performs with skill, finesse and professional polish in a frothy, summerweight vehicle by Francis Swann.

In Friday night's delightful performance, this writer would criticize only an occasional difficulty — by practically everybody — in voice projection.

Compensating in large measure, however, was the deftness displayed in such vital areas as timing and miming. The show moved at a properly quick pace, and each character was clearly and neatly delineated.

All the action occurs in the theatrically bedecked living room of a New York brownstone apartment shared by four young ladies and three young men. But it's almost totally a platonic relationship, "a matter of economics," as one of the boys says, between a group of stage-struck youngsters. This is, after all, a family show.

The apartment was chosen specifically because a major producer, who must be sold on their talents, lives directly below. So much for the main storyline — with the secondary plot circling around a not-too-bright Bostonian miss who nominally occupies the apartment. And her stuffy old dad, who's not all that keen over the bohemian atmosphere.

Only as the show progresses does it emerge that this klutzy kid actually is the leading lady, the heroine— call her what you will. Endearing as she fulfills this difficult assignment with consistency and good humor — along with a touch of pathos — is Patricia Leinenbach. Robert Damico is the bright young guy who's not about to become involved with Dottie from Beacon Hill. Or so he says in the beginning.

Other girls in the menage are done quite well by Jodi Lund, Charlee Hutton and Stephanie Hilchey. Male opposite numbers are portrayed by Dana K. Lund and Jon Thorpe.

Complications follow when daddy, Art Perkins, appears on the scene along with the big break, when gourmet chef/theater producer Michael Fiore is dragooned into watching their efforts — a thoroughly delightful fragment of a mystery play-within-this-play.

Rounding off the support cast are Pat Howe as the landlady and Dennis Richardson and John Faris III as the police officers whose misunderstanding about a "bloody body" climaxes the action.

Definitely all-family fun, this. "Out of the Frying Pan" will be restaged Fridays and Saturdays through Sept. 11 at 5021 E. Anaheim St.

Rock Talk

Daltrey loves Who — expletive deleted

By LISA ROBINSON

Roger Daltrey — with his electrical blue eyes and golden, shoulder-length curls — looks like an angel, but he talks like a street punk. Roger's use of the English language seems severely limited by his reliance on the unprintable.

In a muddy backstage area of Miami's Braves Stadium, he talked with passion about why — after 12 years — the Who is still together.

"Look, we're just the (expletive deleted) best, that's all. We're perhaps the only real group. Something happens when the Who get onstage that I don't think happens with any other group," said Roger, who admits to being the Who's biggest fan. "The music, the talent, may be there with other groups, but there's a special chemistry with this group.

"The Who is such a (expletive deleted) precious thing, rock would be a lot less interesting without the Who. Keepin' this band together is the most important thing. Even Pete (Townshend) wants to keep the band together now, and that's great.

"As for me bein' a film star? (Expletive deleted.) Listen, people thought I'd get to be some big-headed superstar, but I never wanted to be a bloody film star," said the "Tommy" star who was almost considered for an Academy Award. "I'd like to be a good actor — that's different.

"Whether you liked it or not, 'Tommy' kept the Who goin' for another three years. It brought us a new audience, and, while our old audience was a bit dubious, I think we've proved ourselves. We're still the same idiots we ever were.

"All these rock stars playin' at bein' punks," sneered Roger. "We started out punks, and we still are — even though people say we ain't. Violence isn't essential for rock — it's just a part of us.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

Your birthday today: Opens a year full of surprises, many of them engineered by you. Various aspects of your lifestyle need simplification. If you fail to voluntarily make definite choices soon, outside pressures help you reorganize, but not as happily as if you do it yourself. Relationships require genuine attention; you can't fake it now. Today's native are strategists, often nonconformists or persistent dissidents.

Aries (March 21-April 19): That clever equip you dish out hits others as critical, unfair. See to it your position is above reproach. Quit on time. Evening brings minor crisis.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Abrupt changes mark the start of the day and week as long-unsuspected factors prove significant. Once common sense is asserted, the new path is better.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Put off big jobs till late in the week. Tomorrow nothing works out. The less detail put into communications, the sharper the main points stand out.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be ready for a possible upset of routines for a couple of days. Mobilize all your forces, come to final terms. Meditation helps intuition in guiding you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Use your peak energy to get things to a phase where you can ride out a series of disappointments. There's still no substitue for the personal touch.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You make a prime impression with your great style of balancing work projects. Stop while ahead, take on no new assignments for the next few days.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Express appreciation of others' qualities without explaining old problems again. Reorganize work for a late-week push. Enjoy a party tonight.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Ask help where expedient. Overtime seems indicated, but quickly turns counterproductive. Tonight sees the end of an old annoyance; no ceremony needed.

Sagitarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Go at a steady pace. Tell others what's happening so they can do their share in joint ventures. Today's efforts must last through midweek.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Everybody's in a fine mood. Take advantage while conditions are this favorable. Look after matters yourself and you won't have to revise or retract.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Check incoming information in laying out schedules. Expect good progress today, confusion tomorrow. Improvising is better than rigid planning.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Proceed according to your notion of what is urgent. Get a surprising amount of serious work finally squared away. Prepare for a drift situation tomorrow.

Earl Wilson

Producer finds Redford 'perfect gentleman'

NEW YORK — Joseph E. Levine almost clanked when he walked with the fresh money — his new $2.5 million.

Except, of course, it was paper money. Notes. Pieces of paper.

"Did you need it, Joe?" I asked him.

"Did I need it? If I hadn't gotten it I'd be right over, stealing from you!"

Joe Levine, the last of the tycoons, the last of the big-time movie moguls, was off in a few hours on his 14th trip to the Netherlands to film "A Bridge Too Far." It is the masterpiece of his life. It's budgeted at $25 million.

"But we may want to add to that."

"Isn't this the most expensive picture ever made?"

"Not necessarily," Joe chuckled. "Remember when Burton and Liz Taylor disappeared in Italy and they couldn't find them?

"And they went off in the mountains. That was in 'Cleopatra.' That ran over $40 to $50 million."

"You finally got Robert Redford for your picture?"

"Yes, everybody wants to see Redford, so we got him. Redford is a perfect gentleman. We made a deal and kept it. No haggling, no bargaining."

"I heard it was a million and a half, or maybe $2 million."

The last of the moguls didn't crack, didn't smile. They must have a gentlemen's agreement not to discuss the pay, but Redford is to play several weeks ... it's no cameo. It'll be a real Redford.

Levine's down to 168 pounds now; he doesn't drink. His wife, Rosalie, is in the Netherlands waiting for him.

I made so bold as to iquire how he came out of the meeting with $2.5 million he didn't have when he went in.

"I showed these people 17 minutes of film that they hadn't seen before and they got excited to the extent they hadn't been before."

"Now what are you going to do with the 2½ million?"

Joe gave a polite smile that seemed to say that he was going to spend more money on the movie. The salaries alone could run up quite a tab — in addition to Redford he has James Caan, Sir Laurence Olivier, Liv Ullman, Michael Caine, Sean Connery, Elliott Gould, Gene Hackman, Ryan O'Neal, Maximilian Schell ... the list goes on for awhile.

"You're going to see a great picture," he said. "One of the greatest of all time."

The last of the film moguls had spoken.

He folded up his papers. They didn't clank — but with $2.5 million there can be quite a rustle.

Variable loan rates spreading

Experimental mortgages often costly

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press

Traditional home mortgages with fixed monthly payments are giving way in scattered areas of the country to experimental plans designed to make it easier for would-be buyers to get loans. And the new types of mortgages usually wind up costing consumers more money.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported that at the end of the first quarter of this year there was $456 billion in outstanding mortgage debt on one- to four-family, nonfarm residential properties. About half the debt was owed to savings and loan associations.

Most of the mortgages were written in traditional form. The average annual interest rate, as of June, was just under 9 per cent.

Richard Marcis of the board's Office of Economic Research said the use of nontraditional mortgage forms, including variable rate loans where the amount of interest is allowed to fluctuate, is still "relatively limited."

AT THE SAME TIME, he said, the variable rate loan has been adopted by 10 state-chartered savings and loan associations in California. These institutions have loaned $2 billion on variable rate mortgages in 16 months, he said. (Note: federally chartered savings and loan assocations are prohibited from offering variable rate mortgages; the situation at state-chartered institutions differs from state to state.)

Another alternative, called the graduated payment mortgage, has been proposed by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass. Under this plan, the rate of interest would remain constant, but the size of the monthly payment would fluctuate.

It would be relatively low at the beginning — making things easier for young people just starting out — and would increase over the years as inflation and experience push up earning power.

David Strachan of the American Bankers Association said the interest rate on the traditional mortgage is based the cost of money to the bank now and over the life of the loan. With a variable rate mortgage, Strachan said, "the bank can operate a lot closer to the actual cost of money."

Allowing the interest rate to fluctuate also makes mortgages competitive with other types of loans which usually have higher interest rates.

Oliver H. Jones, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers of America, said, "The hard fact is that thrift institutions must be provided with a method of balancing their money costs with their money income. ..."

To attract the deposits which are a major source of mortgage money, a thrift institution such as a savings and loan association must pay an interest rate that is competitive with other investments. Bankers contend this is more difficult when the institution is locked into a long-term loan returning a fixed amount of money.

A variable rate mortgage, Jones said, gives the borrower "a slightly lower initial interest rate, but one that would vary, up or down, with the future cost of money to the lender."

Up or down? Theoretically, of course, the interest on a variable rate mortgage could decrease. Practically, however, most bankers admit it will probably go up. "You would probably have to pay more every six months," Strachan said.

Regulations covering variable rate mortgages do include ceilings, however, limiting the amount that the interest rate can increase and the frequency with which it can rise. Strachan said the maximum increase is usually about 2 per cent.

How does that 2 per cent translate into dollars and cents?

Strachan said the average mortgage is for about $30,000 and is issued for 25 years, although the mortgage is usually renegotiated after 10 or 12 years as families relocate.

Suppose you get a $30,000 mortgage for 25 years at 8.75 per cent. Your monthly payments would be $246.90. If you paid out the entire mortgage and did not sell your house, the principal and the interest would cost you just over $74,000.

If the interest rate increased to 9 per cent, the monthly payment would be $252. If it went up a maximum 2 per cent (assuming state usury laws allowed the mortgage rate to rise more than 10 per cent) the monthly payment would be $346.20.

Mira Verde cooled by ocean

Spacious designs accented

The townhomes at Mira Verde, high atop the Palos Verdes Peninsula, provide the spaciousness of a single-family home, coupled with the efficiency, convenience and cost effectiveness of townhome design.

That's the belief of Bart Furey, marketing manager for B. R. Morris Development Co., builder of the 275-unit townhome community which combines luxury, space, and security with cool ocean breezes and smog-free air.

All residences in the Mira Verde complex are spacious, Furey points out, the smallest two bedroom model containing, 2,684-square feet and the largest 3,282.

ROOMY ATMOSPHERE OF MIRA VERDE TOWNHOMES

THE LARGEST model has three bedrooms, two baths and powder room, plus a library, formal dining room and breakfast room with balcony. Prices range from $85,900 to $128,700.

The incorporation of a "creative corner" in every Mira Verde home is a feature of the planning by B. R. Morris, developer. This alcove adjoins the oversized double garage of each unit (garages range from 496 to 528 square feet), and can be used as a home exercise gym, a sewing center, a photographic darkroom, a wine cellar, woodworking shop or his/hers craft and hobby workroom. Garages have ample room for laundry facilities, complete family equipment storage and space for two full-sized automobiles.

THE DESIRE of buyers for well planned "extra" space is seen in plans which provide a full sized kitchen, a family room, living room and den, along with a powder room on the main living and entertainment floor. In those models, three bedrooms, two baths, a huge walk-in closet and a dressing room are on the top floor. The garage, storage and creative corner areas are on ground level or just below grade.

On the living-entertaining level, the entire floor is available for circulation of guests at large parties and in some models, a wet bar is located near a fireplace. The space can be furnished as either a series of family areas or spread into a sweeping entertainment center.

The $27 million project has been designed to achieve the character of a hillside village and the structures borrow generously from such natural materials as wood, brick and masonry, interspersed with lavish landscaping and full grown trees.

In some models, ceilings soar two stories high at the stairwell or fireplace location and windows flood daylight through the stairwells in other designs.

The homeowners association fee of $78.81 per month includes complete maintenance of all structures, recreational facilities, grounds and other varied services, including fire insurance on all buildings plus public liability insurance.

Recreational facilities include a clubhouse, two swimming pools, two relaxing jacuzzis, a lighted tennis court, two lighted paddle tennis courts and barbecue facilities.

Security includes an electronic system which warns against intruders and detects any sign of fire, smoke or excessive heat. The same system enables residents to call for immediate assistance in the event of health problems or other emergencies.

Gate-guarded entrances have special entry barriers which are activated with key cards and all homes are equipped with double-security armorplated locks of special design.

Models are open daily from 10 a.m. until dusk. The sales office is located at 28311 S. Ridgehaven Court, Rancho Palos Verdes. It is reached by taking Hawthorne Boulevard south (from San Diego Freeway) to Ridgegate Drive, then turning left at the traffic signal.

9 homes unsold at Shadow Run

Just nine homes remain to be sold in the single-family community of Shadow Run in Fountain Valley, visited by more than 1,000 homeseekers in the past month.

Sparking buyer enthusiasm, according to sales representative Bob Roeder, are both the homes' distinctive styling and luxury price-included features.

The remaining single-level three-bedroom, two-bath homes offer up to 2,100 square feet of living space. Both include a family room, formal dining area and two-car garage. One plan features a study that can serve as a fourth bedroom. Prices at Shadow Run begin at $70,000.

Warmington's exclusive "Three-Homes-In-One" concept provides separate family, formal and private sectors in each home.

Designed by Architecture West of Orange, the homes feature custom quality appointments including tall vaulted ceilings, high grade carpeting, wood-burning fireplaces with gas log lighter and inside laundry areas. Master suites offer private baths, dressing areas and abundant wardrobes. Some plans feature oversized garages with room for workshop or game room.

FULLY BUILT-IN kitchens are complete with microwave oven, built-in continuous-cleaning oveh, range, trash compactor and dishwasher. There are also ceramic tile countertops, luminous ceiling and convenient patio bars to the rear yard.

Shadow Run's exteriors are accented by shake roofs, heavy beams with stucco, wood, brick and stone detailing.

Furnished model homes are open from 10 a.m. to 10022 Banbury Avenue in Westminster. The sales office may be reached via either the Garden Grove or San Diego Freeway.

From the Garden Grove Freeway, exit at Brookhurst Avenue and drive south. From the San Diego Freeway, take the Brookhurst Avenue off-ramp and drive north to Banbury and Brookhurst avenues.

STEVE HUBBARD AND MRS. LEWIS

Trouble hunter finds it, ends it

Steve Hubbard goes around looking for trouble.

C. Robert Langslet & Son, Inc., Long Beach builders-developers-contractors, pays him for the task.

The firm knows that Hubbard, when he finds a problem, will take action to have it solved.

Hubbard, a former aerospace supervisor, is customer service representative for the company.

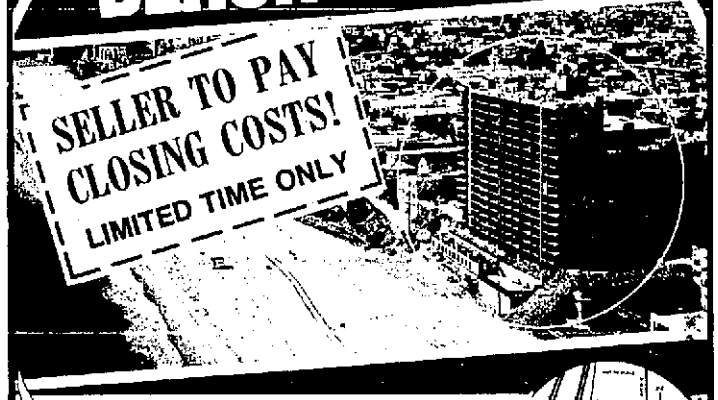
At the 30-unit Bayshore condominium community, it's a service that Hubbard has been providing his customers before they find something about which to complain.

"I try during the walk-through to help residents locate possible problems," he said. "I point out any unfinished details instead of waiting for them to spot them."

And those unfinished details get finished in a hurry.

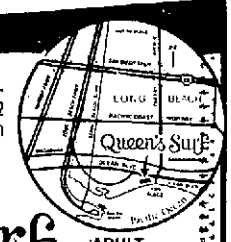
Testimony to that attention comes from Mrs. Robert Lewis, who recently purchased a condominium in the Belmont Shore community.

"No matter what the problem, Steve remains calm and does everthing with concern for the customer," she said.



Hubbard sees himself as the liason between the builder and the client. His former aerospace functions and his current job are similar in one respect. Both involve problem-solving.

His present position is more satisfying to him because of his direct contact with the customers.



Langslet, developer for 25 years, is opening a new 84-unit development, Parkview Terrace, 4835 E. Anaheim St.

Hubbard will be there looking for trouble.

ONE OF 1,800 TREES PLANTED AT PINECREEK VILLAGE

Adult apartments nestled among trees at Pinecreek

Furnished models have opened at Pinecreek Village a 380-unit adult apartment complex in Costa Mesa across from Orange Coast College. Prepared by Gary Donaldson & Associates of Irvine, the five furnished models reflect the sophisticated mountain resort surroundings, according to Lyons and Cashion, builder of the $10 million development.

"More than 50 per cent of the one and two-bedroom, one or two bath apartment homes have been rented in the first month of previewing, and occupancy for the first phase has already started with over 75 move-ins," said Phil Lyons, partner in the Newport Beach-based firm of builders.

Rental prices range from $275 to $355. Water and heat are included in the rental price and no lease is required.

Complementing the mountain resort environment of the 17-acre site are more than 1,800 trees, including more than 300 mature pine trees up to 30 feet tall. Sycamores, alders, eucalyptus and pear trees surround the structures and the two recreation centers. Wooden bridges and winding paths lead past nine streams, which are accented by waterfalls running over large boulders and forming small pools.

A rustic, multi-level recreation lodge with 4,500 square feet features rough sawn wood siding. Inside is a central lounge, conversation pit with fireplace, fully equipped kitchen, gym, sauna, library/den and billiard room.

Adjacent to the clubhouse is a swimming pool, jacuzzi, wide decking and two lighted tennis courts. A second recreation center features another swimming pool designed for water polo. A sand volleyball court and shuffleboard courts also are available.

The two-bedroom, two-bath St. Moritz plan has a fireplace in the living room. Every bedroom has a master suite with a private bath and large wardrobe.

Available to renters are special furniture packages, also on display. The rental office is open daily at the lodge at 1300 Adams Ave.

Tax breaks for sellers 65 or older

By DON CAMPBELL

Who says that Uncle Sam doesn't have a heart when it comes to handing out tax breaks?

For the average taxpayer there are all sorts of attractive concessions — if you live long enough to cash in on them.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

In a recent column you said that as long as one partner is 65 years of age, you can claim the capital gains tax break on the sale of a home.

Does this still hold true if the title is in my wife's name, who is 62 years old, and I am over 65? We are selling our home and would appreciate an answer as soon as possible. — G. A. E., Williamsville, N. Y.

ANSWER: It's a nice tax advantage, but unfortunately the law stipulates that the residence has to be jointly owned before you can take advantage of it.

If you put the house in both of your names you can sell it on the basis of the fact that you, one of the owners, has passed 65. Naturally, it has to have been your principal place of residence for five of the past eight years, and you have to file a joint return for the year in which you make the sale. Otherwise, I'm afraid that you are going to have to wait until your wife is 65.

It might be worthwhile to change the title because if the adjusted sale price of the house is $20,000 or less, then none of the gain is taxable. If the adjusted sales price is greater than $20,000, then a ratio is established with $20,000 as the numerator and the adjusted sales price as the denominator. (For example, the adjusted sales price is $25,000, then the ratio of $20,000 to this is 80 per cent. If the profit on the sale of the house is $10,000, then $8,000 of it is tax-free and only the remaining $2,000 is taxable as a capital gain).

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I have heard that you can make big money by buying old, beat-up houses cheap and then fixing them up and reselling them. Does this sound like a good idea to you? — S. A., Buffalo, N. Y.

ANSWER: You "can make big money" in brain surgery, too. The trick in anything is knowing what you're doing.

A lot of people, with almost clock-like regularity, buy up old, run-down houses and completely redo them. But, it certainly isn't as easy as it sounds. Ideally, you should be in a position to do most of the work yourself.

If you don't have this background, or the time to engage in it, you certainly should have the expertise to haggle with contractors, read bids, make cost estimates and keep everybody on the agreed-upon time schedule.

Think you can handle it?

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We have constant problems with our neighbor who is a nice enough man, but he has three small children — all pre-school — that run all over our yard, play in our bushes and shrubs and dig up my wife's flower plants. There's also a big dog.

We are a retired couple and take a lot of pleasure in working in our yard and this is driving us frantic. I got mad recently and told this man that if he doesn't put a fence I would get the police after him. He said he would if I would pay for half of it. I say that it's HIS responsibility, don't you? — P. L. N., Allentown, Pa.

ANSWER: Do you want to stand on a matter of principle, or do you want to go bananas?

It's a fair offer. Take it while he's still in the mood.

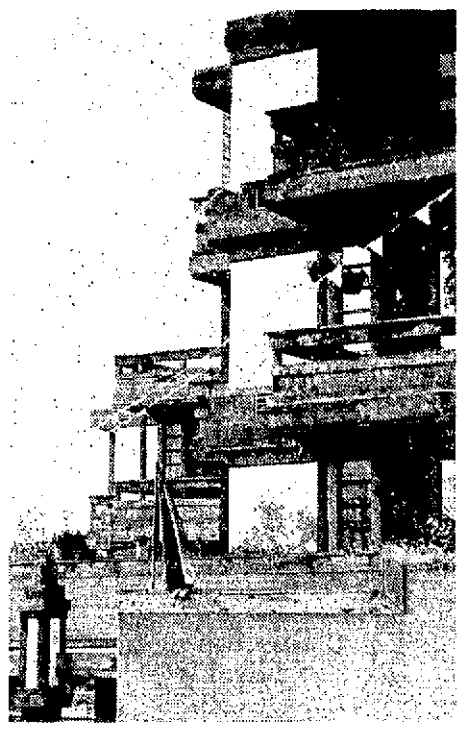
Signal Hills Towers 60 per cent sold out

Only 11 of the 27 units in Signal Hills Towers, $1,300,000 adult condominium development which had its grand opening last Sunday remain for sale.

The condominiums, on 19th Street between Stanley and Molino avenues, are priced from $34,900 to $61,000. Construction was completed two weeks ago.

The master-planned community consists of two three-story buildings with individual subterranean enclosed parking garages, elevators, landscaped rooftop gardens and outdoor entertainment areas.



DECORATOR kitchens will feature coordinated accessories.

On the grounds are a large, heated and night-lighted swimming pool, a health and exercise gymnasium, sauna and hydrotherapy pool with men's and women's locker rooms. There is a poolside cabana with wet bar and pool table and table tennis.

Three furnished models are open daily from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Landscaping consists of natural contouring over the 10-15 per cent slope of the site, and consists of trees, greenery and shrubs with many flowering plants.

The architect, William Earl Tickell Jr. of Signal Hill, said, "The materials consist of rough sawn wood, concrete, stucco and glass, which will be left to weather into organically harmonious tones and shades, weathering naturally and requiring little maintenance. The structures will appear to have grown upon the land, an organic blending of hillside and home.

RUSTIC SIGNAL HILLS TOWERS

"The architectural objective was to create a dignified living environment using natural materials and interesting configurations of space orienting to the coolness and views of the ocean.

"Each apartment home has rooms and spaces flowing and opening onto one another with sunken living areas and eight-foot-high sliding doors and mitered solar glass windows which open onto balconies and gardens with panoramic views of the city, from Belmont Shore to the downtown center to Palos Verdes and Santa Monica."

The one-and two-bedroom units are 850 to 1,370 square feet. Buyers may have the assistance of the interior design team of Tickell designs, headed by May Tickell.

The Towers are being developed by members of the William Tickell family, pioneer Long Beach area residents.

New fire system at Canyon

The luxury of Big Canyon Townhomes in Newport Beach is underlined by the practicality of a highly sophisticated $500,000 fire protection and detection system.

"The system includes smoke detectors within the townhomes which sound an alarm with the presence of smoke and enunciator boards flash out the exact location of any problem," reports Robert McLain, president of McLain Development Co., builders.

Planned for 144 units with 61 in the first phase, Big Canyon Townhomes now are nearing the $3 million mark in sales, McLain said.

The 13-acre community is comprised mainly of separate enclaves of homes, each with a private, fountain-centered courtyard.

PRICED FROM $99,800 to $159,900, Big Canyon Townhomes are nestled on knolls overlooking the verdant fairways of the golf course, and surrounding the community's own recreation complex which will consist of a tennis court, swimming pool, therapy pool and sundeck.

The homes are available in two two-and-den, three- and three-bedroom-and-den plans. Clerestory windows, skylights, and vaulted ceilings contribute to a feeling of spaciousness.

The entrance to Big Canyon Townhomes is on Ford Road, between Jamboree Road and MacArthur Boulevard. The sales and information center and furnished models are open daily from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Betty Ford best at being herself

By MARIE RIDDER
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — Whatever happens to President Ford in the November election, one fact will remain certain: Everybody loves his wife.

Betty Bloomer Ford, until 2½ years ago a little-known Congressional wife, has bloomed on the national scene. It's as though this charming lady, confined for most of her life as many women are to carpooling and cooking, Cinderella-like donned a magic shoe upon entering the White House.

Not long ago the handsome Mrs. Ford was shy. She stooped a bit as though to be less obvious. After the House minority leader became vice president his wife lived in dread of what she called "the terrible thought that I might become First Lady."

The pain in the pinched nerve in her neck increased. Her habitual tardiness to official functions showed her dislike of public life. Betty, who was fun and funny at home or among intimate friends, had always resisted campaigning. Public speaking terrified her.

But from the first day, when Mrs. Ford directed the placement of the Ford's 25-year-old double bed in the President's bedroom with the comment that there was no reason to change the way she and her husband had always lived, she has been refreshingly spontaneous.

Intelligently outspoken, she has been that rare thing in official life, an open human being.

IN A RECENT interview Mrs. Ford laughingly explained her new self, part seriously, part jokingly. She said, "There is so much marvelous help in the White House, so many time-consuming, energy-draining things I no longer have to do. I don't, for example, get up in the morning to face a full dishwasher or a vacuum cleaner.

"It came as a surprise to me that I could do the job by just being myself. I could, for example, give an official dinner in the same spirit that I would give a party at home but with so many things to help — a fine chef, flowers from the greenhouse, a superb staff. It suddenly wasn't all so scary. And I began to enjoy myself."

Mrs. Ford lists as special pleasures the fun of making up the guest lists, trying to mix people from many parts of the country and varying occupations, the challenge to her imagination in trying to do original and appropriate center pieces.

"But then," she adds, "why wouldn't it be fun? Museums lend their Early American artifacts, people respond with such enthusiasm to a request from the White House."

Of course nothing succeeds like success. Betty Ford's self confidence must have started to build in those first post-Watergate weeks when her naturalness and warmth were so applauded by a public desperately anxious to be consoled by something fresh and wholesome about the occupants of the White House.

Not everything Mrs. Ford has said has been popular. Her own husband does not share her conviction that abortion is every woman's right. Many TV viewers deplored her willingness to accept the possibility that her daughter Susan could have an affair. Others resent her open support of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Says a White House spokesman, "The fact is that though we have had lots of mail disagreeing with Mrs. Ford, it is currently running at about 5 to 1 in favor of her statements."

THE VIGNETTES that come to mind about Mrs. Ford are varied:

The smiling hostess, who from the first party a short four days after she arrived in the White House, has entertained more chiefs of state in a short period than any predecessor. Bicentennial visitors have inundated Washington, each a prima-donna to be received with full pomp and glory by the President and First Lady.

Luckily these two seem to love "having people over." Mrs. Ford always looks delighted to see each guest.

Many arrive awed by dinner at the White House, but they are soon put at ease by the presidential couple. It is the friendliest White House this reporter has ever covered.

The valiant patient throwing a medicine ball,

LONG BEACH TO BOSTON

Biker's Bicentennial trip

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

A visit to 13 states seems like an appropriate Bicentennial trip. But, this was not an ordinary trip. It covered nearly 4,500 miles from Long Beach to Boston via Canada — by bicycle.

Accomplishing the feat in 53 days was a 19-year-old Long Beach student, David Johnson, who talked about his experiences during a recent interview. No, he did not ride his bike back. He returned by plane, with his bike carefully packaged in a "giant Baggie."

He almost didn't complete the trip at all. His bike with all the supplies and his travelers' checks was stolen in Port Hueneme where he left it "unlocked just for a minute." The police captured the suspect, who also was wanted for grand theft auto, and Johnson continued his journey never "leaving the bike unlocked again."

A graduate of Lakewood High School, Johnson set out from Long Beach in June, with a goal of reaching Boston by mid-August. He made it, but just barely, running into an unexpected two-day delay in Sault St. Marie, Mich.

He arrived there late on a Saturday afternoon to find the bike shop was closed — he needed a new tire, one of seven he had to purchase during the trip. Being a small town, the shop also was closed Sunday, and Monday was a holiday.

He spent the extra time reading newspapers and his travel maps. He spent $110 on tires and the entire trip only cost him $200.

Did he miss anything on his odyssey? "Yes, good music and good tires!"

HIS BIKE — a Raleigh Competition — was packed with two extra tires (he encountered his first flat outside Santa Barbara and his last in New Hampshire), a tarp, a lightweight tent, mosquito netting, minimal extra clothing, a water bottle and a tool kit.

"I don't think there was a night I didn't have to put up the netting to keep the bugs away," he said.

He rode up California Highway One, stopping for a visit with his older brother, Mike, in Santa Cruz, then proceeded north along the Bikecentennial Trail across the Golden Gate Bridge and on into Oregon. He spent July 4 in Drain, Ore., and rode part way with another biker going the same direction.

"Throughout California, there were Bikecentennial campsites in state parks where bikers could stay for 50 cents a night. They didn't have them in Oregon, but several bikers could stay in the same campsite and split the cost," explained Johnson, son of the late Mrs. Dorothy Johnson.

Then, he crossed into Idaho and eastern Wyoming, where he encountered "golf ball-size hail. According to my map, there was water every 30 miles, but when I arrived at one stop, there was no water. I had to ride another 30 miles without water and just made it to the gas station on the edge of town when the hailstorm hit. It lasted about 30 minutes."

He slept at the base of the Grand Tetons and had a flat about halfway up. Then 50 feet from the top, his chain came out of the sprocket and he fell over. "I was only going about three miles an hour, so I wasn't hurt."

HE AVERAGED close to 95 miles a day, except along Highway One where he encountered a headwind and in South Dakota, where he had a headwind the entire time while going up and down "about 300 hills. It's very hilly there." His longest day covered 140 miles.

He started planning the trip last January and got into shape by taking weekend rides, increasing the distance each trip.

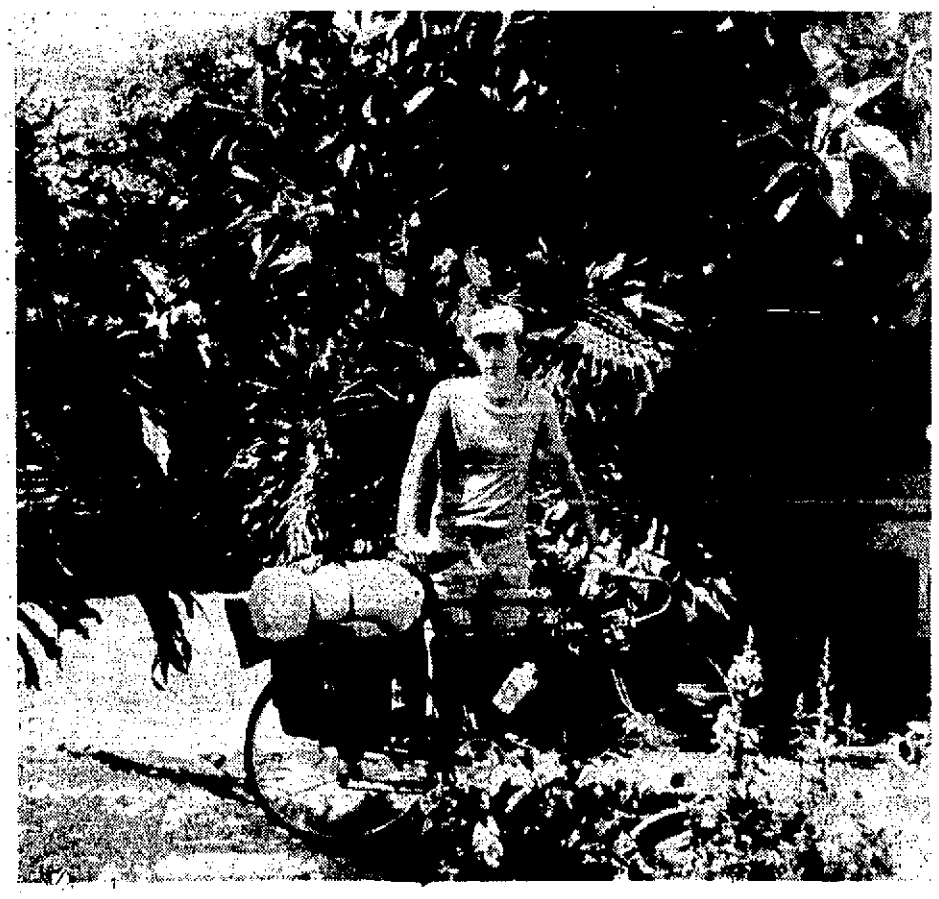
During the cross-country ride, he would travel 15 or 20 miles before breakfast, and stop about 30 minutes before dark to establish camp. He ate three to four times a day and would stop to eat alongside a building.

"I learned not to be bothered by the stares after the first few days. Basically, people were very nice. They asked me questions like where was I from and where was I going."

Except in Wyoming, where "a cowboy" threw a beer can at him from a pickup truck and the liquid splashed all over him. And, in Yellowstone, where he was run off the road by a camper and dented his bike. "Yellowstone was like Wilshire Boulevard at five o'clock there were so many cars."

He blew his last tire in Yellowstone and had to hitchhike 50 miles to a bike shop — "the only shop within 150 miles — in Montana." He was picked up by some Germans in a station wagon and they conversed "a little bit, but I was embarrassed." He speaks excellent German from his four years of language in school.

HIS DIET CONSISTED of fresh fruit where available; cold food from cans; cereal, milk and sandwiches. "Do you know you can only buy white bread in the Midwest?" he asked. He didn't eat as well as he would have liked, instead whatever he could buy, mostly in small town stores.



There was lots of California produce in Canada, but it was expensive and "you lost 4 cents on the $1 if you used American money." Also, in most places, you couldn't buy just one or two pieces of fruit, you had to buy a pre-packaged sackful, he said.

He estimates he lost about 15 pounds and has been eating to catch up since

...survey studies America's cyclists

By MICHAEL F. CONLAN
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON — He is in his mid-thirties and owns a light-weight, multi-gear bicycle.

He rides three times in most months, and pedals more than 2,300 miles a year — mainly for the exercise. Dogs are not his best friends.

That is the composite picture of the American adult who regularly rides bicycles, according to a government survey.

Other findings of the survey, conducted for the Federal Highway Administration, include:

— More than half the riders have been regularly using bicycles for less than five years.

— The vast majority of the riding takes place on regular streets, not on bike trails or in special areas.

— The average male rides almost 40 per cent more miles than the average female, and mileage seems to increase with experience.

— Serious injuries — usually involving autos and frequently caused by dogs — are twice as likely to happen to frequent bicyclists than the average motorist. (Once every 14 years vs. once every 28 years.)

A 125-PAGE REPORT based on the survey noted that no attempt was made to portray the average bicyclist.

"Some experts feel that of the approximately 90 million bicycles currently owned in this country, perhaps as much as 50 per cent are only taking up storage space in a basement or garage, or are used very infrequently," the report said.

"The remaining bicycling most likely consists of the child riding around his neighborhood, usually on the sidewalk, or the adult who uses his bicycle for recreation riding or purposeful trip-making."

While some studies have been done on the habits and accident involvement of school-age riders, there has been almost no research on the fairly recent phenomenon of adult (16 and up) bicycle riders.

Bicycle sales have soared in recent years, particularly of light, multi-speed models.

From 1972 through 1975, more bicycles were sold in the United States than new cars for the first time since World War I.

The high was reached in 1973 when 15.3 million bicycles were purchased. Last year, sales plummeted to 7.3 million from 14.1 million in 1974.

More leisure time, increased per capita spendable income, large-scale introduction of light "racing" bicycles and more emphasis on physical fitness, the environment and fuel conservation are cited reasons for the recent boom in bicycling.

Glad you asked that!

Q: Is it true that Richard Donner, the director of "The Omen," one of the most morbid and violent movies I've ever seen, claims he's against violence? If so what does he call his movie? — Blanche Range, Youngstown, Ohio.

A: "We call it," Donner smiled, "suspenseful entertainment!"

Despite the 80 enraged baboons who hurl themselves at a car containing Lee Remick and five-year-old first-time actor Harvey Stephens; despite the vicious dogs which attack Gregory Peck and a photographer in a cemetery; and despite other scenes involving hanging, impalement, decapitation, actress Remick crashing to her death and more, the director insists "It's not a bloodletting film."

He makes clear why he is anti-violence. "I am opposed to violence in its form of man's inhumanity to man. Where gratuitous violence is used as a selling point or something not there to start with. Incidentally," Donner points out, "there is some great music in 'The Omen,' and even some laughs!"

Q: Despite your answer in a recent column that "Gone With the Wind" hasn't been shown on TV in Minneapolis yet, a friend in Fridley saw it just the other week. Will you explain, please? — Larry Johnson, Minneapolis.

A: What your friend saw was not on local or network TV. "GWTW" was presented as a pay-TV feature by a cable TV company without commercial interruptions, editing or cutting. It was only one of eight different "first run on television" movies presented via cable TV in June, we're advised by a company spokesman.

Q: Is it true that Sirhan Sirhan now regrets murdering Robert Kennedy? — Mrs. A.T., Pittsfield, Mass.

A: "I think all I would have needed to do," Sirhan told an interviewer, "was just to give Kennedy a good punch in the nose. I think that would have satisfied me."

Q: Are stars sensitive about bad reviews? — Mrs. Myles Larkin, Seattle.

A: That depends on their sense of humor. Take actress-singer Connie Francis, for instance. She still carries a clipping in her purse containing a devastating comment printed in a review about a Navy musical she once filmed. The caustic critic cracked: "This picture is the worst American naval disaster since Pearl Harbor."

Q: How is former Beatle Paul McCartney making out with his new group, Wings? And with his marriage to Linda? — Mrs. Tom Gallagher, New York.

A: One hundred per cent with both. Wings grossed some $6 million in its American tour.

About his marriage, McCartney remarks, "I don't know what it is about Linda and me. We never intended to hook up with one person and stay with that person forever. It's just the way it happened with us. Now we're always with our kids. We're all together most of the time, and we enjoy each other. But you never know. Blimey — I don't know whether we're going to stay together."

Q: Is Sinatra Frank's real name? I've read where his father was known as Marty O'Brien. Which is it, Sinatra or O'Brien? — J.P.R., Morristown, N.J.

A: Frank's late dad was named Martin Sinatra. "Marty O'Brien" was the moniker under which he fought as a bantamweight in his pro boxing days.

Q: Will you please settle a heated argument? After watching Rev. Billy Graham on TV, I said it was obvious he was wearing a toupee. My friends were so indignant you'd think I had committed heresy. Who's right? — Mrs. B.L. Dale, St. Louis.

A: As much as we try not to get into the middle of a hair-raising imbroglio, we're afraid your eyes deceived you. "Billy Graham does not wear any kind of hairpiece," an aide explained. "I can tell you that he has a very good head of hair, which most of us are tempted to covet. Especially someone like me, whose hairline has been receding for years."

Q: What happened when Mick Jagger's wife walked into his hotel room and caught him with some groupies? — Ms. S. G., Buffalo.

A: Bianca didn't walk in on her husband. She'd called the rock star while he was on tour — and a groupie answered his room phone. Furious, Bianca grabbed some of his expensive silk shirts and ripped them to shreds. She later cooled down and commented: "Of course I am jealous. But fortunately so is he! I forgive — but I never forget!"

Q: Didn't Orson Welles once run for political office? — Mrs. Emily Donnat, Oakland.

A: The multi-talented and highly literate actor did plan to run for an elective office some years ago in his home state of Wisconsin. But, as he recalls, "The Dairy people liked Joe McCarthy so much I was advised not to run. However, I'll always think that if I'd been elected we wouldn't have had to endure McCarthyism."

Q: We think Jimmy Carter and actor George Kennedy are look-alikes. Are they the same age? And are they related? — Mr. & Mrs. P.L.K., Longview, Tex.

A: No — to both questions. Carter is three years older, born Oct. 1, 1924, in Plains, Ga. Kennedy was born in New York, Feb. 18, 1927.

BRITISH singer Paul McCartney — former Beatle finds success in career and marriage.

ACTRESS Lee Remick in scene from movie "The Omen" — violence surrounded by nice music and laughs OK.

CONVICTED murderer Sirhan Sirhan — decided he could have let out anger with Robert Kennedy in different way.

ACTOR George Kennedy and Democratic Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, inset — look-alikes, but no relation.

Stars awed by working with director Resnais

PARIS — The short taxi ride across the Seine to the elegant Hotel Lancaster covers all there is to say about Paris, 1976. Dry and sere from a prolonged drought, it's shabbier than ever.

The magnificent birthday-cake buildings are scrawled with student graffiti, litter blows down the usually immaculate Champs-Elysees, and the grande dame of cities tries desperately to hold on to dignity and discipline while collapsing under the pandemic burden of overpopulation.

Inside the shadowy foyer of the exclusive Lancaster, it's a different story. Old world gentlemen in waistcoats, tails and frosty white gloves lead the way to a glass-roofed garden exploding with begonias and marigolds. There, under a saucy umbrella, sits a most sought-after actress — Ellen Burstyn. She is lettuce-fresh: crisp blonde hair, pale flawless complexion, flowing chiffon garden dress. I stumble over an unattended, rumpled Aubusson carpet on my way to the table. Ah! Even the Lancaster goofs in this careless age.

Burstyn won an Oscar for her portrayal of a warm-hearted waitress in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," and twice won Oscar nominations for playing warm-hearted mothers in "The Last Picture Show" and "The Exorcist." Last year on Broadway she won a Tony as the warm-hearted adulteress in "Same Time Next Year." Being warm-hearted on stage and screen in no way interferes with her coolheadedness in life.

Her ability to do both is why she's sipping tea in a Paris hotel while starring in one of the most prestigious films being made this year — a film with the enigmatic title, "Providence." She's one-fifth of a dazzling cast working in awe of (and in accord with) the direction of the renowned French director Alain Resnais.

Her co-stars are Dirk Bogarde, John Gielgud, Elaine Stritch and David Warner. It's obvious listening to her talk that working in a Resnais film is a lot like playing Little Orphan Annie to a generous but awesome Daddy Warbucks.

"Resnais is incredible," she confides. "Mysterious, impenetrable. It's very difficult to talk about him, for on one hand, he's considerate, sweet and kind. On the other, he's remote and almost cold. He has a faculty for taking David Mercer's finished script and editing that script in his own mind. He has created a mental shooting script that is, in reality, a completely edited film. Nothing is left on the cutting room floor. He uses every piece of film he shoots and never shoots anything he won't need. Maybe it's genius."

ELLEN BURSTYN, left, and Elaine Stritch are two of the stars in "Providence," currently being filmed on location in Paris.

SHE CONTINUES, bracing as summer sherbet. "I play Dirk's wife and Elaine Stritch is Dirk's mistress, but also his mother." My eyebrow turns into an inverted V. "Well, you see, we are really being created by John Gielgud, who is a dying novelist and Dirk's father. I mean, sometimes we're his fictional characters and sometimes we are real. All except Elaine — who is only an imaginary mistress because she's Dirk's mother and John's dead wife.

I know it's confusing. But the story is psychologically sound and if it works, it will be a worthy, almost noble effort to show something that hasn't been done on the screen before. You know, the actual creative process of writing in a stream-of-consciousness style. There have been books on the subject, like Proust, but I can't recall a movie.

"Before I met Stritch, I was worried about our speech patterns, thinking I should be British. During make-up and lighting tests, I asked her how she was going to sound, and she said, in this deep bass voice (Ellen lowers her voice several octaves in a vain attempt to reproduce Elaine Stritch): 'Like I'm from Detroit, Michigan!' I was knocked out. Because you see, I'm from Detroit, too. So here was this accidental psychological thread that bound the two women in Dirk's life.

"I'm surprised how much I like Dirk. We not only have different acting styles, but different lifestyles. Dirk is so much more formal. At first I found him witty and charming, but I couldn't imagine we'd become warm and close. But I found how superlovable he is when we were shooting in Limoges.

Resnais found this unbelievable chateau there that belonged to the Haviland porcelain family. The house was perfect for the picture because it didn't belong to any particular period of architecture. 'Providence' is not set in a specific time or place, though the title sounds like Rhode Island, and it could be.

"IN LIMOGES I found the hotel uncomfortable. Dirk invited me to an auberge where he was staying. I found it a paradise of birdsong and willows, and moved in. We stayed three weeks and spent a lot of time together.

"I really love him — really. He's very funny about acting. You know he claims to know nothing; that he is totally intuitive, and he says, 'Don't talk about acting, don't get near it or it will go away.' I couldn't believe the man who stunned us all in 'The Servant,' 'Accident,' 'The Damned' and 'Death in Venice' could say such naive things. But when I worked with him I found none of it was true. He's like a rock and knows exactly what he's doing. He knows his craft backwards.

"I've never felt any of the things Dirk says he feels. I don't think my talent is ephemeral. I'm a trained actress, and I depend on technique. If an actor depends only on his natural ability, he might wake up one night and find it gone." Tea ends abruptly with a message from Bogarde. He waits in the lobby. Would I mind being prompt? Ellen smiles graciously and says, "I told you he is formal."

The Lancaster, for all its splendor, does not have a restaurant. We walk busily up the street to a cavernous Mandarin cafe where Bogarde smiles smugly, embarrassed but secretly delighted by the attention he creates. He is tweedy, though it's summer and he's not wearing wool. One expects a riding crop to come flicking at you if you say anything rude.

But behind this fearsome facade lives a tender, dedicated man who agonizes over his chosen career. Whiskies are ordered. He says he's been talking to Resnais about working together for 14 years. "We had two projects shelved because neither of us is what they call box office. Now he just makes me give him what he calls 'the good look' like Alan Ladd."

IGNORING CHOPSTICKS, he fiddles with his fork, not really eating. "Resnais had me do each take three times in three different ways, and after weeks, I asked if he could tell which one of the characters I was. He asked me to give him one more week, but he still hasn't said who I am.

"I know he has taken from all three versions and matched them in his own way. Like a painter doing pointillism, putting in thousands of tiny dots, building a picture. Some of the others complained they didn't down on the levee

The year 1937 began in the rain.

It rained in Wheeling and it rained in Cincinnati and it rained in Louisville and in Washington it rained while the President was telling 3,000 drenched spectators, from his inaugural stand, of his dissatisfaction with "one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished."

It rained in the bayous of Arkansas and in the hills of Pennsylvania and for a two-day period on the plains of Ohio it rained six inches.

Up and down the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, it rained, 16 inches here, 20 inches there. And rolling tributaries — the White, the Arkansas, the Quachita, the Monongahela — coursing through 10 sodden states, dumped their foaming waters into the swollen Ohio which in its turn plunged with such might and violence into the Mississippi that, for a stretch, the Father of Waters flowed upstream.

Never in recorded U.S. history has a flood of such proportions visited such a vast section of the country with such fury. By February 1,500,000 are homeless and another 50,000, fleeing the lowlands around Memphis, are streaming into that old steamboat town which itself is imperiled. It is apparent that the system of "flood-proof" levees on the lower Mississippi, recently completed by the Army Corps of Engineers at a cost of $325 million, will not be sufficient: the Mississippi is expected to crest at 53 feet at Memphis, seven and a half feet above the record crest.

The levees must be strengthened — and all must help. From out of their armories come National Guardsmen. From out of their work camps come members of the Civilian Conservation Corps. From out of the Shelby County Penal Farm in Tennessee, leg irons fast to ankles, comes a chain gang.

Chain gang? Most urbanites of 1937 are vaguely aware of this quanit practice in penology, but only through books and movies. Rural southerners could on occasion get an actual look at the forlorn lines of black faces working on roadbeds. But photographs of the men are actively discouraged and extremely rare.

For most Americans, then, the picture they see in their morning papers Feb. 2, 1937, four chained men on a Mississippi levee, is an eye-opener in the truest sense.

In the lobby of Memphis's Peabody Hotel, Associated Press photographer John Lindsay hears some talk, hardly more than a rumor, about a chain gang working on the levee nearby. No official will confirm the report. Next morning, early, he rents a car. The going is rough: roads washed out, blocked. Snaking around trees through a patch of soggy woods, he finds his way to the levee and sees the gang at work. To his astonishment, the guard is helpful, cooperative, offering him hot coffee under a canvas tent. Still, Lindsay is appalled, personally hurt, at the sight. He wants to ask the guard, "Why do they need chains while they're working?" But he holds his tongue and shoots several pictures. Driving back, he says to himself, "Maybe the pictures will do some good." Several days later, after his pictures are published, he reads in the paper: "Chairman E. W. Hale of the Shelby County Commission has recommended commutation of sentences for the 500 black prisoners who worked on the levee."

Japanese students say 'sayonara'

CAN YOU IMAGINE putting a visit to a shopping center on a sightseeing list with Disneyland, Catalina and the Huntington Library?

You can if you were on the committee which recently hosted 11 Japanese students who not only took in a shopping center but went to Disneyland TWICE.

There is always a catch to anything wonderful.

The students had to go to SCHOOL.

They attended English classes at Long Beach City College in the morning and did the fun things afterward.

Arrangements for the visit were made by LBSU student Kyoka Sashida who is completing her masters degree.

This is the third year that Kyoka has organized groups from her home town of Hachioji to come to Long Beach.

With the aid of the Dr. John Harrises and Haruko Minegishi, host families were found and events planned for the students, mostly college age.

One age exception was 10-year-old Harumi Ohno who stayed with the Kenneth Grabowskis, also parents of a 10-year-old daughter.

The group presented Mayor Tom Clark with a key to the city of Hachioji from Mayor Goto.

They have jetted away now after a farewell luncheon at the home of the Dr. Sam Varons. Luncheon was Japanese-style prepared by Kyoka.

Other host families were the Dean Syversons, Ray Heimburgers, Rodney Stantons, Don Bakers and Fred Woods.

Joyce Hessenger and Maurie McConnell were hostesses as were the Robert Maloneks and Tom Sumpters.

NO DIRT SWEPT under the rug of Wanda Sewak's Park Estates home when members and guests of Las Hermanas, auxiliary to Assistance League, met for luncheon.

Highlight of the afternoon was the appearance of Edwin Kashishian, long time Long Beach oriental rug dealer. Those present told me that he showed items from his personal collection and discussed the crafting and design of rugs. Ladies were so enthusiastic that his scheduled "brief appearance" was prolonged by eager questioners.

Special guests were League President Bea Scott, President-nominee Norma Marter and Rick Racker vice-chairgal Kelly Bushman.

Alice Engels was in charge of arrangements with an assist from Eleanor Parson, Nancy Fleischli, Beth Utterback, Corkey Jenkins, Esther Gilmore and Grace Alexander.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY today to Eula Diemer.

She is celebrating 90 years with a party given by her family.

Hosts for the afternoon reception at Atlantic United Methodist Church are her daughter, Aloha Reese and husband, Clare, their daughter, Carol and Eula's son, Emory Diemer, his wife, Celia, and their daughters, Alicia Diemer and Juliana McCarthy. Grandson Ron Reese sent congratulations from Spain.

SPEAKING OF the senior set.

Emily Myrick of Wilmington has temporarily given up wrestling and taken to traveling.

You may recall reading in this space that "Granny", as she is known, is an avid wrestling fan, attends matches when she can and watches them on TV when she can't.

First Emily headed for Oregon to see her new great-granddaughter, Angie Lee Beck, daughter of granddaughter, Michelle Beck and husband, David.

While she was at it she dropped in on her sister, Rose Hutto, in Alabama.

MORE TRAVELING...

By Ralph and Roney Gaston and her children Martin and Erika Schlarmann.

They "dropped in" on relatives and friends during a 17-day cross-country (well they got to the midwest) sojourn by auto.

En route they visited former Lakewoodites, George and Mary Anne Curry. George abandoned Big City politics (he ran unsuccessfully for the Assembly) for the life of a gentleman rancher on his own 110 acre ranch in Missouri.

Houseguests and ranchers took in the local county fair where the Currys' 14-year-old son, Mike, entered his bull, "T-Bone" (the Currys specialize in Charolais cattle — imagine a cow who speaks French) and walked off with a bunch of blue ribbons. If "T-Bone" continues his winning ways, the Currys will be at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona next year.

The Gastons also visited her parents, Sam and Ruth Martin in Tiffin, Ohio, and Ruth and Joe Grubb in Gallion, Ohio.

A MYTHICAL voyage aboard the SS Princess Louise will take the Wilson High Class of 1951 on a nostalgic cruise.

The date is Sept. 18.

Mark your calendar and send your reservations to Bill and Polly (Garverick) Ridgeway, 3245 E. First St., Long Beach, 90803.

First Lady enjoys official duties

eager to be photographed soon after her operation for breast cancer to allay the fears of millions of American women and encourage them to be checked for this prevalent and dread disease.

"I know it can come as great shock," says the First Lady.

Mrs. Ford gave a splendid lunch for her old friend Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and her daughters Lynda and Luci, before going to Bethesda Naval Hospital the day of her operation.

Mrs. Johnson said of her hostess, "She was so eager to talk to us about the White House, so full of good spirits, no one could have guessed her afternoon destination."

"GRACE UNDER pressure," said one distinguished First Lady of another.

Some weeks ago Mrs. Ford went to a Bicentennial gala given by the Jewish National Fund. Israel had given a park outside Jerusalem in honor of the Bicentennial. The dinner was to dedicate the park.

Mrs. Ford's dinner partner, the president of the fund, Maurice Sage, had a heart attack while addressing the guests. Pandemonium ensued as doctors were called. The audience was left leaderless, the podium empty. No one came forward to fill the terrifying gap until Mrs. Ford stood to ask everyone to join her in prayer for the stricken man.

Her prayer, she said, would have to be "in my way and my own words." Its message: "Let us all join together in love."

"Mrs. Ford saved the evening," said a guest. "She gave the whole evening a dignity. By leading our prayers she brought us a sense of community. I will be in her debt forever."

Before Mrs. Ford became First Lady, a friend said, "Betty is so attractive, she has such good taste, she is such fun. Of course dear Betty will be a fine First Lady."

And along with enthusiasm there would have been loving concern, "Will she survive the pressures?"

Some might have remembered that during one trying period when her politician husband was traveling constantly, Betty had sought advice from a psychiatrist. Others would talk about her as a "private person."

BUT NOT ONE would have guessed that Mrs. Jerry Ford would become the dancing heroine of her husband's trip to China, as nimble as the red revolutionary dancers and the darling of camera crews starved for something newsworthy to show American audiences.

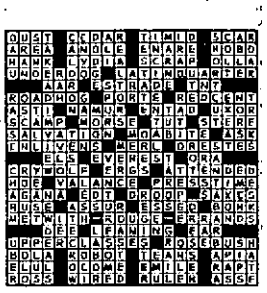
No one would have guessed that she would break tradition and elaborately hoof with the dancers of the traditionally-male Gridiron Chorus or swing out with Tony Orlando at the just-concluded Republican convention. The talents of Martha Graham's able student finally exhibited!

No one would have guessed that Betty, who hated campaign travel, would pursue a schedule that would make even Eleanor Roosevelt blanch, often rising at dawn for a fund-raising breakfast in a remote western town and getting to New York for a Lincoln Center gala that evening.

She has emerged not only as a fine campaigner for her husband but as a woman espousing causes that she believes in on her own.

Last month Betty Ford opened a Bicentennial exhibit in Plymouth, Mass., honoring the women of the Revolution. It was a beautiful day, the town dignitaries were bursting with pride in their Bicentennial event.

Lunch was delicious, everyone congratulated everyone else. Indeed, it was the kind of occasion that one could expect pleasant but dull platitudes from a First Lady. Mrs. Ford choose another course.



"IT IS TIME," she said, "to focus on the unfinished business of our Revolution for full freedom and justice for women. This exhibit about neglected Americans should give us strength, courage to seek equal rights for women today, rights that have been denied women since the writing of the Constitution."

In the little square beyond the exhibition hall hecklers crowded together, carrying signs reading, "Stop ERA," "The Equal Rights Amendment stamps out families."

As the sign carriers began to hoot and shout, Betty Bloomer Ford stood very straight. Raising her voice above the noise she said clearly, "Neither habit nor history justify continuing rampant injustice." She sounded like the determined politician she has become.

As Gerald Ford faces the campaign, it must be no small pleasure for him to read that 71 per cent of the people polled by Mr. Gallup love Betty Ford.

Pedals way to Boston returning. He was most hungry for "meat loaf and mashed potatoes."

The scenery and lakes of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan impressed him. He liked Minnesota best, even though "I must have been chased by every dog in the state ... there and in New York."

He was invited to have dinner with a young couple in Minnesota and when it started to rain, he was asked to stay the night. He rode around Lake Superior with another biker from the area.

Rain was a problem in Canada. "It rained continuously for one day and night." He also got caught in the aftermath of Hurricane Belle that hit the East Coast, riding through flood waters in Vermont.

"It also rained in New York and New Hampshire, where there are hills of more than a 45-degree angle. They are mean hills. They jut up out of nowhere."

HE HAD NO trouble crossing the border into Canada, but was hassled trying to return to the United States at New York. "The border guards checked all my bags and ran my passport through the computer. It took me about 20 minutes and they didn't stop any of the cars to search."

The roads in Canada were narrow and the trucks would force him off to the side. "I got run off the road an average of three times a day." He had one close call in Michigan.

"I was riding along with a big rig behind me and one coming the other way. The one behind me decided to speed up and pass me so that both trucks wouldn't pass at the same time. I got sucked up in the wake and, in trying to regain control of my bike, was forced into the main traffic lane. A car behind me had to swerve to keep from hitting me and scraped the other rig, but no one was hurt."

He continued his journey undaunted. "When 1,500 cars pass you every day, nothing bothers you," he said.

He plans to continue riding and will take a trip to Santa Barbara before classes begin at UCLA, where he is a junior. Right now, he's resting and cleaning his bike.

Drug amantadine effective flu fighter

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Medical science appears to have a secret weapon against the swine flu.

It's secret because most doctors don't want to talk about it.

Yet it's listed in all the drug directories, and it's in the drug stores.

Some medical authorities say it's being kept secret because most doctors are vaccine-oriented when it comes to the problem of flu.

So, the vaccine continues to make the headlines. But who ever hears about amantadine?

Amantadine. Trade name: Symmetrel. A little prescription capsule. Also, syrup form. Can be used not only to prevent Type A influenza but also to treat it even after the disease has set in.

"Publicly, the Center for Disease Control remains silent (about amantadine), " says a report in Current Prescribing magazine, published by the firm that prints the yearly Physicians' Desk Reference.

"Privately, however, it is a different story. When approached for suggestions on how to handle the high mortality rate in an influenza outbreak in a Florida nursing home, the CDC suggested amantadine."

THIS DISCLOSURE comes from Ernest C. Herrmann Jr., Ph.D., associate professor of microbiology at Peoria School of Medicine, University of Illinois.

Dr. Herrmann, once head of the Mayo Clinic virus laboratory, says that in virtually every well-controlled human trial, amantadine has effectively protected against Type A flu infections. And the swine flu (A-New Jersey) is a Type A flu.

Although the drug was originally designated only for infections by the Asian strain of A-type virus, a Food and Drug Administration official has admitted the agency made a mistake in imposing such a restriction, Dr. Herrmann reports.

Amantadine has an even more effective relative, rimantadine — a drug with proven therapeutic effectiveness against influenza. "But it still languishes unmarketed," the microbiologist reports.

Dr. Arnold Chanin, a Los Angeles pediatrician, reports in Drug Therapy magazine that amantadine gives about 80 per cent protection when taken as a preventive. And the degree of effectiveness when given early in the course of flu is about the same, he adds.

"It has been widely used all over the world," Dr. Chanin says. "The Soviet Union has been using it for prophylaxis since the Hong Kong influenza pandemic of 1968-69."

The Soviet Union has purchased more than 10 million doses for use during the next flu season, it was revealed.

Dr. Chanin says the drug is given once or twice a day.

"I use a dose of 100 milligrams daily during the peak month or two of influenza in the community. For actual treatment of early, non-complicated influenza, I use 100 milligrams twice a day in adults and children over age 12, and 100 milligrams daily in children under age 12."

In uncomplicated influenza, most symptoms disappear within 24-48 hours after amantadine is begun.

DR. CHANIN criticizes the Center for Disease Control for telling American physicians to tell their flu patients to use bed rest, aspirin and fluids.

"The media echo this refrain with every new flu outbreak. I wonder how many people die needlessly because they fail to seek medical attention solely because this wonderful advice is drummed into them annually.

"Some of these individuals are at home attempting to treat pneumonia with aspirin and fluids."

The FDA meanwhile prohibits any advertising of amantadine other than for the prevention of Asian flu and the treatment of Parkinson's disease (shaking palsy). (Doctors later learned that the drug may help Parkinson's victims.)

Dr. Chanin says that the Russians and other countries are "laughing at our enthusiasm over the anual influenza immunization ritual." But the Soviets go on using amantadine and its chemical relative rimantadine in preventing and treating Type A flu.

So remember the name if the swine flu strikes before the vaccine arrives:

Amantadine.

Or Symmetrel.

Says Dr. Herrmann: "Amantadine could be life-saving among (those) who have not been vaccinated."

IN-SIGHTS

Opt for honesty

dr. walt menninger

Conversation during the evening ranged far and wide. Almost all of it had to do with one or another kind of wrong-doing:

— Physicians ripping off the government by adding big laboratory service markups to bills submitted to Medicare and Medicaid;

— An "alleged" doctor arrested after complaints that he sexually abused unknowing, hypnotized patients;

— The congressional sex scandals — both putting women on the payroll primarily for sexual services, and being on the make with police-"prostitutes."

The inevitable question: Who can you trust?

Several weeks ago, I came across a marvelous treatise on this subject. Steven Brill's account of "A New York Cabby Story You Won't Believe" in "New York" magazine.

Brill had the same feeling about New York taxi drivers "that most people have about politicians, that they're all crooks." In advance of the major conventions in the Big Apple this summer, Brill made his own test of the cabbies' trustworthiness.

HE POSED as a foreigner with no knowledge of English and no idea of where he was going. He got into a dozen licensed Yellow cabs around the city to see how many cheated him.

Before beginning his experiment, he polled some friends for their predictions of the outcome. The majority thought three-fourths of the cabbies would be crooks. Only one friend, the least cynical, predicted as few as two would fleece him.

His "startling" findings: With two relatively petty exceptions, each driver was completely honest. "So honest," he reported, "that this became a story about decency in New York and a good lesson for bigots of any persuasion." Indeed, two additional drivers he approached to take him to a place only a block away refused to take him, advising he walk.

In all, he took twelve cabs and spent about $35. Every driver took the most direct route. Two of the twelve beat him out of a total of $1.50. Noted Brill, "These (two did cheat, but only after I almost begged them to."

Counting the two who refused to take him a block — one even got out of his cab and walked 10 feet to point the way, assuring him he could walk there faster — 12 of 14 taxi drivers he approached were completely honest even in the face of extreme temptation.

These honest 12 cabbies appeared to Brill to represent a reasonable cross-section of New York, based on names, looks and accents. (Those readers who are interested will find the complete details of Brill's experiment in the July 19, 1976, "New York" magazine.)

THE FASCINATING irony was cab driver Donald Campbell's admonition to Brill as he let him off. Be wary, "everyone in New York is out to rob you." That is the prevailing myth, no only in New York. Yet the lesson Brill learned is something to be shared more widely.

The potential for good and evil lies within everyone. In the face of temptation, there are those who will be turned to a selfish, exploitative course of action. The evidence suggests, however, that you can trust more people than you think, that most people in gainful, legitimate employment will be worthy of your trust.

You will continue to read news stories of corrupt politicians, or policemen who go wrong, or fraudulent doctors. But don't be misled by these reported incidents. They are news because they are exceptions. Most people are like you and me — we really want to do a good job at what we are doing and get respect and a fair return for our honest labor.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Back surgery

ben zinser

Doctors now can obtain an accurate estimate of how well each patient will do after back surgery by employing psychological testing.

This has been reported to the American College of Surgeons by Dr. Leon L. Wiltse, a Long Beach orthopedic surgeon.

Patients who have a good psychological profile will do well after treatment "no matter what was done," says Dr. Wiltse.

On the other hand, the hysterical patient has only a 10 per cent chance of being relieved of his pain, the doctor reveals.

So the person with a poor psychological profile practically never gets pain relief from a surgical operation.

The study shows that the surgeon himself is the "worst judge" of how well a back patient will do after an operation for pain relief.

Details are in Family Practice News, a newspaper for doctors.

Parkinson's relief

Bromocriptine, a new drug, promises to be a major treatment advance in the control of Parkinson's disease (shaking palsy), researchers have reported to the American Academy of Neurology.

The drug's effectiveness has been compared to that of levodopa (L-dopa) or levodopa combined with carbidopa.

The research with the new drug has been conducted by investigators with the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke, one of the National Institutes of Health.

A report on the research appears in Medical Tribune, a medical newspaper.

Caffeine dependency

Caffeine is regarded as the most commonly consumed psychotropic drug — a drug that affects behavior or mind function.

It is taken by almost 90 per cent of adults, and many children.

Dr. R. M. Gilbert and colleagues analyzed caffeine content in home-prepared coffee and tea. They found that home-prepared beverages have less caffeine than estimated in previous studies. Earlier studies used laboratory-prepared coffee.

Laboratory-prepared coffee had previously shown 88 to 190 milligrams of caffeine per cup of coffee using ground coffee.

Home-prepared ground coffee showed 39 to 168 milligrams per cup for percolated coffee, 56 to 176 milligrams for drip or filter coffee and 20 to 117 milligrams for instant coffee.

Coffee in general contained about 2.5 times as much caffeine per cup as did tea.

Physical dependence on coffee has previously been associated with a daily consumption of five cups of coffee or more. Such dependence then could be associated with as little as 370 milligrams of caffeine daily.

Additional information appears in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, and a summary appears in MD, a newsmagazine for doctors.

Rex Reed writes from Paris

know what they were doing. I said they should just do as they're told. Resnais knows what he's doing, even if nobody else does."

Eyes lit with fatigue and the fire of true emotion, Bogarde almost whispers: "I think this is the most thrilling thing I've ever done in my life. I never thought I'd say that again after 'Death in Venice.' It's like having a great love affair when you think it will never happen again. But it does and with Ellen — well, if I'm good, or we're good, it's Resnais' fault. Because he has precisely used us. He asks so much that at the end of the day your bowl is empty."

WHILE BOGARDE went to bed on the other side of the boiserie door that leads to the Lancaster suite of Elaine Stritch, the brassy sassy musical comedy star held court on an outdoor terrace draped in snowy awnings. Flowers spilled everywhere, and between buckets of iced champagne, the atmosphere was punctuated by that electric voice that stopped the show nightly in "Company."

Stritch is radiant in white satin pajamas, pearls and a chic French hairdo that makes her platinum locks perkier than usual. "I was scared, honey, but Resnais said, 'I vant to see zee two of you togezzer in zee same picture frame. It's a dream of mine, because Dirk has a face like an angel and he has done everyzing naughty and Elaine has the face of someone — boom, boom, boom — who has done everyzing, but has really done NOZZING!' I tell you, I love that man. I have a rapport with Resnais like Christmas morning."

"For a really artistic director to see beyond casting me as Robert De Niro's agent with my elbows on the desk barking jokes is wonderful. He saw beyond all the creeps I've played and saw me as a woman - all feminine. The man's dedication is rare. Do you know he showed me a scrapbook he's been keeping on me for years? All my notices, interviews. It's the way one always dreams this business should be."

NEW SITE FOR GALLERY

LBAA to move headquarters

Long Beach Art Association, oldest continually-operating art group in the city, will move to a new location Sept. 1.

Organized in 1924, LBAA opened its first gallery in 1961 in the Villa Riviera, 800 E. Ocean Blvd. However, with the growth of the city, expenses have increased, parking has become inadequate and facilities too small for meetings and workshops.

The new gallery and headquarters will be in the Long Beach Recreation Department administrative office building, 155 Queens Way. To reach the gallery, turn south on Magnolia from Ocean Boulevard and take the Recreation Department off-ramp. The Recreation Department building, formerly the Armed Services YMCA, is across the parking lot from the Catalina Terminal. Parking space is plentiful; gallery visitors' tickets will be validated. To go by bus, take line number 12.

Since its inception, LBAA has sought to stimulate art appreciation in the community by conducting workshops, critiques, classes, demonstrations and lectures. In 1942, it began the policy, which continues, of giving scholarships to graduating high school students to aid in furthering their art education. LBAA also sponsors an open juried show each year to which artists in Southern California contribute.

Mrs. Harry Brown, president, invites the public to meetings each third Tuesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. These will be held in the future in the Fireside Room of the Recreation building. Among guest speakers this year will be watercolor artists Joan Irving Brandt, who has a studio in Corona Del Mar, and Robert E. Wood, life president of the American Watercolor Society.

Opening event, to introduce members and friends to the new quarters, will take place Sept. 21 at 7 p.m. in the Fireside Room. William Bowne, professor of art at UC, San Diego, will speak after a potluck dinner.

BOOTS, above, are in Cosimo Lucchese exhibit at Long Beach Museum of Art. Show has been extended to run through Sept. 18.

arts

THE "MASTER BOOTS" exhibition by Cosimo Lucchese at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., has been extended to run to Sept. 18.

The 23 pairs of high dress boots on display were crafted in the 1940s by Lucchese, an Italian immigrant who settled in Texas. The highly colored leather boots intricately depict various states — their Capitol buildings, birds, animals, flowers and flags. These are the remaining pairs of an original 48 which Lucchese fashioned to celebrate the then 48 states.

The museum is open Wednesdays through Sundays from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

TWO OF LONG BEACH'S most active and best known artists are leaving this area. Nate and Loyce Carhart of the Whole in the Wall Gallery in Naples are moving north to Oakhurst where they are building a new studio home among the pines and oak trees.

Today from 1 to 7 p.m., they are offering their paintings and graphics for sale in their Long Beach home and studio, 129 Ravenna Drive, at Rivo Alto Canal. Loyce is a member of the National Watercolor Society and has been teaching in all media for several years.

LAKEWOOD ARTIST GUILD is opening its meeting to the public Thursday when Bud Shackelford will give a watercolor demonstration. This artist believes in having fun with watercolor, using not just brushes, but sandpaper, salt, detergents, sticks, knives, blotters, sponges and other materials to achieve textural effects. The session will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Mayfair Park, Clark Avenue and South Street.

The guild will sponsor a workshop which Shackelford will conduct Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Mayfair Park. The fee is $10 for each day.

THE INNOVATIVE graphic art of 33 modern Yugoslav artists went on display Friday at California State Museum of Science and Industry, 700 State Drive, in Exposition Park, Los Angeles.

"Contemporary Yugoslav Prints" may be seen through Oct. 17. Organized by the Modern Gallery of Ljubljana and sponsored by the Embassy of Yugoslavia, Washington, D.C., and the Consulate General of Yugoslavia in San Francisco, the exhibit is presented as a tribute to the American Bicentennial.

Many award-winning Yugoslav artists are represented in this exhibit. The 99 pieces include lithographs, serigraphs, etchings, aquatints and examples of other graphic arts techniques.

Admission is free to the exhibit which is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

ALSO ON DISPLAY at the California State Museum is a poster show of 1975 entries and winners in the Hollywood Reporter's fifth annual Key Arts Awards. This will continue through Oct. 31.

The face of Orson Welles, shadowed, powerful, penetrating, glares out from the poster which was chosen best of show and first place in the European category.

The competition is held to encourage excellence in the "key art" or theme that helps to promote an individual film. Some 130 motion picture publicity posters were submitted world-wide for consideration in this year's competition. Sixteen finalists then were selected in the United States, European and Oriental categories.

Top place went to Paul Bruhwiler, artist with Swissfilm, for "Orson Welles Film Retrospective." Arnoldo Putzu, artist with Cathay Films limited, was first in the Oriental category for "The Man From Hong Kong."

Charles White III, illustrator, and Ed Harridsleff, designer, shared first place in the U.S.A. for Paramount Pictures' "Nashville."

Arts board seeks views on new museum

Chuck Davis, president of the Public Corporation for the Arts, urges persons for or against the building of a new art museum in Long Beach to attend a special meeting Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

Consideration of the museum question will be the only item on the agenda. The PCA is seeking opinions from the public about ways a new museum can be financed and the purposes it should serve.

On Aug. 31, the PCA board of directors will make a specific recommendation about the museum to the city finance committee.

Starlight Extra in red, white and blue

By ELISE EMERY

A rousing Starlight Serenade Extra will bring the 1976 season of concerts in Recreation Park to a close Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The 170-member Long Beach Junior Concert Band will perform, conducted by its director, Marvin Marker, and musical arranger, Monte Gmur.

This official junior concert band for the city has a large, loyal following. The Tuesday concert is sponsored by the City of Long Beach and the Independent, Press-Telegram. Admission, of course, is free, but Marker suggests that concert-goers arrive well before the 8 p.m. curtain for best seating and parking.

SEASONED Starlight Serenaders like to come early, bringing picnic suppers, blankets and lawn chairs or pillows. These additions will be especially welcome for this concert because the bleachers which usually provide seating at the sides of the bandstand will be missing. They have been designated for another event that evening.

The Junior Concert Band recently returned from Salinas where the young musicians again defended their Northern California Title in competition with outstanding bands, both adult and civilian.

In May, the band made its 21st consecutive trip to Las Vegas, Nev., and again marched away with top honors, the Youngtimer's Award in the annual Helldorado Parade.

In the past eight months, the band has performed in three motion pictures: "God Told Me To," featuring Sandy Dennis, due for release soon; "Viva, Knievel!" for Warner Brothers with Evel Knievel, Gene Kelly and Red Buttons; and, just completed for MGM, the $22 million revival of the screen classic "King Kong," which is scheduled for December release.

TUESDAY, the first half of the program will consist of concert selections: "Jazz Gloria" by Natalie Sleeth; "Swing-a-Roo," a polka, by Zane Van Aken; "Hang on Sloopy," a nostalgic piece featuring the Concert Percussionists; "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral," from "Lohengrin" by Wagner; "Born Free," the motion picture theme by John Barry; "Sunshine, Superman," rock-themed selections arranged by Knof; and "Instant Concert," a medly of well-known themes.

During a brief intermission, the stage will be cleared and the entire cast will return for a standing, marching stage spectacular, "Sounds of Freedom."

"THIS WILL BE A RED, white and blue extravaganza," said Marker, "featuring the total band, Pageantry Flag and Shield Corps, the Syncopated Percussionists, mace drum major Jeff Pyka, champion twirler Sherri Agnifili, vocalist Joy Mason, special Bicentennial-themed musical selections, unique lighting effects, colorful hand props, shadow boxes, and a gigantic Liberty Bell Float with a surprise finale action."

James Wilson, Long Beach's vice mayor, will be official guest host, bringing greetings from the City Council to the audience and to the band which is celebrating its 16th year of winning the California State Youth Band Championship.

L.B. Symphony to play in OC

Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Alberto Bolet, will give its first Orange County performance Sept 4 and 5 in Irvine Bowl, Laguna Beach. The occasion will be the 11th annual Ballet Alfresco which will begin each evening at 8:30 p.m.

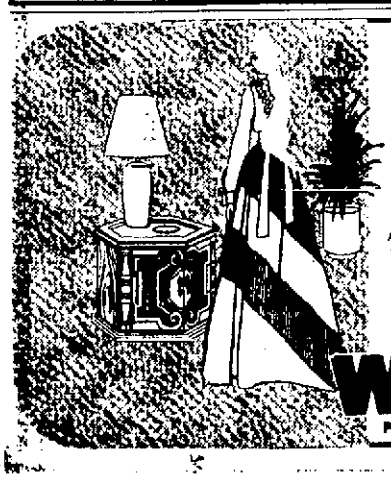
The symphony will open the program with Overture to "Die Fledermaus" by Strauss, "Cavalleria Rusticana" by Mascagni, selections from "My Fair Lady" by Loewe, "Prelude in C-sharp Minor" and "Prelude in G Minor" by Rachmaninoff and "Fire Dance" by de Falla.

Norbert Vesak has composed and will stage a Bicentennial salute, "The Gift to Be Simple." This Irvine Bowl presentation of the work is made possible by a grant to Ballet Pacifica from the National Association for Regional Ballet.

AN INTERNATIONALLY recognized choreographer-director, Vesak, Canadian-born, first was acclaimed for his ballet, "The Ecstasy of Rita Joe" while he was resident choreographer with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet Company.

His television version of that work currently is competing for the prestigious "Wilderness Award" and has been the subject of several documentary programs.

Major work to be performed by Ballet Pacifica will be the wonderful tale of "Aurora's Wedding," which is the third act of Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty" ballet. Lead dancers will be Molly Lynch and David Panaieff.



MANY BALLET Pacifica dancers have gone on to perform with such companies as the Royal Winnipeg, the Frankfurt Opera Ballet and the San Francisco Ballet. A nonprofit organization, Ballet Pacifica receives much of its support from membership subscriptions, private donations and ticket sales. It also receives grants from the Festival of Arts, the City of Laguna Beach and the Irvine Company.

Tickets for the Sept. 4 and 5 programs range in price from $3 to $7. They may be ordered by mail. Make checks payable to Ballet Pacifica and send to Sally Reeve, P.O. Box 241, Laguna Beach, Ca.

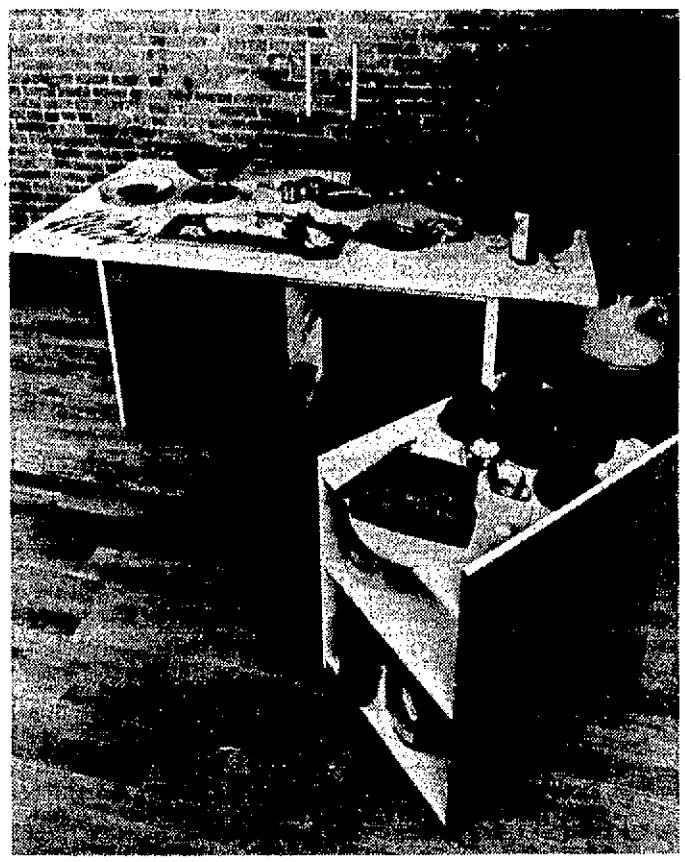
ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Tithes healthy sum

DEAR MR. SMITH: What is the best way to give real property held more than six months for investment purposes to a church? The value is $100,000, compared to a cost of $30,000, which is also the proposed sales price (to the church). What is the tax effect of this kind of sale? Is there a better way? — M.R.

A bargain sale to a charity, such as you outline, results in a $70,000 contribution deduction, and a $21,000 long-term capital gain ($30,000 sales price, less $9,000 tax basis). If you sold the property first and gave the profit (after income tax) to charity, you would have long-term gain of $70,000 and a charitable contribution of a lesser amount. You and the church will be better off with a bargain sale if you can "live" with the 30 per cent limitation deduction of the donation of property (instead of the 50 per cent limitation on cash contributions). Obtain free IRS pamphlet 526 for more on this subject.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I have read the treaty between the United States and Canada regarding investments by citizens of one country in the other, but have not been able to discern the requirement to report income here in the United States. On the death of my father (a Canadian citizen and resident) I received the principal of a savings account which is still in the Canadian Savings institution. As interest accrues it is redeposited and none has been sent to me here. As An American citizen and resident, what are my responsibilities in reporting this interest? —H.L.W.



For federal and state income tax purposes you are required to report the income just the same as though the funds were in a domestic institution. If you can't touch these funds because the estate is still tied up, or for some other legal reason, then you have no taxable income to report. When the restrictions are removed, you will receive the money, if you ask for it, and you will receive a notice from the bank showing how much income is taxable, and how much Canadian Income tax you can claim as a credit on Form 1040.

DEAR MR. SMITH: Some years ago my mother gave me 200 shares of stock worth, at that time, $12 a share. It was given to me under these circumstances: it was payment to me for what I had done for her in the past and would do for her in the future. I have kept track of most everything I have done for her and will continue to do so until her passing. She will be 98 this fall. When the time comes to dispose of this stock, please tell me what route to follow. — C.W.

Considering all the facts and circumstances, you will have to decide whether you received a gift, or true compensation for services, or if, in fact, you consider this your mother's stock until she dies. If you received an outright gift, then your cost will be your mother's tax basis (cost). If you received compensation, your cost is $12 per share. If you consider the stock to be your mother's as long as she lives, then your cost will be the full value of the stock as valued in your mother's estate.

The workshop

This unique dining table-buffet has been designed for convenience. It's a serving table ... a bar ... a storage center. Everything you need for enjoyable entertaining in a single package you can build yourself.

The dining table buffet consists of three units, a drop-leaf table and two rolling carts. When the drop leaf is down, the whole thing takes up a space of only 2' by 6' by 30 ¼". With the leaf up, there's a 39" wide table top and serving space.

Then there's that precious under-the-counter storage space. One cart has three roomy shelves. Both can double as serving units to supplement the main table, or function independently as TV or snack carts. Step-by-step instructions and plenty of drawings make this project a snap for the do-it-yourselfer. Basic woodworking tools, a sabre saw and exterior-grade plywood are all you need to entertain in style.

To obtain plan#)576, Dining Table Buffet, send $1.50 (includes first class postage and handling) by cash, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press Telegram, Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

AT WIT'S END

Mulish about America

ON THE COLORADO RIVER — They were laying bets I'd never get here.

"It's a nine-mile hike from the south rim of the Grand Canyon to the river," said my husband, "on a narrow path lousy with sharp rocks."

"I'll make it."

"The temperature in the canyon this time of year can go to 110 degrees."

"Not to worry."

"The river trip is six days on a rubber raft that crashes into rapids and covers you with water at a temperature of 50 degrees."

"So?"

"So you sleep on an Army cot with no protection from the elements."

"I'll survive."

"You bathe in the Colorado, drink it, and are sometimes nearly drowned in it."

"I'll make it."

"There are no gift shops."

"Are you serious? When do we have to let them know for sure?"

I WAS KIDDING, of course. The river had always been my goal. When my toes turned purple and I cut the holes out of my shoes, the odds went up.

When I ate three Granola bars during the first hour and lapped up every bit of water in my canteen, they shook their heads. When I crawled into a cave with heat exhaustion and told them to go on, they gave me that "told you so" look.

I looked longingly at the Colorado River from the shade in my cave. Designed ... created ... decorated ... by by God. No mirrors. No reason to suck in your stomach. No cause to yell at the kids to turn the lights off. No electrical outlets to plug in Neil Diamond. A culturally deprived oasis with no Golden Arches, no bumper stickers and no reruns. One of the last places in civilization that time and a two-year-old could not destroy.

I SUMMONED UP the only pedestrian prayer I knew from memory: "Please God, send me a mule."

Ten minutes later, a man appeared around the bend dragging six mules with six empty backs.

As the riverboat captain said later, "You're the only person to ever descend into the canyon on foot and end up on her ..."

Some people get testy when they lose a bet.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Scores with chicken dish

ROBERT S. (BOB) BAILEY

We finally caught up with him when he paid a visit to "home base." Today's chef of the week, Robert S. (Bob) Bailey, was born in Long Beach, and plays ball with the world champion Cincinnati Reds.

Bailey says, "My childhood desire was to play on a championship team and be in the World Series. My dad gave me my first glove when I was five, and I played kid baseball when I was nine." That dream just might come true this season. He's in his 15th year as a ball player, having played with the Pittsburg Pirates, Los Angeles Dodgers, and Montreal Expos before joining the Cincinnati Reds this year.

During his years behind the bat, Bailey has been named Player of the Year and Rookie of the Year in mildred flanary

International League in 1962; led National League third baseman in double plays with 38 in 1963, and tied National League Record for the most home runs, bases full, one month, 2, in July, 1973.

Bailey attended Mark Twain and Naples Elementary Schools, and Rogers Junior High, before graduating from Wilson High School in 1961. In fact, his astrological chart must have indicated that 1961 was HIS year. He finished high school and signed with the Pittsburg Pirates in June, and married the former Karen Crozier, also of Long Beach, his junior high school sweetheart in November of that same year. They have two daughters and a son. Caroline is 13, Stephanie, 11, and Robert Jr., called Robbie, is 8.

BAILEY LIKES to have his family with him. They have lived in 45 or 50 different places since their marriage, keeping the family together for spring practice and during the Season. He says, "What a life!"

Bailey enjoys bridge and likes to read books of a historical nature. His mother says, "When he's home, if he isn't watching a game on TV, he can be found on the golf course." We're told that he's as good (almost) on the golf course as he is on the baseball field.

Bailey admits he doesn't like to cook, but loves to eat. Mexican foods, tuna casserole and chocolate pie are among his favorites. We were unable to interview Karen because she is in Cincinnati, but her husband says, "She's an excellent cook, and one of her specialties is Chicken Casserole." They're sharing her recipe today.

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

- ¾ pound grated cheddar cheese
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- 1 can chicken broth
- 1 small can chopped green chilies
- 3 cups boned, cooked chicken
- 8 corn tortillas cut in eighths

Combine ½ of cheese with rest of ingredients, except tortillas. Put ⅓ of the mixture over a layer of tortillas in greased 4 quart pan. Alternate the tortillas and mixture, ending with mixture on top. Sprinkle rest of cheese on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves 8.

FLEA MARKET FINDS

Treasures taxidermy skill

dan d'imperio

"Old taxidermy items are of special interest to me." — Mr. R. M., Salem, N.J.

The ancient craft of taxidermy flourished in America during the late 19th century when animals, birds and fish were preserved by skilled craftsmen. A dedicated taxidermist was regarded as a true nature lover by local townfolk.

These men practiced their craft with an eye toward perfection, and as with other collectible crafts, the finer the woskmanship, the higher the value. Smaller specimens were often protected from the elements, namely dust, by being enclosed under glass. Commercial establishments often display these items as decorative accents. Value guide: deer head, medium size, $65; mounted pike, $45; parrot on perch, $28.

"I've decided to start collecting Buffalo Pottery in the Blue Willow pattern." — Mrs. V. L., Louisville, Ky.

The Buffalo Pottery of Buffalo, N.Y., was established about 1902 in association with the Larkin Soap Mfg. Co. This pottery was distributed as a premium item by the firm, and also sold through regular trade outlets. The backstamp "Buffalo Pottery" often accompanied by a picture of a buffalo and a date provides positive attribution.

Their Blue Willow pieces delight pottery pursuers along with their other dinnerware patterns, including Vienna, Tea Rose, Princess, Queen and Maple Leaf. If collector fascination with Buffalo Pottery Blue Willow ware continues intensifying, it may qualify for placement on collectors' endangered species list. Blue Willow value guide: creamer, $12; gravy boat, $15; plate, 7-inches diameter, $7; teapot, $32.

"What company produced the Grape with Overlapping Foliage pressed glass pattern?" — Helen, Beaver Falls, Pa.

Grape with Overlapping Foliage rates as one of the prized patterns in the grape family of pattern glass. Other notables in this group include Grape Band, Grape & Festoon, Grape & Festoon with Shield and Beaded Grape. Your particular favorite was patented by John H. Hobbs for Hobbs, Brockunier & Co. in 1870. It was marketed in a full range of tableware articles in clear and milk glass. According to the original patent papers, the pattern was described as having a band of vine with leaves, tendrils and fruit closely clustered. The design certainly lived up to its grape expectations. Value guide: butter dish, clear, $25; creamer, milk glass, $33; goblet, clear, $24.

"I'm constantly on the prowl for Lionel trains." — Bill, Freehold, N.Y.

Toy buffs frequently spend their leisure time searching for Lionel trains. Since complete sets are somewhat scarce, even single pieces are tracked down with enthusiasm. The original boxes should be preserved as well as the numerous accessories. Value guide: caboose, No. 517, $28; cattle car, No. 513, standard gauge, $25; gondola, No. 512, $24; Passenger car, No. 35, standard gauge, $18; refrigerator car, No. 514R, standard gauge, $19; train set, freight, No. 385E, six pieces, $565.

ira corn on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:
Is drinking of alcoholic beverages allowed in ACBL tournaments?

Teetotaler, Des Plaines, Ill.

Answer: Yes and no. Certainly those who drink to excess and disrupt the conduct of the game or who cause discomfort for others are quickly asked to leave.

This doesn't mean that the ACBL is against alcohol, it just means that the ACBL attempts to maintain a pleasant environment for all to enjoy. Listen to this solution by director Shirley Nielson at a recent tournament.

The midnight game was divided into two sections, H for Hush and M for Menagerie. The game in H was quiet and serious, but section M reflected the fact that most players had been visitors to the hospitality room before the game.

Dear Mr. Corn:
One of our players insists that only the opening bidder can preempt and that after an opening bid has been made, no other player can preempt. Is this correct?

Doubting Thomas, Indianapolis

Answer: No, it is not. A player may make any sufficient bid he chooses whenever it is his turn to bid. Obviously your friend does not like to be interfered with when he opens the bidding.

Dear Mr. Corn:
A lady we play with says one doesn't have to open a 14 point hand unless you are the first bidder (dealer). I have always thought that a 14 point hand was a mandatory opening. What do you say?

Changing Times, Hurst, Tex.

Answer: I say that you have a mixup regarding laws and system. If a player has agreed to play a standard system, he should open a 14 point hand. However, this is a matter of system agreement and not a matter of law.

There is no prescribed penalty for passing any hand and if one passes a 14 pointer, he is only guilty of a violation of system agreement with his partner. Aside from the possibility of losing a few partners, this is not a punishable offense.

Dear Mr. Corn:
I opened three clubs. My partner bid three hearts. My right hand opponent doubled and I passed, holding two little hearts. Partner claims I was forced to bid. I say the double kept the bidding open and I was relieved of the force. Who's right?

Forcing Force, San Francisco

Answer: You are. The double keeps the bidding open and unless there was something very unusual about my initial preempt, I would pass just as you did.

Dear Mr. Corn:
I opened two clubs, a game demand. My partner bid two diamonds and I raised. We got in trouble because I thought she had something she didn't. Isn't two no-trump still the negative response to a forcing two bid?

Down Plenty, River Rouge, Mich.

Answer: Playing standard strong two bids, two no-trump is the negative response. Those who play weak two bids use two clubs as an all purpose force.

In this system, two diamonds is the negative response. Perhaps your partnership got involved in a system mixup whose only cure is peaceful discussion and agreement regarding the meanings of bids.

THE FORMULA

Soothing help for aching feet

It has been said that bread is the staff of life. But this is not entirely true. I vote for oxygen. Without it wheat couldn't grow to make the bread, and we wouldn't be around to eat it. In short, oxygen is absolutely essential to life.

Here's a formula that releases oxygen to soothe tired feet. Try it and I think you'll find it beneficial, as I have.

You'll need one tablespoon SODIUM THIOSULFATE (found at photographic supply stores), one tablespoon SODIUM PERBORATE, six tablespoons SODIUM BORATE and three-fourths cup SODIUM BICARBONATE (these last three ingredients can be found at drug stores).

norman stark

Dry-mix these ingredients together and store in plastic or glass containers. To use, mix two tablespoons in two quarts of warm water for a foot bath. The released bubbling action makes for a soothing and relaxing experience.

Besides the satisfaction you get by making your own products for personal or home care, most formulas are real money-savers that enable you to beat the prices of store-bought items.

(Like any chemical product you use at home, you should store this one safely, label it — listing ingredients and noting any cautions — and keep it out of reach of children.)

There has never been a how-to book so practical and helpful as The Formula Book. Hundreds of easy recipes put savings and fun into the making of your own personal and home care items. Over 200 pages of recipes, diagrams and instructions on ingredients and equipment, in a large paperback format, for only $5.95. Send to The Formula Book, Independent Press Telegram, P. O. Box 2218, Shawnee Mission, Kan. 66201.)

BILL THOMPSON
Definitely not an ordinary restaurant

IT'S NOT EASY to put into words. But I can assure you there is something about Kelly's that sets it apart from ordinary restaurants.

I've mentioned many times that the food at Kelly's is superlative. I've mentioned that the waiter service is outstanding and friendly. But the restaurant also has something else that makes it great. What shall we call it? Confidence? Yes, that's appropriate. Kelly's is a restaurant which has great self-confidence because it knows that its food and service consistently meet its high standards.

But there are other intangibles which help enhance Kelly's reputation. Night after night it attracts great numbers of people who are extremely knowledgeable about the best food and the best drinks. Early in the evening, Kelly's mood may be on the quiet side. But as more and more people arrive, the mood changes. Before long it develops a lively party atmosphere. The conversations range from amusing to brilliant, from economics to religion, from politics to sports, with the emphasis often on horse racing, because one of Kelly's owners is Millie Vessels, president of Los Alamitos Race Course.

The other owner is Bill Thompson whose elegant mustache is another of Kelly's conversation-pieces. Bill, cosmopolitan and soft-spoken, is the man who deserves most of the credit for Kelly's success. He assembled its staff of talented chefs, waiters and bartenders and he helps keep them all working together harmoniously.

Kelly's (spelled with a backward K, just to be different) is at 5716 E. Second St. in the quiet Long Beach suburb of Naples. It is open for dinner and cocktails daily and Sundays starting at 4 p.m. and is closed Mondays. Most restaurants feel fortunate if they have one top-notch chef. Kelly's is doubly fortunate because it has a pair of top-notch chefs who have been turning out artistic creations together for many years. They are Frank Rossi and Milena Hladikova.

The dinners at Kelly's are from $4.50 to over $7.50. They are multiple-course affairs which enable the guests to sample the many accomplishments of Milena and Frank. Included are relish tray, heavenly soup, salad with gourmet dressing, potatoes, warm bread and beverage. The steaks are works of art — the finest aged, marbled quality. So is the prime rib au jus.

Other entrees range from wondrous seafoods to old-fashioned Irish stew or corned beef with cabbage, sauteed calves sweetbreads and such continental entrees as piatto romano Rossi or madaglione di Napoli, which are beef creations with glorious wine sauces. After dinner, be sure to enjoy Kelly's celebrated Irish coffee.

A WEALTHY CUSTOMER once walked up to restaurateur Mehmet Gunsay and made an astonishing statement.

"I wish," he said, "that you'd RAISE some of your prices. Then when I bring my rich friends here I can impress them with what a fine restaurant this is, really wonderful —"

That customer wasn't joking. Mehmet, also known as Frenchy, is owner of the French Riviera on South Street at Paramount Boulevard. For years it has featured the most wonderful luncheons and dinners at prices much lower than other restaurants of comparable quality. The dinners include course after course of the most delectable food, such as tureen of steaming soup for second helpings, salad with superb dressing, a loaf of hot French bread presented on a board, potatoes or rice pilaf and deep-fried fresh zucchini.

Recently, because of inflation, Mehmet and his partner, Orson Kapri, were forced — very reluctantly — to raise their prices slightly. The increases are so modest, about 20 to 30 cents, that the French Riviera's customers aren't a bit perturbed. They know its luncheons and dinners are still astounding values. They also know that the food is always fresh and very, very good. Furthermore, some of the entrees — such as the sweetbreads a la Parisienne, frog legs provencale or beef Stroganoff — are as imaginative and delightful as the cuisine at the best continental establishments.

Would you believe that you can still enjoy the most delicious pan-fried whitefish at the French Riviera for merely $2.75? Let's repeat that price so there can be no mistake about it — two dollars and seventy-five cents. Is it a cutdown dinner? Certainly not. You receive the same tureen of soup, the salad, rice pilaf, loaf of hot bread and zucchini.

Other delights at the French Riviera include filet of sole Marguery with a smooth creamy sherry sauce, $3.25; veal Monterey with avocado, $3.25; roast prime rib au jus, $3.75, and a small filet mignon, $3.45. The Stroganoff is $3.25, the French country-style sweetbreads are $3.50 and the frog legs are $3.95.

The French Riviera's cocktails are large, very good and inexpensive. So are the house wines, served in carafes. The luncheons include handsome hot sandwiches with soup AND salad for less than $2. Luncheon starts daily at 11:30 a.m. Dinner is served daily and Sunday starting at 2 p.m., Saturdays at 4. Because the F.R. is such a fine restaurant, its patrons cheerfully observe its unusual house rule: children under age 5 aren't admitted.

Where legends are born

By HERB SHANNON
IPT Travel Editor

KAUAI, Hawaii - Royalty never had it so good in the old days. The Polynesian explorers who started Hawaiian history by picking this lush island as their new kingdom may have used giant clam shells for wash basins, but they didn't have them in every room.

There also wasn't any welcome to compare with the drum-beating, conch-blowing fanfare awaiting guests today at Coco Palms, the flagship and foundation hotel of the Island Holidays resort chain. There was a royal fish pond on the site when Queen Kapule lived here in the early 19th century, but you can bet eight coconuts to five her sundown torch-lighting ceremony was nothing like the present-day pyrotechnic display around the lagoon.

The torch ceremonial has been copied in every hotel lanai in Hawaii, but none comes up to the Coco Palms ritual. Drums beat a solemn prelude, full-scale oracle towers on the grounds sound off with a hushed narration of the legend which inspired the nightly event, and the lighting of literally hundreds of torches is launched by canoe and runners on both sides of the reflecting pool.

THIS POLYNESIAN pageantry is the creation of the current reigning monarch, Mrs. Grace Buscher Guslander, who became hipped on Hawaiiana when she arrived as general manager of Coco Palms in 1953.

Princess Grace has been elaborating, improving and occasionally inventing appropriate legends and customs ever since. The narration for the torch ceremony is her own.

When Mrs. Guslander started the gracious treatment, Coco Palms had 24 rooms, the lagoon, a coconut grove, a reception hall in a former private residence and a total of two guests, outnumbered two to one by the employes.

Grace still knows the names of that first couple and remembers their faces, as she does most of the visitors who have come since. Her memory is not the least of the legends she has inspired.

Today the hotel has 432 housing units, including a 96-room addition completed this year, thatched bungalows, honeymoon pavilions, sumptuous suites, a library and museum, a grass shack chapel left by one of the many film companies which have used Coco Palms as the setting for South Seas movies, tennis courts, a recreation center, a small zoo and aviary and a spacious Polynesian-style reception hall with a floor of solid coral blocks, the only one of its kind in the world.

GUESTS ENTER the peak-roofed building past two kahili royal standards, flanked by a drummer working over an exact replica of King Kamehameha's ritual instrument in the Bishop Museum in Honolulu and a conch-tooting native bugler. The regal effect transforms the most casual tourist.

Typical of the luxury touches installed in the new wing, along with the signature clamshell basins which now cost up to $600 each, depending on the difficulty of locating the vanishing species, is the matching of bath tile and drapery materials. First deciding on a theme for the separate structure, Grace commissioned the curator of the hotel museum to compose an original legend.

As written by Mele Ana Manokalanipo Soong, the new legend is woven around a lovelorn prince and princess who reversed the usual fairy-tale metamorphosis to become frogs living happily ever after in Coco Palms lagoon. Delighted with the result, Grace began a search for artisans to complete the frog and lilypad motif.

For the tile design, which also became the pattern for fabrics in each room, Mrs. Guslander chose famed Southland ceramist Edward Carson Beall of Malaga Cove, Palos Verdes Estates.

Because of Mrs. Guslander's creative approach and continuing personal interest, Coco Palms tends to overshadow other Island Holidays resorts on Kauai, if not the other islands as well.

ON THE ADJACENT shoreline is the Kauai Beachboy Hotel, a 250-room complex designed for family fun on a budget, and two more of still different appeal are located on Poipu Beach, on the south shore of Kauai.

Waiohai, a two-story cottage cluster set in a garden atmosphere, and Poipu Beach Hotel share twin crescent beaches which are among the finest in Hawaii. The southern exposure and trade winds make for ideal surfing conditions just west of the reef sheltering the swimming beaches.

All of the Kauai Island Holiday resorts are a short drive or bus ride from the airport at Lihue, where Aloha Airlines Funjets make 20-minute connections with Western Airlines' mainland flights at Honolulu.

Credit for Island Holidays' success story is generally given to the manager of Coco Palms. Lyle L. "Gus" Guslander, executive vice president of Amfac Co., to which he sold the hotel in 1969, was first to admit it. He married her the same year.

Luau integral part of Hawaiiana

WAIKIKI BEACH — The traditional Hawaiian feast for special occasions and celebrations is called a "luau" and always includes entertainment and an abundance of food and drink and merrymaking.

Special occasions can include birthdays, anniversaries, weddings, promotions, or, any time that Hawaiians feel life has gotten dull.

Hotel or tour luaus for the visitor are deftly patterned after local parties except for a "professional" show rather than talented performing members of the family.

At any luau, visitors are expected to let go their inhibitions, sing songs and swing hips with the performers.

AND ALL Hawaiians eagerly await a guest's reaction to the first taste of poi, that thickly viscous, slightly purplish, almost tasteless starch that is the staff of life to Polynesians. Like love and dancing the hula, it isn't half bad the second time around.

All major luaus are large and that's part of the Fun. Hawaiians feel no one should ever be lonely.

Typical is the colorful new luau hosted nightly, except Saturday, by Al Harrington (Ben Kokua of television's Hawaii 5-0) and a group of island entertainers in the Ala Moana Hotel's "turn of the century" Garden Lanai.

A Americanized version of the Hawaiian luau menu retains all the romance of the Polynesian feast, including the kalua pua'a (a whole pig roasted to a turn with Hawaiian sea salt in an underground oven and the best accompaniment for poi).

AN ALOHA lei and an icy Mai Tai with its piquant blend of fruit juices, rum and instant friendship, starts the evening at 7 with dinner at 7:30 and show at 8:30 p.m.

Both new and familiar songs fill the evening as singers and dancers interpret the Pacific to the rhythms of contemporary Hawaii. Old and new jokes turn on the sly misinterpretation of Hawaiian words and customs.

The audience sends its best men and women to try their version of the Hawaiian hula (keep your eyes on the hands) or the Tahitian tamure (just try to keep your eyes off the hips).

High-rises coming to Maui beaches

Maui, Hawaii

"Waikiki has gone high-rise. There's no way of saving it now. But we aren't going to make the same mistake on Maui." A hotel man told me that 10 years ago.

(He said: "For heaven's sake don't say I said that — about Waikiki being gone.")

Now it looks like the beaches each way from Kaanapali — some of the best in the sugar islands— are going to be blocked off by high-rise condominiums.

Old guard Hawaii vacationers — who fled Waikiki and the smoggy cars on Kalakaua Avenue — are shook up by the building boom along the Maui beaches.

FORTUNATELY it's going to take some time. The beaches are longer. I'd guess 10 times the beach area of Waikiki. Maybe more.

It's estimated eight out of ten condominium owners come over a month and rent them out the rest of the time.

Plenty of takers in the prime seasons of holidays: Summer, Christmas, Easter. You need reservations well in advance.

Average price for a beach flat with two bedrooms: $350 a week.

Western Air and United have tie-ups with rental agencies.

Renting rooms in Hawaii, ask whether the room is makai (toward the sea) or mauka (toward the mountains).

On Waikiki you want the sea side for the breeze. But on Maui at Kaanapali, the wind comes over the mountains.

"How do we go about tipping ashore and aboard a ship stopping in Suva, Fiji?"

If you're on one of the P and O (British) ships, you tip lightly. Most of the passengers will be Australian.

Aussies are an independent bunch and don't see any point in spoiling the help.

Since Australia also sends most of the tourists to Fiji, figure tipping the same way. And I'd say that's half what you tip in the U.S.

On a U.S. ship, you might tip the room steward $3 a day per couple. Same to the table steward.

Wine steward a couple of dollars a week. And bar stewards a dollar for a table of cocktails.

Half that and you'd be OK for a ship full of Australians. New Zealanders tip even less. Sometimes not at all.

"Why tip the waiter?" a New Zealander told me. "Nobody tips you, do they?"

IN TAHITI and other French Polynesian islands, there's a big sign at the airport: "NO TIPPING IN TAHITI." And that's the custom.

A lot of American tourists getting off the plane can't read the big print. Or else they've been brain-washed. They tip the island boys who hustle the baggage.

And believe me, the boys at the airport will take it. (But they won't shoot you if you don't tip either.)

Resorts expand on Valley Isle

As Hawaii has evolved into one of the world's premier vacation destinations, the island of Maui has acquired a special cachet.

While Waikiki and Oahu remain the principal center of Hawaiian tourism, Maui is increasingly popular with repeat visitors and newcomers seeking quieter, less urban surroundings.

Over the last decade, Maui's resort development has flourished along the island's westernmost shore near the historic whaling center of Lahaina — in popular Kaanapali, nearby Napili and Kahana.

More recently, however, there has been a move to the south and east — to the lee coast between Kihei and Makena. It is here that Wailea, Hawaii's newest major integrated resort community has come to life after six years of planning and $30,000,000 of preparation work.

IN JANUARY, Wailea greeted its first visitors with the opening of the first of two luxury hotels presently planned for the area. The 558-room Hotel Inter-Continental Maui is already being compared with the state's finest hotels.

This month, ground was broken for the second hotel, the 347-room Wailea Beach Hotel, being built by Grosvenor International Hotels and is scheduled to open in early 1978.

The Inter-Continental is the first domestic resort hotel ever to be operated by Intercontinental Hotels Corporation (a subsidiary of Pan American World Airways) which operates 73 hotels around the world.

The Wailea Beach hotel will be the first Hawaiian neighbor island hotel for Western International, a subsidiary of UAL, Inc., also parent company of United Airlines. Western International operates more than 50 hotels in the U.S. and 13 foreign countries, including the Ilikai in Honolulu.

Three times the size of the Waikiki area and more than twice the present size of popular nearby Kaanapali, Wailea is emerging as a distinctly different kind of resort environment. The hotels will blend discreetly with private fairway homes and condominium villages in a low density, low profile garden community.

CONDOMINIUM owners are gradually occupying the first of two condominium villages now under way. Some 344 apartments are presently under construction.

The tennis club, Hawaii's largest with 11 hillside courts so far, including a 1,500-seat tournament court, is fully operational, offering tennis in unequalled scenic surroundings.

The four-year-old championship Wailea golf course already ranks as one of the top two or three in Hawaii with visitors and residents alike. Its views are unmatched, and it can forgive imperfection in play.

Until this year Wailea was a beautiful prospect, or a busy construction zone, depending on your viewpoint, with golf and tennis brilliant realities. What has brought the community to life is the new Hotel Inter-Continental Maui.

LOCATED on a low, rocky headland flanked by two of Wailea's five distinctive beaches, the hotel fits its rambling construction naturally to its terrain, without imposing concrete ramparts on neighboring vistas.

Almost every room has an ocean view — some backed by the cloud-topped West Maui Mountains, others of the neighboring islands of Kahoolawe and Molokini across the channel.

The Wailea Beach hotel, which will front on crescent Mokapu Beach, is also destined to take maximum advantage of Wailea's exceptional views.

The 321 guest rooms in the three contiguous wings of the main building will afford mountain and ocean views from several angles. Twenty-six additional guest rooms will be located in a two-story beachfront structure.

Health kick distressing to parents

DEAR ABBY: We have two sons, both in college, for which we're very thankful because they both dropped out and decided to go back. Both are working part-time, but they prefer to live at home.

The problem is that they are on a "health" kick, and they look like they are ready to drop dead from malnutrition. They won't touch meat or fat of any kind. And no dairy products unless they are positively fat-free. The boys live on fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, nuts, rice and wheat germ.

I suppose we should thank God they're not into drugs, (they won't even touch cigarettes), but how we would love to see them eating like normal human beings again to get a little meat on their bones.

Can you help us? — DISTRAUT PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Maybe you need help to understand that your sons don't need the kind of "help" you'd like to give them. Count your blessings while they count their vitamins. Considering what some parents have gone through in recent years, you're among the lucky ones.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who would start having an affair with her former son-in-law? And immediately after her daughter's divorce?

Well, that's what my mother did. And she's the one who kept telling me that he was no good and that I should leave him.

Abby, I divorced my husband because he abused our children and beat me up so brutally that I had to be hospitalized. My mother knew all this, yet she couldn't wait until he was out of our house before she started dating him.

My mother is 42 and divorced, and my husband is 32. I can't imagine these two together but I've heard it from about a dozen people already. I just can't accept it, and I have told her so. She insists they are just "friends," but people have seen his car in front of her apartment all night and on weekends.

What do you think about a setup like this? — HURT AND ANGRY

DEAR HURT: They could deserve each other.

DEAR ABBY: I was 11 years old when my parents decided to get a divorce. I felt terrible about it and cried and begged them not to, but they wouldn't listen.

Then my dad moved out and my mom and I stayed alone in the house. I got used to the idea, and it really wasn't so bad because Mom and I got closer. Then one night my dad came over and they talked nearly all night long and he stayed over night. My Mom even let Dad kiss her!

Now they say they are going to try to make a go of their marriage. I'm jealous. How come?

I should be glad they aren't splitting up, but I'm not. I'm upset. What is wrong with me? — JEALOUS AND UPSET

DEAR JEALOUS AND UPSET: Nothing. You enjoyed having your mom all to yourself, and now that you have to share her with your dad again, you're jealous and upset.

These reactions are normal, so don't feel guilty. Look at it this way: If they do make a go of their marriage, it could be better for everybody.

Meet Pierre and Barbara . . .

Each produced in excess of $1,000,000 in sales at BUD WOODEN & ASSOC in their first 90 days — and neither had previous apartment sales experience. Are you ready for a change? Experienced or newly licensed? Working hard but not earning what you think you're worth? If that describes you, come in and let us show you an honest to goodness opportunity. You'll begin your career here, with 2 weeks of all day seminars so you will start out with knowledge and confidence. Thereafter we have periodic seminars, dozens of textbooks, taped cassettes and helpful managers in every office. We want you to succeed — and you will succeed here if you genuinely want great monetary rewards and will work hard to obtain them. Why not go by any of our 4 offices for a visit or call:

RANCHO LOS CERRITOS
BOARD OF REALTORS

Realtor of the week

PATRICK NEYLAN

Patrick arrived in California from Iowa as a youngster in 1941. His folks, like many others from Iowa, came to Southern California, and in 1950, they settled in Lakewood. He attended college in Fullerton after graduation from St. Anthony's High School. Today, he still resides in Lakewood with his wife, Linda, and their two children.

While growing up in Lakewood, Patrick was the first Independent newspaper boy in the area, and did a fine job of increasing new subscriptions. An example of his salesmanship: before leaving the train station on a contest trip he won to Yosemite for subscription sales, he sold one more last subscription — up from the locomotive to the train's engineer! This was just one of many indications of the bright future ahead for the young man.

His career in real estate began in 1960, when he was a salesman with the firm of W.R. Woods Co. Later in 1964, he joined his father's firm of Campbell & Neylan; upon his father's passing, he began his own company and results have been dramatic. In 1969, he was elected director, Rancho Los Cerritos Board of Realtors; in 1973, he served as board president; and last year he was Realtor of the Year. He has been elected director of the California Association of Realtors three times and served on numerous committees. Patrick is an accomplished speaker, lecturer instructor for the Graduate Realtor Institute. In 1967 he began Neylan Realty Co. as a one man proprietorship, he soon expanded with branch offices and established escrow and training departments. He combined his two medium size offices into a large regional facility, and in 1974 the main office moved from Bellflower to the city of Cerritos. Located on the corner of Freeway 91 and Carmenita Road, it represents the epitome of the highest professional image. Patrick's key to success if "First, become involved, and then treat others as you would have them treat you." Dedicated to education, integrity, and service, he believes the biggest sales is yet to be made and the largest building is yet to be built.

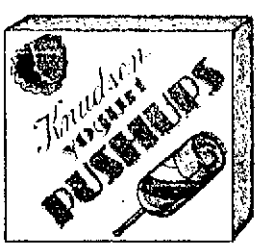
New! Yogurty goodness, ice creamy taste!

Knudsen frozen yogurt sundaes & pushups.

Knudsen freezes the goodness of yogurt into thick, fruity sundaes and pushups kids love. The texture is smoother and silkier than ice cream, the fresh fruit flavors more tangy and satisfying. Strawberry, raspberry, orange, pineapple, and lemon chiffon. They taste so rich, it's hard to believe they're 98% fat free. Sure beats junk food.



Pick up a box of Knudsen Frozen Yogurt sundaes or pushups today. A whole new taste. Now in your grocer's ice cream section.

Q. How many Secret Service agents guard Lady Bird Johnson and Jackie Kennedy Onassis? I notice that Mrs. Johnson on a recent trip to Italy took four Secret Service agents with her. How much does such protection cost the U.S. taxpayer annually?—T.Y.O., Houston, Tex.

A. The federal government accords Lady Bird Johnson Secret Service protection until her death or remarriage. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis no longer receives Secret Service protection. The Treasury Department declines to reveal the cost of safeguarding Mrs. Johnson or the number of agents it uses to protect her around the clock. Conservatively it would be a minimum of four, and depending upon her travels, the cost would range annually from $500,000 to $1 million.

LADY BIRD JOHNSON WITH SECRET SERVICE PROTECTION—NOTE AGENT AT REAR.

Q. Why are the Chinese in Peking against détente between the Soviet Union and the West?—Martin Larson, Tucson, Ariz.

A. The Chinese do not want the Soviets to reduce their forces in Europe and increase them in Asia. The Soviets have already positioned more than one million soldiers along the Sino-Siberian border, and the Chinese are fearful of an invasion. The Chinese keep warning us about the dangers of détente with the Soviets because it serves their own policy.

Q. What is the real name of David Bowie, the English rock singer, and is he gay?—P. Richards, Mineola, N.Y.

A. David Bowie, 30, who dyes his hair orange and wears makeup, is reportedly bisexual. His real name is David Jones; he's married and has a son born in 1971.

Q. There is a new young black playwright who calls herself Ntozake Shange. How do you pronounce that name, and what can you tell us about her?—Oleander Sharbutt, Chicago.

NTOZAKE SHANGE

A. Ntozake Shange (pronounced en-toe-zah-kee shan-gay) was born Paulette Williams on Oct. 18, 1948, in Trenton, N.J. Her father, Dr. Paul Williams of Trenton, is a surgeon. Her mother, Eloise, is a psychiatric social worker. Paulette was graduated from Barnard College in New York, received her master's degree from the University of Southern California. She is the author of a successful first play, "For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide/When the Rainbow Is Enuf." It is largely autobiographical. Miss Shange attempted suicide at 19 after marrying a lawyer, subsequently became a poet-playwright. She is working on a second play, long-windedly entitled "A Photograph: A Still Life With Shadows/A Photograph: A Study of Cruelty."

Q. Is there anything serious between football star Joe Namath and Ingrid Bergman's twin daughter Isabella Rossellini?—Laura Engels, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Joe is 33, Isabella is 24. They met in Rome a few months ago, were mutually attracted and began making the Roman rounds together. Joe, however, is a man who throws fast passes which Isabella is unaccustomed to catching. Recently she made her debut as a nun in "A Matter of Time," a film in which her mother co-starred with Liza Minnelli.

JOE NAMATH

ISABELLA ROSSELLINI

Q. James Farley, that grand old Democratic politician who died earlier this year, was board chairman and a major stockholder in Coca-Cola Export. What was the value of his large estate?—N. T., Rockland, N. Y.

A. It was a surprisingly small estate he left. It was valued at less than $200,000. The former Postmaster General and close buddy of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt left most of it to his son, James Jr., and two daughters, Elizabeth Montgomery and Ann Hickey.

Q. Vanessa Redgrave had a love child with Italian actor Franco Nero. Is that statement true?—Henrietta Webb, St. Louis.

A. It's true. Franco Nero, 35, is the father of Carlo, 6. Vanessa Redgrave and Nero met when he played Sir Lancelot to her Guinevere in the film "Camelot." Their love affair broke up in 1971, Vanessa retaining custody of the child.

WHEN THEY WERE TOGETHER: VANESSA REDGRAVE AND FRANCO NERO WITH SON CARLO

Q. Louise Lasser, star of the TV show "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman"—who was recently picked up on a cocaine charge—is her father J.K. Lasser, the tax expert, or S. Jay Lasser, the tax expert?—Louise Cohen, Los Angeles.

A. Louise Lasser's father is S. Jay Lasser, a certified public accountant and the author of an annual income tax guide. He is frequently confused with the other tax expert, J.K. Lasser, who died in 1954. Louise Lasser's father is very much alive at this writing.

Q. Why did actor Tony Perkins and his wife, Berry Berenson, name their second son Elvis? Was Berry Berenson ever in love with Elvis Presley? — Dana Everett, Memphis, Tenn.

A. Berry Berenson was never in love with Elvis Presley. She and Tony Perkins named their son Elvis because they like the name and it means "fair of face," which they claim their baby is.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

by LLOYD SHEARER

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

CONFESSION "Most of us are not telling the public that there is relatively little the police can do about crime. We are not letting the public in on our era's dirty little secret: that those who commit the crime which worries citizens most--violent street crime --are, for the most part, the products of poverty, unemployment, broken homes, rotten education, drug addiction and alcoholism, and other social and economic ills about which the police can do little, if anything.

"Rather than speaking up, most of us stand silent and let politicians get away with law and order rhetoric that reinforces the mistaken notion that police--in ever greater numbers and with more gadgetry--can alone control crime. The politicians, of course, end up perpetuating a system by which the rich get richer, the poor get poorer, and crime continues."

—Robert J. Di Grazia, Boston Police Commissioner

POLLEN ALLERGY Do you have a nagging summer cold which seems to hang on indefinitely? If it hangs on longer than a week, consult a doctor. You may have no cold at all. You may in fact be one of the more than 14 million Americans who are allergic to some type of pollen.

A few of the symptoms of pollen allergy are a runny or stuffy nose, itchy eyes, sneezing, or conjunctivitis.

There are three standard methods of treating a diagnosed pollen allergy: (1) avoid the allergen by travel, (2) medications or (3) allergy shots.

If you can't avoid the allergens by travel or remaining in an air-filtered area, antihistamines will control such symptoms as sneezing, nasal discharge and itching in the nose and throat.

If you have any questions about pollen allergy, it may pay you to invest 40 cents in a booklet which contains most of the answers. It's published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It's entitled "Pollen Allergy" and can be ordered from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 33, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

OIL MONEY AGAIN Kuwait, the fabulously rich Middle Eastern oil producer, which more than a year ago bought 14% of Daimler-Benz, manufacturer of Mercedes autos and trucks, has quietly bought into the West German banking system.

Kuwait has purchased 35% of Johannes Schuback and Sons of Hamburg, which is the largest regional bank in northern Germany.

Management of the bank remains unchanged because Kuwait, as in the case of Mercedes, "renounced from the very beginning any voice in management."

NEW FILM MONSTER Were you frightened by the motion picture "Jaws"? Wait until you see what the Australians have come up with.

It's a 20-foot crocodile that eats seven people, demolishes houses, and accepts an Aboriginal girl as a human sacrifice.

The crocodile is the brainchild of producer-director Terry Bourke. He describes it as "a transistorized mechanical marvel which can swim, walk, run, dive and devour anything." Moreover, he adds, "it has the advantage of locomotion on land as well as in water, which means escape from it becomes even more difficult."

The film, "Crocodile," will get underway next summer, and Bourke hopes to land James Mason, Burt Lancaster, and Diane Cilento for the leading roles.

The mechanisms for the crocodile are being manufactured in Japan.

THE PLIGHT OF SENIOR CITIZENS Even though two-thirds of every federal dollar spent on health care last year went to America's 22 million senior citizens, they remain a troubled lot.

Last month Dr. Robert N. Butler, the new director of the National Institution on Aging, detailed the sorry state of senior citizens in the U.S.:

--One-third of all older Americans are below or hover above the poverty line.

--The average single senior citizen has approximately $75 a week on which to live.

--25% of all suicides in the U.S. are committed by people over 65.

--We now have more Americans in nursing homes than in hospitals. In our 23,000 nursing homes we have 1.2 million people. One-half of all nursing homes can't pass basic fire safety inspections.

LESLEY-ANN DOWN

Maud Adams, a Swedish actress, declined to act in a nude bedroom scene with Peter Sellers, who plays the bumbling police inspector, Jacques Clouseau, in "The Pink Panther Strikes Again."

Lesley-Ann said she would be only too happy to play the female lead including the nude bedroom scene. Now that she has, she says, "I simply don't understand why Maud dropped out. It was really a big fuss about nothing. I take my clothes off, but the audience just sees a silhouette of me--nothing more."

NAUSEA CURE Almost one out of every two pregnant women suffers from nausea at some time during her 40 weeks. Now pregnant women can be helped, says Dr. H. Gant of Innsbruck University's Women's Clinic in Austria.

Dr. Gant researched pregnant women suffering from nausea and discovered that all were deficient in vitamin B-6. After treating them with large doses of the vitamin--200 milligrams for seven days and five milligrams per day thereafter--he found that the nausea disappeared.

DRIVING ABROAD American tourists driving in Europe this summer should beware of traffic violations. European police rarely let anyone go just because he is a foreigner. In Italy, if you drive while drunk, you can be fined $108, sentenced to six months in jail.

In Denmark, drunk driving costs a month's salary. In Switzerland you can be fined a whopping $16,000 for the same offense. Drive in Denmark without hitching up your seat belt, and the fine is $22. In Switzerland it's $8.

NO INSURANCE DOCTORS A poll of physicians by the American Medical Association reveals that one out of eight respondents said he or she was currently practicing without malpractice insurance.

In some states insurance premiums have become so high--$30,000 and up per year--that doctors find they have no alternative but to drop such insurance.

The malpractice crisis is particularly severe in the Pacific states, where 51% of the physicians are in favor of letting their insurance lapse compared to about 30% of physicians in other states.

About 25% of the doctors in the Pacific and Mountain states report that they have been sued for malpractice in the last three years.

BLOND WOMAN PASSENGER EXERCISES IN HER SEAT

EXERCISE ON PLANE Lufthansa Airlines has taken a tip from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on what to do for people who are confined to their seats for long periods of time.

Passengers on all Lufthansa 747 and DC-10 planes can now take part in a 45-minute exercise program without leaving their seats. The airline has put together a session of isometric exercises combined with soothing music on one of its entertainment headset channels. The program is available in English and German, and a headset rents for $2.50.

SEX AND BRAINS Prof. Gwynne Jones of Leeds University (England) says in his book "Psycho-Sexual Problems" that one out of four wives is likely to engage in extramarital sex.

"Women are now recipients," he explains, "of a great deal of propaganda about how sexy they are. And Women's Lib is beginning to make women feel guilty about being housewives. As a result women are now going out and making new contacts."

Professor Jones says that even wives who remain faithful are posing problems for their husbands, in many cases increasing their demands for sexual experience and enjoyment.

Like other authorities on the subject, Jones believes that the more educated a woman is, the more sexy she is likely to become, understanding better the great role sex can play.

U.N. SALARIES IN SWITZERLAND If you want a well-paying job, try to become one of the 10,000 international employees of the United Nations in Geneva.

A still-secret report reveals that a messenger who wheels a cart stacked with interoffice mail is paid $413 a week.

Other examples of salaries paid at U.N. headquarters in Geneva are $350 a week for a copy typist; $1000 a week for a top executive; $555 a week for a mid-echelon member of management.

"Never," says one U.N. ambassador, "have so many done so little for so much."

SPY-SHIP WOMAN Several months ago, Lyudmilla Martemyanova, 35, a Russian marine biologist and oceanographer, jumped ship at Plymouth, England, asked British authorities for political asylum.

It was granted, and now apparently Lyudmilla is talking--about the large fleets of Soviet spy trawlers which cruise the Atlantic and Pacific. Lyudmilla, a former instructor at Leningrad University, told of what went on aboard the Argus, the survey ship from which she defected. British intelligence authorities consider her defection a lucky coup.

CRAZY ABOUT THE SUN?

Me, too. And I don't intend to miss a single day on the beach.

That's my number one reason for choosing Tampax tampons when I'm having my menstrual period.

They're worn internally. So there's nothing to get in your way. And nothing to show or feel bulky. Even in a bikini.

Sun...fun...and Tampax tampons. A combination that really works.

The internal protection more women trust

Nancy Rosner (on today's cover) counsels a client. She enjoys arguing cases in court and asserts that being a woman has not held her back as a trial attorney. "I communicate that I'm all business and know what I'm doing."

Female prosecutors like Pat Hynes (also on today's cover) are becoming more common. She's one of 116 women in practice as Assistant U.S. Attorneys. But five years ago, only 43 women held federal jobs equivalent to hers.

Women Lawyers Are Getting Their Day in Court

by Pam Proctor

Do women have what it takes to be top trial lawyers?

Texan Percy Foreman, who defended James Earl Ray in the Martin Luther King Jr. murder trial, is skeptical. "It takes more guts than brains to become a good trial lawyer," he says. "Little boys learn to fight and by the time they're grown it's in the temperament. Women play with dolls and they cultivate the tenderness that doesn't go at all with courtroom battles."

But famed personal injury lawyer Melvin Belli says, "There are no women trial lawyers who stand out like top male trial lawyers, because litigants haven't had them handle the big cases yet." He adds, "I've seen some women trial lawyers every bit the equal of men."

In the past few years, increasing numbers of female lawyers have been opting for careers as prosecutors and defense attorneys. One reason is simply that there are more women lawyers than ever before. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, approximately 7 percent of the country's 374,000 practicing lawyers are women, and their number is growing fast. In 1965, there were only 2537 women in law school, or 4 percent of the student enrollment. By last year, the number of women students in the nation's 163 law schools had jumped to 26,737, or 22.8 percent.

The women who have chosen to operate in the rugged courtroom arena are supremely confident of their trial talents. Here's how a few of them evaluate their abilities:

- Pat Hynes, 34, an Assistant U.S. Attorney who is chief of the consumer frauds unit for the Southern District of New York: "It's hard not to take me seriously. I'm very aggressive in a courtroom and I sum up with a lot of fire."
- Nancy Rosner, 30, New York defense attorney representing many organized crime figures: "I'm as good as any lawyer."

● Jill Wine Volner, 33, former assistant Watergate prosecutor, now an associate in a prestigious Washington law firm: "There are few lawyers who can claim the experience I've had. I know what to do in every situation."

● Penny Cooper, 37, a Berkeley, Cal., criminal lawyer in private practice with three male attorneys: "Almost everybody who comes to this firm comes here because I'm here. I suspect that a lot of my success has to do with the fact that I was one of the few women, and certainly the only really good one here, in a world of dull men."

This unabashed self-confidence may sound immodest and crass. But it reflects what most experts feel is a key courtroom quality.

For example, the moment Penny Cooper enters a courtroom she tries to project an air of authority that lets the judge and jury know she's in charge. During the sixth day of a murder trial a few years ago, she boldly tested her dominance by wearing a pantsuit, in spite of the fact that all the female jurors were wearing dresses.

Jurors liked pants

Instead of offending the jurors, Penny won them over. The next day, four women jurors showed up in pants. The case resulted in a verdict of second degree murder, "which was a victory," says Penny.

"I knew when I saw those women in pants that they would help me if they could," she explains.

Another feature of a good trial lawyer is that he must be "a superb judge of human relations," says Prof. Robert E. Keeton of the Harvard Law School.

With characteristic self-confidence, Nancy Rosner says the knack of sizing up juries, judges and witnesses "is just something that I have." She explains that she got an acquittal in a difficult heroin-importing case because she gained the sympathy of a strong-willed male juror whom she accurately pegged as a leader in the jury deliberations.

When the 12 jurors filed into the jury box, she saw a middle-aged man "who responded to me like gang-busters," says Nancy, a dark-eyed brunette who wears her expensive silk blouses unbuttoned just to the point of discretion. "I knew that there was no way in the world that I could lose this case if I got this man on my side," says Nancy.

She says she directed her case to him "in the most subtle ways possible." Noticing that he was a stickler for details, she purposefully asked witnesses questions using the wrong dates or times. She says the juror, who was sitting about a foot from her throughout the trial, became concerned that she would make a mistake and whispered the correct word to her.

"This man actually aided me in the trial!" says Nancy. "He represented my case to the jury." She won an acquittal in six hours.

Pat Hynes, a petite blonde who has been a federal attorney for nine years, says she relates well to women jurors. But once when she was picking a jury, her male co-counsel "became furious" when she included five women.

"You just made a big mistake," he said. "When you're a blonde, you should knock the women off the jury."

But Pat stuck by her guns. "Women many times are proud that another woman is there doing well," she says. "Those women were with me all through the trial." She won the case.

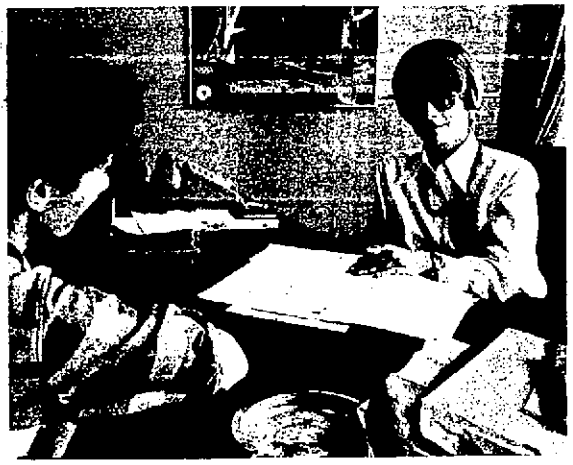
Talking tough

Women lawyers can sometimes have an edge over men in dealing with female witnesses. Jill Volner admits that as a prosecutor she could often be tougher than a man. "I could raise my eyebrows and use a tone of voice implying disbelief," says Jill. "But a man doing the same thing might come across as beating down a helpless woman."

But she insists that her sex was not the reason she was chosen to cross-examine President Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, during the Watergate cover-up trial. She says she initially got the assignment after complaining to her colleague and trial team superior Richard Ben-Veniste that he was taking the lion's share of the witnesses.

"I'm too experienced to sit in the courtroom and watch you do it all," argued Jill, who had spent five years as a trial attorney in the criminal division of the Justice Department before joining the Watergate team. "Either we share this or I'll leave."

He shrugged and said, "OK, you take the next witness." It was Rose Mary Woods.



One of the most dramatic moments of Watergate came when she was questioning Miss Woods during a hearing before Judge John Sirica. Miss Woods had previously testified that by mistakenly pushing the "record" button on her tape recorder and keeping her foot on the pedal that runs the machine she had accidentally erased 18 minutes of tape during a phone conversation.

Foot in mouth

With the tape recorder set up in court, Jill asked Miss Woods to demonstrate how she had made the erasure. When Miss Woods reached back to answer the imaginary phone, her foot instinctively came off the tape recorder pedal and the tape stopped moving.

To Jill, it was an exhilarating moment which "amounted to a public confession that [Rose Mary Woods] could not have done what she said she'd done."

But even if a woman prosecutor could score in the century's most celebrated case, could a female defense lawyer have succeeded in the Patty Hearst case?

Penny Cooper earns $100,000 a year defending clients ranging from dope dealers to Hell's Angels. "The real art of trying a case is preparing a package that will sell," she explains.

F. Lee Bailey, Patty Hearst's lawyer, says, "I think that when she was first arrested, Patty was comfortable with the thought that she might be represented by a woman lawyer who could understand her viewpoint." But, he says, "it didn't turn out to be a problem for me."

Many women lawyers, however, are convinced that Patty wouldn't have had any problems if they had represented her.

"Patty Hearst would have been acquitted in 30 minutes if I had tried that case," says Nancy Rosner.

Penny Cooper, who has defended many radical women, says, "Hell, I've had bank robbers who got straight probation. And they weren't kidnapped."

These feisty female trial lawyers crave spectacular cases like Patty Hearst's because they thrive on the excitement and challenge of starring on center stage.

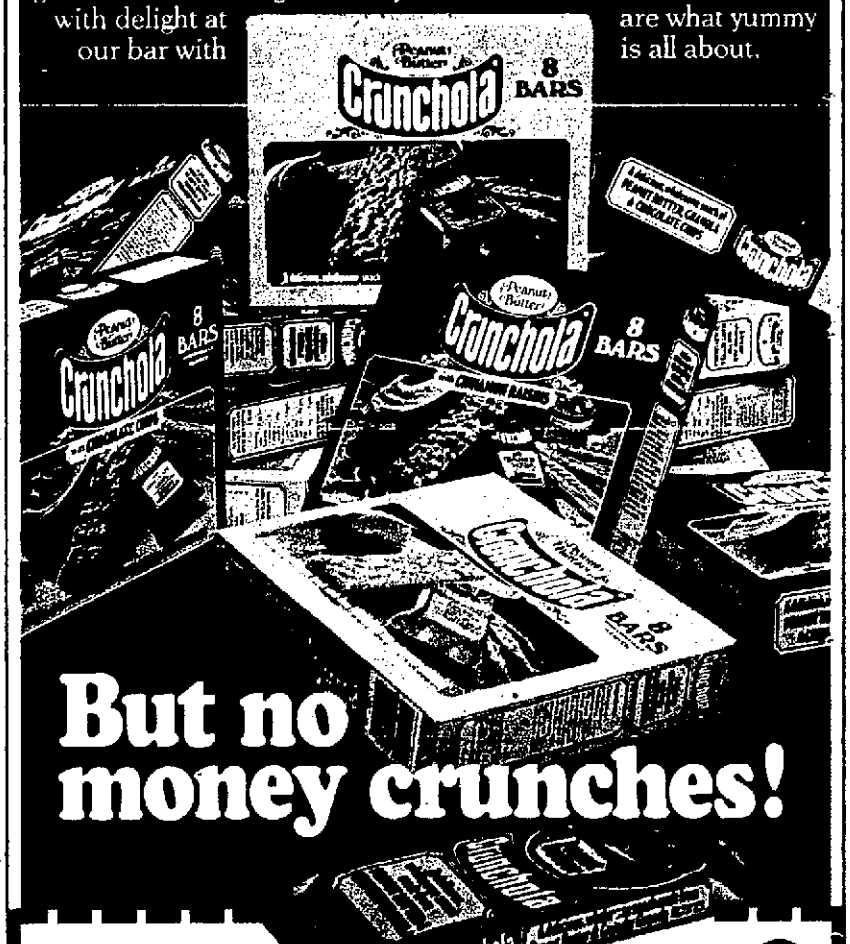
Enjoys limelight

Prosecutor Pat Hynes says many female lawyers shy away from trial work because they "don't want to be in the spotlight and perform on their feet." A 1966 graduate of New York's Fordham Law School, she says she never considered doing anything else. "To me, being a lawyer was being a trial attorney."

For Penny Cooper, who has handled highly publicized cases involving Hell's Angels and political agitators, the glamour of trial work has become less important than the money. Penny says she earns $100,000 a year defending narcotics dealers from California to India. "The money comes from the dope business, not the violence cases," she explains frankly.

In addition to money, trial law has offered Nancy Rosner status and independence. "I've always had a desire to escape my surroundings," says Nancy, the daughter of a Bronx, N.Y., barber. She attended the University of Chicago on scholarship and got a law degree from New York University. Later she began a criminal practice with her husband, from whom she is now separated. She says her practice started to take off when a big-time Brooklyn mobster asked her to handle his case and she won.

These days she spends 12-hour days preparing briefs and arguments and relies on two young male lawyers for research. "If people hire you, it's because they have faith in you. They don't want anyone else handling their case," she says.



This kind of loyalty to her clients has its rewards. She says that there are those in her following who "would lay down their lives for me." One man whom she saved from life imprisonment sends her a letter every day from jail, where he is serving time on a separate case.

Aside from the plaudits of her clients and the mink coats her practice affords her, Nancy, like many female trial lawyers, is driven by a need to succeed in a field where few women have ventured.

"Trial law was Mount Everest to me," she says.

Robert Strauss, Democratic party chairman, and Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter: The party feels it would attract a majority of the nation's 55 million unregistered voters and has launched a $2 million registration drive.

New Voters May Decide the Presidential Election

by John G. Taft

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Despite his overwhelming lead in early public opinion polls, Jimmy Carter faces a tough battle in this year's Presidential campaign. But the Democratic party has an elaborate voter registration plan designed to improve his chances in November.

Carter may need all the help his party can provide because he remains an unknown quantity. Even Carter delegates questioned by PARADE reporters at last month's convention could not fully explain their reasons for supporting the former Georgia Governor.

Carter's broad but thin support could be a serious problem in an era when barely a majority of American voters go to the polls and every vote counts.

As recently as 1960, a switch of less than 12,000 votes in five states would have meant the election of Richard M. Nixon instead of John F. Kennedy. When Nixon finally succeeded in his bid for the White House in 1968, his margin of victory was only slightly more than 500,000 votes out of more than 73 million cast.

No one knows the value of every vote better than Jimmy Carter—and he understands that those who generally don't vote are Democrats. In 1972, when Nixon swamped the Democrats, it was the blacks, blue-collar whites and the young who stayed away from the polls. The biggest turnout came from affluent whites, suburbanites and Republicans.

Costly and far-reaching

Aware of past failures in turning out their traditional voters, Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss early last year launched the most costly and far-reaching nationwide voter registration program ever undertaken by the party.

That effort got underway when the Democratic National Committee (DNC) selected as its targets about 60 percent of the country's 170,000 precincts, ignoring only those that were overwhelmingly Republican or rural.

By last summer, the Democrats were feeding their computers and training 1000 people to carry out the program. The cost is expected to exceed $2 million, with another million or more budgeted for turning out the vote on Election Day.

In contrast, 1972 Democratic Presidential nominee George S. McGovern spent only $1.3 million for voter registration. That and other past Democratic efforts have been generally haphazard and late starting, admits Robert Smith, the DNC staff aide in charge of this year's operation.

Picking targets

"We know the techniques we will use and the areas where we will use them," says Smith. The high-priority states include California, Ohio, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Texas.

Much of the money will go to established youth groups and black and Hispanic organizations which the party believes can most effectively carry out the program. At the same time, labor unions supporting Carter are undertaking a parallel effort with their own political funds.

Targets of the drive will include the 15 million black Americans who comprise 10 percent of this year's electorate, as well as the Chicanos who make up at least 10 percent of the voting-age population of New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, California and Colorado.

The new postcard registration laws in at least 13 states, Smith notes, will make the drive all the more effective. In California alone, as many as 6 million new voters could be registered.

Musicians lend a festive air as a California nonpartisan registration campaign signs up another eligible voter.

A price comparison

The DNC calculates that it costs 75 cents to register a person by mail, but slightly more than a dollar to get the same man or woman to go to the county clerk's office to register.

Current estimates place the number of unregistered people at 55 million, and that vast pool of potential voters would most likely support Carter and other Democratic candidates 2 to 1.

Smith says the DNC computerized targeting program is similar to what Nixon and the Republican National Committee did four years ago, spending a record $6.4 million on voter registration and turnout.

The Republicans this year are using computers to mesh millions of names from registration rolls and telephone books. Shortly after Labor Day, volunteers at 800 telephone centers across the country will begin calling thousands of households to identify potential Republican voters.

The Republican operation also carries a budget of about $3 million, but it is not designed to register any new GOP partisans—only to locate those already committed to the party and encourage them to vote in November.

"We're relying on state and local parties to conduct their own registration drives," says Eddie Mahe, executive director of the Republican National Committee. "You can't register people out of Washington."

Strategy and polling

In addition, the RNC will be coordinating the scheduling between its Presidential candidate and contenders for other offices, planning a media and advertising strategy for all GOP candidates, conducting a nationwide poll of voter attitudes and doing extensive "opposition research" on Carter's record.

The two parties plan to spend a combined total of about $10 million in this year's election to influence your vote. The Democrats will be knocking on your door and the Republicans will be calling on your phone—but what could make the difference are the tens of millions of would-be voters who until now have remained outside the political process.

How Anne Towey got Slender and stayed Slender.

Anne Towey is a long-legged, statuesque brunette—almost 5'9" tall. Her eyes are remarkably large and violet-colored. She's soft-spoken but she laughs more often now. Ever since she lost 93 pounds with the help of Slender® diet food. It took almost a year for Anne to go from 243 to 150 pounds but she had Slender and that quiet Aries determination.

"I'd been heavy since grade school," Anne says. "Just look at that picture I sent you. I always wore a sweater even in the summer, even over a short-sleeved dress!

"Before I started on Slender I ate constantly. I would eat my three meals a day but that wasn't what put the weight on. It was the constant in-between-meal snacks and I do mean constant...the 10 o'clock coffee break wasn't a coffee break; it was a buttered roll or bagel or a piece of cake. The two o'clock break was a package of cookies or a candy bar and a soda. The before-bedtime snack was ice cream with chocolate sauce or maybe a pizza.

"Well, one day I went shopping and I saw Slender and I thought, gee, if I take one for lunch maybe that will help. So I started with just lunch and in about 2 weeks I had lost 8 pounds! So I thought, my goodness, what if I had Slender for dinner what would it do? Before I knew it I was on three cans a day and sometimes I took the fourth can at night if I was hungry. When I went back to solid foods I ate mainly meat, vegetables, salads, that sort of thing. But what amazed me was when I was on Slender—and even though I'm a fanatic for sweets, for chocolate, ice cream, everything—as long as I stuck with the Slender I was all right. I didn't have that craving. It was gone and I no longer have it."

Anne, who went from a size 22½ to a size 14, has maintained her new weight for 2 years. She admits she backslides.

"If I gain 4 or 5 pounds," she says, "I go right back to Slender twice a day—breakfast and lunch and then I eat dinner."

Slender, it seems, changed more than Anne's figure. "I feel more confident now," she says, "and I think that reflects in a person's job performance. I'm a little more secure. Before, I would never cross anybody about anything—or question anybody about why they were doing something because I didn't have the self-confidence and I didn't want to draw attention to myself. Now I'm kind of my own person and I do what I feel is right.

"Look," she continues, "I tried them all. I tried Weight Watchers.

I tried Metrecal. I tried grapefruit and Stillman's but Slender worked for me."

Anne Towey is yet another Slender success story. And it all started when she reached out for Slender at her market—and stayed with it. You can do the same. Just get Slender and get started. And know what? We'd sure like to hear from you.

my favorite jokes

EDITOR'S NOTE: Five days a week from 6 to 10 a.m. over radio station WFBR in Baltimore, Johnny Walker does a show that includes, among other comedy elements, a segment based on the news—news to which he adds his own satirical twist. Walker says his news items represent his own "distorted views," but his humor often comes from a line of reasoning that exposes contradictions. For example, he reports that "a team of university researchers says that every time a book is published in the U.S., one tree must be sacrificed to supply the paper for each copy printed. This startling fact was published in their 740-page book on the environment which will be available soon."

Walker performs at nightclubs in the Washington-Baltimore area, and at the Club Venus in Baltimore every Thursday.

Here are some of his favorite items:

The Federal Trade Commission has told the company that in future ads they must state that contrary to previous claims their product will not kill germs on contact. However, a spokesman for the company says they will not word it quite that way, but instead the new ads will say, "Who wants a mouthful of dead germs anyway?"

How the Wealthy Stay Healthy

by Mort Weisinger

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. VA.

When it's annual physical checkup time for Harold S. Geneen, chief executive of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., he finds the three-day examination a pleasure. Tests of vital organs and body fluids in the morning. Then, in the afternoon, a switch from needles and treadmills to golf or tennis.

Geneen flies here in a company plane to the diagnostic clinic in a wing of the luxurious Greenbrier Hotel, a 6500-acre resort nestled in the Appalachian Mountains. He has been making the flight for 14 years, one of a growing group of executives who look forward to fun along with their physicals.

Instead of being hospitalized, they have access to golf and tennis, and indoor and outdoor pools.

Corporate planes arrive with their executive cargo. Over the years they have included General Electric, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, General Motors, Standard Oil of Ohio, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Heinz, and more than 100 others.

"Getting a busy executive to sit still for a series of examinations is difficult, to say the least," Dr. Arnold J. Brody, the clinic's medical director, told PARADE. "But when we combine the checkup with games and gourmet meals, the visit here becomes a pleasant holiday."

Most companies offer these health junkets as a fringe benefit to top executives. They regard the expense as an investment that benefits stockholders.

"Men making million-dollar decisions should be in sound physical shape," says Dr. Brody. "It is our job to catch their ailments as early as possible to prevent them from becoming serious health problems."

Develop a relationship

Dr. Brody's team of diagnosticians consists of seven top internists. Each doctor works at a leisurely pace, seldom taking on more than four patients a day. Each patient is assigned the same doctor for every step of the examination, so that a personal relationship develops.

The team is backed up by two radiologists, seven X-ray technicians, eight nurses, and six laboratory experts using sophisticated equipment.

The X-ray department has six diagnostic rooms. Three of these contain fluoroscopic units with closed-circuit TV so that patient and doctor can simultaneously view the internal scenery. There is also a special unit for breast X-rays. (One-third of the clinic's patients are women, many of them the wives of executives.)

The idea of a diagnostic clinic in a resort setting was conceived in 1948 by the late Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius. He had seen many leaders in government and business disabled by diseases that could have been cured if detected in time. He believed that most executives postponed medical examinations because they were turned off by the depressing atmosphere of the average hospital. So the Greenbrier clinic opened to provide checkups for the healthy. The clinic is not part of the hotel, renting space from the resort, a subsidiary of Chessie Systems, Inc.

Mornings and afternoons

The concept has proved so successful that this year 6000 persons will have taken the clinic's tests. The tests occupy mornings; enrollees are encouraged to spend afternoons at sports, skeet shooting, or riding one of the hotel's 25 horses.

According to John S. Lanahan, president of the Greenbrier, the resort has attracted dignitaries like Prince Ranier and Princess Grace of Monaco and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Socially prominent persons who have signed their guest book include Winthrop Aldrich and Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke. Other names on their Who's Who list are John Connally, Sen. Edward Kennedy, Debbie

No wonder you're constipated.

If you don't have enough roughage in your diet, it's no wonder you're constipated and suffering from painful elimination.

It's roughage that retains vital moisture so you eliminate gently and comfortably.

But roughage is processed out of so much food, many of us don't get enough of it.

Here's where Serutan can help you.

Serutan is the natural ingredient laxative that contains a rich source of roughage, that can absorb over 20 times its weight in water. But, unlike certain foods containing harsh roughage, Serutan forms gentle non-irritating bulk. Your intestinal wastes are soft and moist for smooth, easy results.

Try Serutan. You'll be very comfortable with it.

HEALTH CONTINUED

Reynolds, William Randolph Hearst Jr., Bob Hope and Bing Crosby. Crosby quipped that the maid cleaned his room with a mink mop.

The Greenbrier's Presidential Suite was occupied by Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956. Richard Nixon, Lyndon Johnson, Hubert Humphrey and Gerald Ford all visited the Greenbrier as Vice Presidents. Some of them probably had a checkup.

To find out how the testing works, PARADE assigned me to go through the clinic as a patient. When I checked in at the hotel there was a note of instructions in my box. I was directed to finish my dinner before 8 p.m., then fast for 12 hours so that I could have my blood drawn.

Big breakfast order

In the clinic next morning, a technician took a blood sample. Then I was ordered to return to the hotel and gorge on orange juice, sugared corn flakes and cream, pancakes smothered with maple syrup, and all the sweet Danish I could eat with coffee and heaping spoonfuls of sugar. This was to prepare me for a blood-sugar test for diabetes.

When I returned to the clinic and yielded more blood, I was told my doctor was waiting in his office. "I want you to tell me all about yourself," he said. "Your medical history. Your aches, pains, hang-ups. Family diseases—and that includes all blood relatives."

I reeled off the usual childhood diseases—measles, mumps, chicken pox. I told him I'd been 1-A in World War II —served in the infantry, then had gained a preposterous 80 pounds after returning to civilian life. By the time I was 50, I had paid dearly: an ulcer, high blood pressure, a bout with gout and—most disturbing—a heart block. I told him I had gone on a strict diet and shed 70 pounds in the last two years.

The doctor spied me glancing at my watch. "Don't worry about the time," he laughed. "Pretend you're a hypochondriac. We've had patients here whose histories were five times more complex than yours." Never had I encountered a physician so willing to listen.

Then he inspected my ears, nose, mouth and throat, teeth and gums, examined my abdomen for hernia and palpable masses. He also tested me neurologically for vibratory sense and pathological signs.

"Now go back to the hotel and enjoy the pool," he said. "And eat a big dinner because you'll be fasting again. You're due back tomorrow morning for our special barium breakfast."

The next morning I underwent the nearest thing to an autopsy a live person can experience. A sigmoidoscope explored my lower regions. After I had gulped down flavored barium "sodas," X-ray films made studies of my heart, aorta, lung fields, esophagus and stomach. My pelvis, hips and feet were tested for arthritis. Electrocardiograms and blood-pressure tests were taken after I had exercised and taken a 30-minute nap. I was tested for glaucoma and my hearing.

Although the clinic's staffers won't reveal the identities of their VIP patients, I used my investigative resources to compile a gee-whiz list. Medical ethics prevented the doctors from confirming the names on my list, but neither did they deny its accuracy.

So I can only report that I was weighed on a scale that had weighed Roy Rogers. My blood pressure was checked by the same instrument used on Steve McQueen. The pretty resident vampire who had drawn samples of my blood had similarly punctured Billy Graham's veins. To test the elasticity of my lungs and check for emphysema, I puffed into the meter used by movie star Van Johnson. The EKG machine attached to my body when I took the Masters step exercise test had recorded the heartbeats of Pat O'Brien and DeWitt Wallace, founder and publisher of Reader's Digest.

You don't have to be rich to take the complete Greenbrier checkup. The cost is $200, which compares favorably with the fees of clinics offering similar services, such as the Mayo Clinic.

From nearby, too

About 50% of the clientele last year were average folks. Local residents drove to the clinic for the required three mornings. Others came from as far as 2000 miles away.

If you want to rub elbows with the upper crust, however, and enjoy the hotel while undergoing your checkup, a spacious room, along with a bursting breakfast and a full-course dinner, will cost you $57 a day, $105 for double occupancy.

The clinic's pattern seldom varies: 10% of those examined have hypertension and mild obesity; polyps in the rectum are discovered in about 7½%; coronary heart disease 4%; diabetes 3½%; gallbladder conditions 3%; glaucoma 1½%.

Other problems that surface include executives suffering deep depression, usually triggered by the death of a loved one, overwork or impending mandatory retirement. Secret alcoholism may be betrayed by an impaired liver. Even when a corporation pays the bill, the final diagnosis is confidential and is discussed only with the patient or his physician. Fortunately, the speedy detection of almost all perilous symptoms makes them remediable or controllable, and, if requested, the clinic will suggest appropriate hospitals, surgeons, specialists or psychiatrists.

'When you're well'

The Greenbrier philosophy: "Check your body while you're well, not when you're sick, and you'll live to a ripe old age."

On my third morning at the clinic, as my wrap-up consultation began, I nervously awaited the moment of truth. To my relief, the doctor gave me a satisfactory report card.

Most important, the tests revealed that my heart block had been incomplete and my heart was not enlarged. He added that in a few days he would send me a detailed report of my examination, which I could turn over to my doctor. I was far from a bionic man, but I was not a passenger on the coronary express. I intend to return for my next annual checkup.

Observations

Bright future ahead. Remember when it was a fad to view the future with alarm? When academicians and others decided that the world was getting too crowded and too dirty to support life much longer? Or at least life as we know it? Happily, all the current predictions do not forecast gloom and doom. Life as we know it may not be the same, it may be much better, thanks primarily to ever-developing technology. The Hudson Institute, one of the nation's leading "think tanks," for example, forecasts an era of unprecedented abundance. In a book, "The Next 200 Years—A Scenario for America and the World," Herman Kahn and the Institute see the Gross World Product rising from $5.5 trillion to $300 trillion. The book, published by William Morrow & Company, Inc., also predicts the average income of every man, woman and child on earth will rise from a current $1,300 a year to $20,000.

Closing the gap. The Hudson Institute has a novel theory. It feels that the very gap that now separates the "haves" from the "have-not" nations will stimulate worldwide progress toward a future of economic abundance. The larger the gap, the institute feels, the stronger the incentive for achieving a higher standard of living for all.

Invention beyond belief. Another futurologist, Stephen Rosen, predicts that the world will benefit from a rash of invention that defies the imagination. In his book "Future Facts," published by Simon and Schuster, Dr. Rosen predicts a 21-minute subway ride between New York and Los Angeles, machines activated by the operator's eye movements, and even the growth of new human limbs by electric stimulation. Looking ahead now seems a more inviting prospect.

"SURE IT'S PRETTY, BUT DOES IT HAVE A FUTURE?"

It takes time. "Future Facts" reminds us that we needn't fear the unknown, not even the new-fangled gadgets that seem to boggle the mind. People adapt to change at about the same rate as inventors produce innovations. The development of antibiotics, from the basic idea to the neighborhood drug store, took 30 years; photography took 56 years, and even the zipper 30 years.

Coming up. Instead of stepping into your bathtub or shower, someday you'll enter a "people washer egg" that bathes, rinses and dries you. For people who sew: you'll soon be able to forget the annoying snags that occur when you use certain fabrics. The ultrasonic machine of the future will weld seams rather than stitch them. And for those with self-doubt, Dr. Rosen forecasts a scientific method for measuring romantic love.

A quote we like. "Genius is one percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration." Thomas A. Edison.

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

The Wild Man of Rock

Keith Moon, "the weirdy of English pop music," is living up to his reputation. Word is out in Europe that The Who's drummer has a strange way of getting his kicks—he likes to destroy hotel furnishings.

As a result, almost no respectable hotel owner will rent him a room when his group comes to town. Moon threatens that if they won't rent him a hotel room, he'll simply buy his own and demolish it piece by piece just for kicks.

Recently Keith kept his cool when his part-Chinese girlfriend Anne Lou Chen emptied a plate of beef curry and rice on his head while they were dining in an Indian restaurant in London. Anne Lou washed the main dish down his neck with a bottle of Rhine wine and stormed out. But the 32-year-old rock star ignored her, calmly ordered another dinner.

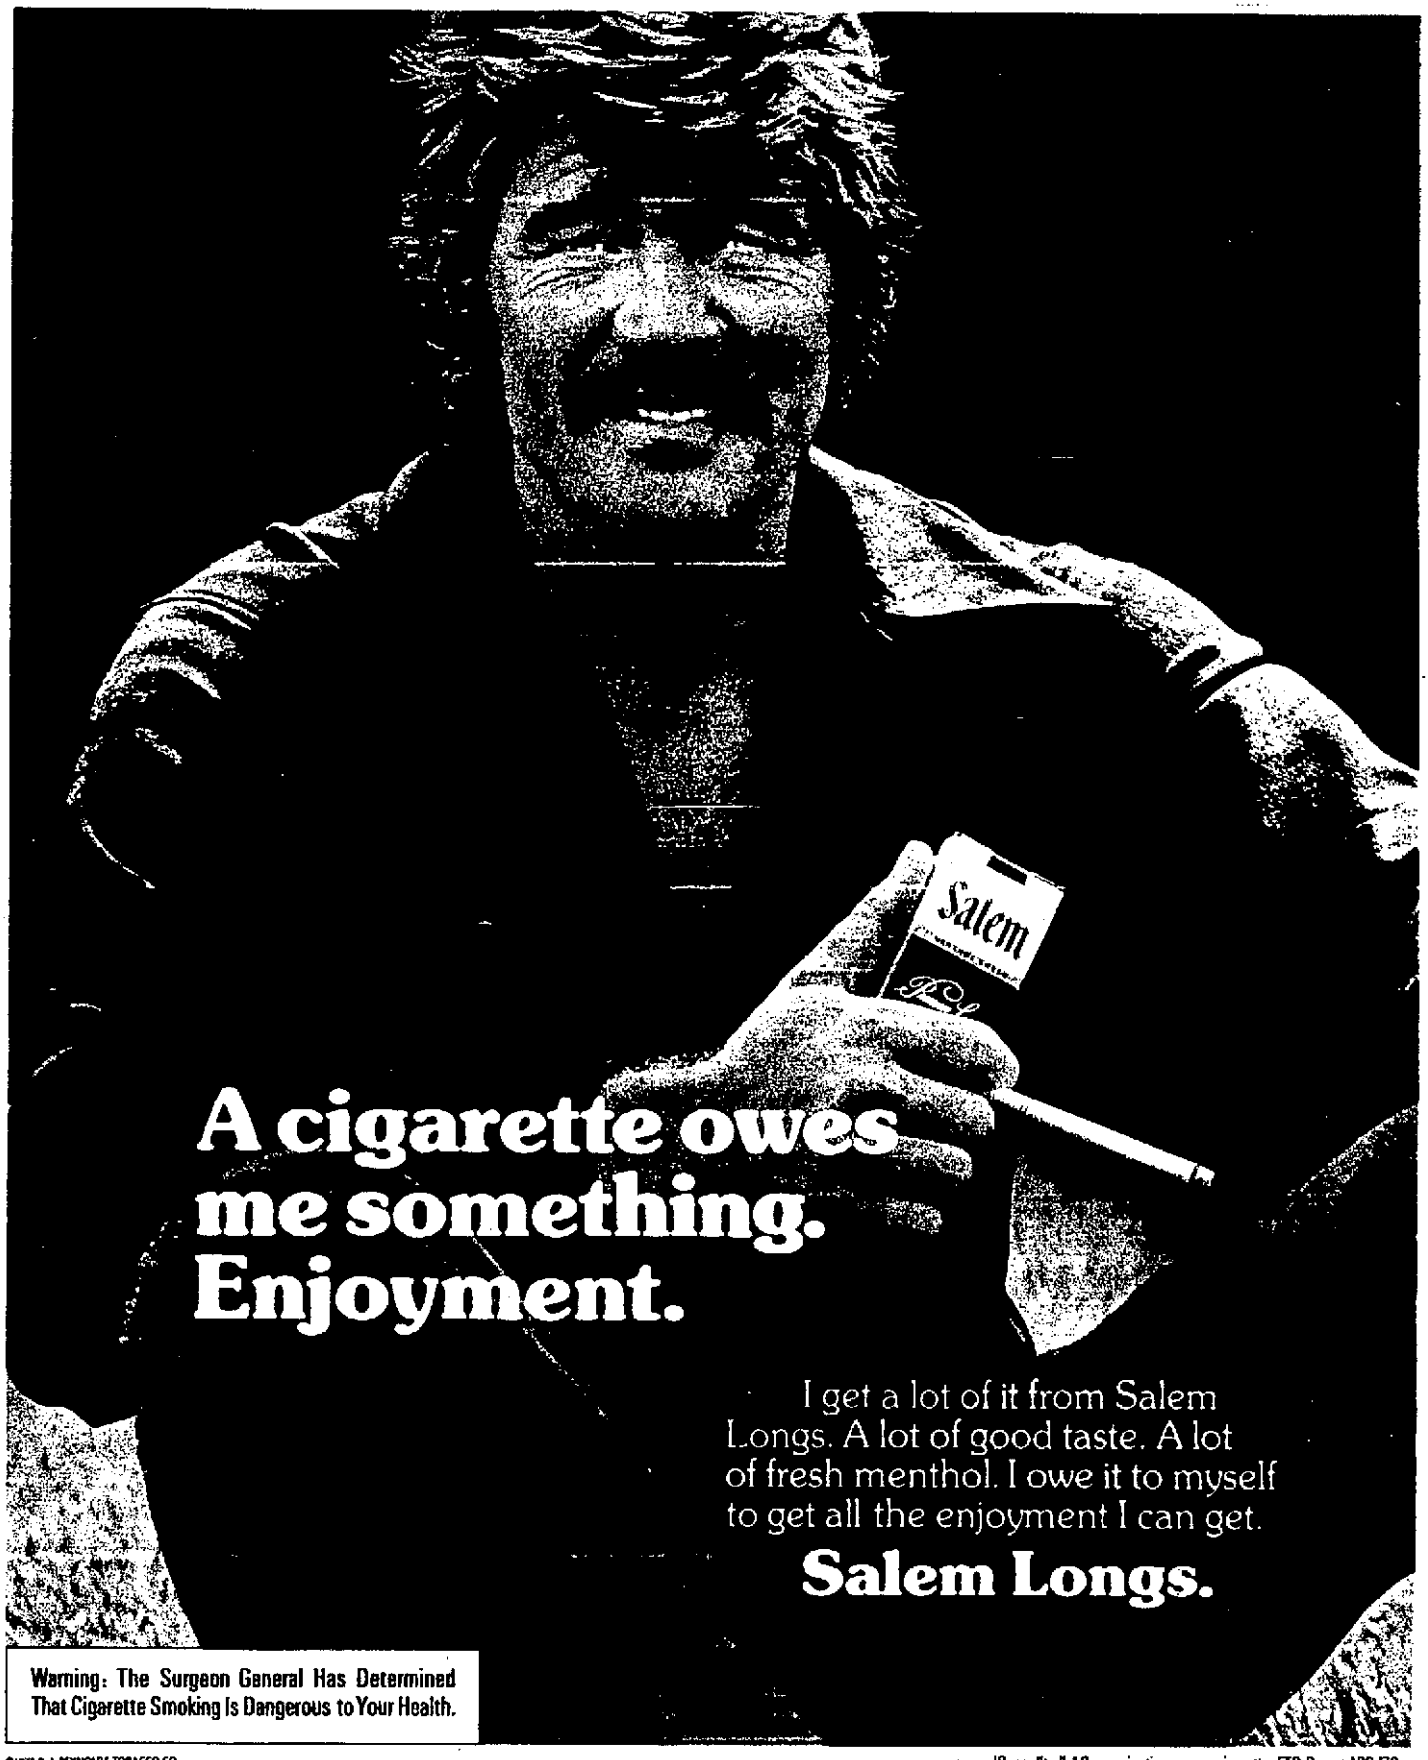
Trying to Shake the Shadows

CAPT. ALEX RAMOS (L) GUARDS FERDINAND MARCOS



Ferdinand Marcos, 18, son of the dictator of the Philippines, has a favorite pastime in Oxford, England, where he's enrolled in the university, majoring in politics. That pastime is how to escape from bodyguards who accompany him everywhere.

"What they don't realize," Marcos says, "is that Oxford is not like Manila. Here I can walk the streets unafraid of kidnapping. I don't need bodyguards. And I don't want them, especially when I'm out on a date."

Trying his best to appear casual in this photo is Capt. Alex Ramos, young Ferdinand's No. 1 bodyguard, who says, "I appreciate his feelings, but what can I do? It's my job to see that nothing happens to him."

Young Marcos has a sister, "Immy," enrolled in Princeton, who also is constantly surrounded by bodyguards.

The Marcos parents, Ferdinand and Imelda, who run the Philippines with an iron hand and have jailed some 5000 political dissenters, live in constant fear that their children will be kidnapped by their enemies, whom they number in the thousands.

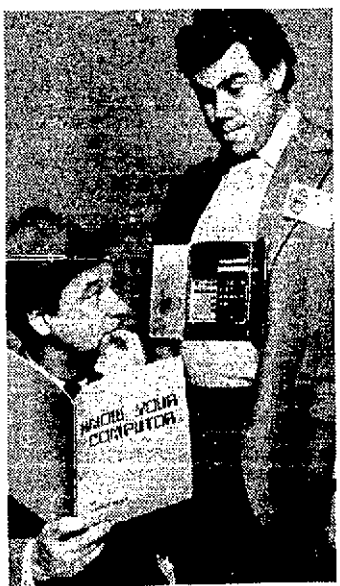
Richard Shull is all too human as robot's partner

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Television has given us young detectives and old detectives, slim detectives and fat detectives, male detectives and female detectives, brilliant detectives and bungling detectives, bald-headed detectives and bushy-haired detectives, white detectives and black detectives — and even yellow detectives.



So what's new for the tube in the coming season?

Would you believe a robot detective? And why not — we've had every other kind.

The mechanical sleuth will make his appearance as one of the two stars of ABC's "Holmes and Yoyo," which joins that network's fall lineup on Saturday night, Sept. 25, in the 8-to-8:30 slot.

You will be glad to know that the new series is a comedy. Somehow robots are hard to take seriously.

Yoyo is the humanized computer's name, and Holmes is his human partner in a police detective team. Preferring human company to that of robots, I had lunch the other day with Holmes — that is, actor Richard B. Shull — in the commissary at Universal Studios, where the situation comedy is produced. And he told me a bit about the show.

HOLMES (Shull) studies his robot detective partner Yoyo (John Schuck).

Even Yoyo is played by an actor — John Schuck, familiar to TV fans as Rock Hudson's aide, Sgt. Enright, on "McMillan and Wife." He'll continue on the NBC series this fall while also starring with Shull in "Holmes and Yoyo."

Schuck and Shull — it could be the start of a great comedy team. The names have a certain ring.

"People even tell me we look like brothers," said Shull, who costarred three seasons ago in the NBC comedy series "Diana," which starred Diana Rigg. "To me, John looks like my brother, rather than me, but then I suppose there would have to be some family resemblance between me and my brother."

If Shull and Schuck are lookalikes (frankly, Shull reminds me more of Walter Matthau), they also have something else in common: writers are always misspelling their names. That is to say, they stick a "c" in Shull's name and leave it out of Schuck's.

AS HOLMES, Shull is a veteran police detective whose partners, through some fault of his, have all ended up in the hospital.

"So when the Office of Advanced Systems suggests to the police department that it use this robot — and points out that it is indestructible — the chief immediately thinks of Holmes," the actor told me.

"I'm not told that my new partner is a computer, but I find it out on my own in the first episode when we're in a car accident and he falls out. When I see his built-in pushbutton controls and power plug-ins, I don't like it at first.

"But he makes me see that, in certain ways, I have been programmed as much as he has. I'm an imperfect human, and he's an imperfect robot — and we can learn from each other."

The two of them solve crimes on the show, but the emphasis is on broad comedy, Shull said.

"Yoyo is short for Yoyonovich, and he's named for his inventor, Dr. Gregory Yoyonovich," Shull pointed out. "Schuck also plays the inventor, for, you see, he created Yoyo in his own likeness."

RICHARD B. SHULL . . . stars in 'Holmes and Yoyo'

SHULL, a big (6-2) and loquacious man, got his big break during the 1972 Olympics. No, not as an athlete in the Games, but rather in a TV commercial "that ran about 65 times" during the Olympic Games telecasts.

Perhaps you remember it. Dick played Boris Spasky in a chess match with an actor portraying Bobby Fischer. The commercial plugged Brut cologne.

"People still come up to me and say they remember that commercial," said Shull, who has done scores of other TV commercials as well.

Producer Leonard Stern got in touch with the actor after viewing the commercial, and later cast him in the "Diana" series, his first TV role.

An earlier big break — perhaps even more important in his career than the Spasky bit — came in 1970 when Shull was cast as Maxie the female impersonator in "Minnie's Boys," a Broadway musical about the early days of the Marx Brothers, with Shelley Winters as their mother, Minnie.

Dick stopped the show with his "Underneath It All I'm Still the Same" song number, dressed "in a $3,500 gown and a $650 blonde wig."

Said Shull: "I actually saw Jack Benny fall out of his chair laughing one night when I was doing the number."

Benny wasn't the only one who was impressed. Dick's performance led to all those TV commercials and to roles in the movies "B.S. I Love You," "The Anderson Tapes," "Such Good Friends," "Hail to the Chief" and "Slither," in which, as James Caan's embezzler friend, he was blown up.

More recently, he has been in the movies "The Fortune" and "Hearts of the West," and he gained a Tony Award nomination for his performance in "Goodtime Charley" on Broadway." He also has guest-starred in several TV series.

FOR NEARLY 20 years after graduating from the University of Iowa in 1950, with a B.A. degree in drama, the Elmhurst, Ill., native worked as a backstage technician (his first love). Carpentry, design, lighting, stage management — he has done it all, along with a bit of acting and directing along the way "and a lot of taxi driving."

He had risen to the rank of stage manager on 10 Broadway shows ("none of which lasted more than four weeks") before his "Minnie's Boys" performance sent him off in another show business direction.

Now, with a computer as a buddy, there's no telling how far Richard Shull can go.

Winkler denies rumors that he's walking out

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"I wish you would print that Henry Winkler is not leaving 'Happy Days.' People all over the country have been hearing rumors that I was walking out. I wouldn't do that. I know where I was before the series started, and I know where I am now. I do not take that lightly."

These were Henry Winkler's opening words as he reported for an interview during a rehearsal lunch break at Paramount Studio. After a two-day absence, he had appeared for the start of the fourth season of ABC's hit comedy "Happy Days."

He seemed content, but not noticeably happy. In fact, he did not smile during the entire conversation.

HENRY WINKLER . . . as Fonzie

THE ACTOR talked about the incident that prompted rumors of his departure from the series:

"I was gone for two days, but I did not hold up production; they were able to work around me. I did not report at the start of the season because I held a position which was morally correct.

"I realized that certain executives of the company (Paramount) were patting me on the back at the same time they were ripping me off. What they were paying me was a drop in the bucket compared to the earning power of the show.

"All I need is my self-respect and my life. Unfortunately, respect in this town comes from earning power, not ability. A craftsman no longer exists by his ability, but by the paraphernalia that surrounds success. So I decided to take a stand. What I did was correct."

WINKLER said that he stayed away from negotiations, letting his lawyer do the work. His contract was improved, adding a larger share in the merchandising of products bearing his likeness.

"Before, I had very little to say in the merchandising," he said, "and some bad things happened. Like selling panties that had my face next to a 13-year-old crotch. That's pretty tasteless. Now I will have a much more substantial say in what is sold."

Things are happening fast for the 30-year-old New Yorker. He has signed a contract with Universal Pictures for a movie, "Heroes," which he'll make after the "Happy Days" season ends in January. He is also close to a movie deal with his newly reconciled employers at Paramount.

THIS SUMMER he broke records in Ohio with a three-week run in "Room Service" at a reported $30,000 a week. He was still glowing over the experience.

"It was like shifting into second gear at 50 miles an hour and blowing out all the carbon. I soared like an eagle. It was the best thing that could have happened to me at this time."

He is a serious, articulate man, totally unlike the hedonistic Arthur Fonzarelli he plays on the Tuesday night show. The crown of unruly brown hair makes him seem higher than his 5 feet, 6½. He is narrow-headed and slender, but strongly built.

Henry Winkler is no dropout. Son of a lumber corporation president and refugee from Nazi Germany, he studied in Switzerland, Emerson College in Boston and Yale Drama School, where he was awarded a Master of Fine Arts in 1970.

"MOSTLY I did TV commercials before I started 'Happy Days,'" he said. "I appeared on Broadway in a play that lasted one night; I did two films ('The Lords of Flatbush,' 'Crazy Joe'), appeared in six plays for free, took part in an improvisational theater. I always earned a living, mostly because of commercials (American Airlines, Closeup toothpaste); I never had to take a job as a waiter or anything else."

He came to Hollywood in 1973 and within a month landed the Fonz role in "Happy Days." He didn't even appear in the pilot film, had only seven lines in the first show. During the first two seasons he was merely one of the characters in the 1950s comedy, but he knew something was happening.

"The show went on the air in January," he recalled.

"In January this year I appeared in Detroit before 175,000 people. Some stood in line for three or four hours to enter the stadium. There were grandmothers and there were 2-year-olds. The appeal of Fonzie crosses all ages, all walks of life."

WINKLER himself helped develop Fonzie, adding the leather jacket and boots, the thumbs-up salute, the self-confident "Aaaaayyy." The character really took off during the past season, when Fonzie moved into the Cunningham household with pal Richie (Ron Howard). Filming changed from a one-camera movie method to a three-camera show before an audience.

"I'm stage-trained and I like a live audience," said Winkler. "In a one-camera show you can play the nuances, while you go for the laughs with three-camera. I got large when we first went to the audience show, now I'm playing in-between."

THE COOLNESS of Fonzie struck a chord with American TV viewers and created a cult that has rarely been seen since the Davy Crockett rage of 1955. It created an outpouring of Fonz T-shirts, buttons, posters, bedsheets, beanbags, jackets, jeans and — panties.

Winkler analyzed: "There is a lot of fantasy in Fonz; no one can be that cool. But I also gave him integrity, loyalty, a sense of morality, a feeling of owning his own space. Self-respect is the cornerstone of life; self-respect equals joy. I think that's why people find Fonz appealing."

Winkler's own life has changed enormously, not all to the good.

"I have to learn how to relate to what has happened, but it is so big that I don't have the strength," he said. The mobs of admirers don't bother him, except when they get out of hand. On two occasions he has blacked out when the screams around him reached an intolerable decibel level. "But I'm never afraid," he added.

HE NOW CAN find privacy only in the small house he recently acquired in the Hollywood Hills. He tries to keep his identities separated and signs autographs with his own, not his TV name — "Fonzie is my fantasy, Henry is my reality."

He remarked, "Sometimes there is an incredible pressure; it can be mindblowing. In Ohio I woke up one morning and cried for two hours. You become an island with a success like this. The world that feeds you also makes you become isolated."

Then he added: "But then, it's fun to complain; it helps relieve the pressure. At times I become an old fishwife."

THE BIBLE Says

J. T. SMITH

THE LORD'S CHURCH ON EARTH

Does the Lord's church exist today on this earth? I believe it does. However, we know from the teachings of the Scriptures that all of the more than 300 different denominations in the world today, teaching that many different doctrines, cannot be the Lord's church. How may we identify the Lord's church today? It is really a simple matter when you stop to think about it. But, let's use a very common illustration to show it.

Does the United States Post Office exist today? The answer of course, is yes. How do we identify it? Well we are driving down the street and we see a sign on a building that says U. S. POST OFFICE. Now that may or may not mean that we have found the Post Office. You know there is such a thing as moving the workings of the Post Office to another building without removing the old sign. So, we will just have to stop, go in and see.

Now, when we go in, those who have been there before, or may have read about what a Post Office is supposed to consist of, will go in and look for the people in the blue uniforms standing behind a counter waiting to sell you stamps, ready to write money orders, etc. You may even find, when you get ready to address an envelope, the pen that won't write. However, if you enter this building and you see a counter with stools and smell hamburgers cooking, even though the sign that says Post Office may still remain, you know immediately that you are in the wrong place.

Today, the majority of religious groups do not hesitate to put up a sign on their building identifying the fact that they are not the Lord's church. They will put up a sign honoring the memory of Luther, Wesley, John the Baptist or some other person, or form of doctrine. However, even if they do have a sign on the building which uses a designation found in the Bible (Church of Christ, Church of God, etc.) this does not actually mean that the Lord's church abides within. How can we tell? By reading the Bible and seeing what they were and did in the days of the apostles, and going inside and meeting with these people and seeing if what they teach and practice is in harmony with what the early New Testament Christians did.

'Headhunters' bring in TV audiences

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

They get free tickets to see television stars at work. Before the show starts they're entertained by a warm-up host, and sometimes a band, too. They may get free transportation to and from the event. A few may even leave with expensive gifts.

Who? Virtually anyone; and just for attending the filming or taping of a TV program in Hollywood, the television production capital.

"One might think it's the easiest thing in the world, that if you're putting on a TV show people are automatically going to come. Not so," says Joseph Di Sante, who is in charge of filling the bleachers for ABC programs.

THE TASK can be so demanding that all three major networks, plus other production facilities around town, have people employed fulltime to handle it. And there is still enough work left over to keep a couple of independents in business.

If that's hard to believe, you have to remember that audiences are needed for every episode of more than 20 situation comedies, a handful of variety shows, countless game shows and talk shows and a never-ending stream of specials. They also are required for many pilot projects that never get on the air.

And come to think of it, each situation comedy needs not one but two audiences every week — one for the drama rehearsal and one for the actual taping.

ABC, CBS and NBC estimate that a combined total of more than 2.5 million persons will sit in studio audiences for network shows this year.

"WE LOOK at ourselves as one giant ticket vending machine," says Jay Michelis, NBC's chief audience specialist.

Producers put a high premium on filling the studio auditoriums, which generally range in size from 200 to 500 seats. They say a full house benefits the performers in a variety show or comedy, the celebrities and contestants in a game show, and even the audience itself.

"It's like a party," says Ed Weinberger, a writer-producer involved with "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Phyllis" and "Doc."

"If you're at a party and the room is half empty, you say, 'Why am I at this dog of a party?' But if people are pouring out the doors and windows, you say, 'What a great party this is. Look who else is here!' "

DI SANTE of ABC says, "I can't conceive of a situation comedy done without a live audience. It's really like a live play. The performers get the same reaction from the audience as a person in the legitimate theater does. It must be the worst feeling in the world to come out and do a show without an audience there."

Robby Robertson, one of the independent audience "headhunters," as they're called in the industry, says of game shows: "If a person was up there in front of the cameras facing a panel of stars with no audience out there pulling for him, it wouldn't be a game show — it would feel more like an inquisition!"

That's why the networks and other production facilities go to such great lengths to make sure they bring in enough people.

IF THEY could charge money for the tickets it wouldn't be such a problem. Then the buyers would have something invested in attending. But federal regulations prohibit their sale and so there is no way of knowing whether the people who pick them up will actually turn out for the show.

Consequently, thousands of tickets have to be distributed to guarantee that a few hundred will be there. How this is accomplished depends on the season.

"During the summer months we don't have too many problems because the town is packed with tourists," says Di Sante. The networks are able to unload tickets for just bout everything by simply answering write-in requests and handing them out at their headquarters and a few other locations around town.

IN NONSUMMER months they tend to rely more on groups to fill all the empty seats. They contact military installations, churches, fraternities, civic groups, big companies and any other place where they're liable to draw a significant number of people. The networks will offer free bus transportation and sometimes, particularly if the taping of the show is at an inconvenient time, will offer door prizes as further enticement.

Di Sante estimates that ABC spends about $25,000 to provide group transportation over the course of a year. Michelis puts NBC's expenditure at about half that. In all cases the busing cost is charged to the particular show involved.

Some shows are a lot easier to get audiences for than others, of course. Hit programs such as "The Tonight Show," "The Carol Burnett Show" and the top situation comedies run into difficulties only around holidays and bad weather.

ALSO EASY to fill are game shows on which members of the audience can win prizes, such as "The Price Is Right" and "Tattletales." On the latter program, reports CBS executive Alfred Landolph, there is a dedicated core of about 100 to 150 persons who constantly are trying to get in. They write for tickets under different names and even, on past occasions, have shown up in disguises.

For many producers, however, having a full house isn't enough. They want a portion of the audience to be people who they think will easily identify with a key character in the show. Senior citizens were brought in for an episode of "Doc" that dealt with old age. Prison inmates were bused in for the pilot of "On the Rocks."

This isn't always possible, naturally, and some network officials don't like the practice, believing, as one executive put it, that "a good program is going to get a good audience reaction, regardless of whether they're young or old, drunk or sober."

Producer Ed Weinberger defends the theory. "Anybody who says that any audience will do is missing the point," he says. "There's no question that a lively audience helps give you a lively show. They're not just a laugh track; they're helping the performances, the timing, the pacing. A good show can be ruined by a bad audience."

FLIP WILSON will be guest host on the Johnny Carson show Monday through Friday of this week, at 11:30 p.m. on Ch. 4.

To many fans, Nabors is still Gomer Pyle

By GREG McGARRY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — After 15 years, people still approach Jim Nabors on the street with a "Hey, Gomer!"

And he says it doesn't upset him one bit to still be identified as the bumbling gas station attendant he played on the old Andy Griffith television show.

"No, it doesn't bother me at all," Nabors said in an interview here. "I'm very proud of it, as a matter of fact. He was such a nice guy to play that it makes you feel good.

"I'll tell you a story," the affable star continued. "Some guy walked up to me in Kansas City once. He was a fan; he meant well. Well, he picked me right up and held me up in the air — and he was a big old guy — and he said, 'Boy, we watch you all the time on TV. You sure are a stupid son of a . . . .'

"And I just said, 'Why, thank you sir,'" recalled Nabors, flashing a Gomer smile.

THAT'S Jim Nabors, polite and friendly just like Gomer. But that's where the similarity stops.

Not that Nabors doesn't have a bit of hillbilly twang. But he is bright and witty. He has established himself in show business with appearances in Las Vegas and on television. He has recorded more than 20 record albums, his baritone voice earning him five gold records.

He is currently on a tour of summer theaters and will resume TV guest spots in the fall, including appearances on the Carol Burnett show, as well as Sonny and Cher and Tony Orlando and Dawn shows.

He has come a long way, indeed, from Sylacauga, Ala., a small town where Nabors kept secret his boyhood dream of becoming a star.

"IF YOU TOLD anybody you were going to be in show business they'd run you out of town," he said half seriously. "Especially me. I was 6-foot-2 and weighed only 126 pounds. I was really skinny and it was just a far-fetched fantasy."

"It was always in my mind," he continued. "But I wouldn't tell anybody, not even my family."

So Nabors went to the University of Alabama and earned a bachelor's degree in business. But then he began dabbling in theater.

"Then various people started encouraging me to do more," he said. "I didn't think it would be realistic to go into show business because the competition is so fierce."

BUT HE GOT up enough nerve to do some comedy at the Horn, a Los Angeles nightclub that has launched numerous singers and comics.

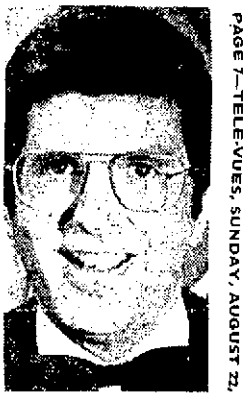
"I didn't think I had a very good voice back then," he recalled. "Heck, Jack Jones was the bar boy and there was a little Mexican girl singing there. Her name was Vickki Carr. So the only thing I did was talk like this." He reverts to Gomer.

Nabors was spotted by comedian Bill Dana, who asked him to audition for the Steve Allen television show. He made it and, after being spotted by Andy Griffith, got the part of Gomer Pyle.

After several successful seasons he got his own show, "Gomer Pyle-USMC," in which he played a dimwitted Marine. Later he did a variety show, "The Jim Nabors Hour," and a couple of TV specials.

LAST YEAR, he had his first — and perhaps last — dramatic television role. His performance as a killer in a segment of "The Rookies" drew favorable reviews, but he said it took too much out of him.

"It was a very heavy part," he remarked. "You really had to concentrate. So I'd come home every night (he lives with his mother in Bel Air Estates near Hollywood). I'd sit down at the table like this (he makes a forlorn expression) and my mom summed it up aptly. She said to me, 'You know, I'll sure be glad when you're through with this thing.



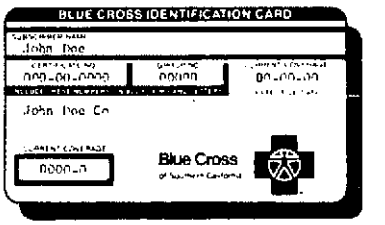
Nabors said he's looking forward to the end of his summer tour.

"I think I've done it for five years now and I'd rather be back on TV. It's time for something new."

But he says he's still not sure what direction his career will take.

"I think just about every agent in the world has said to me on the way up, 'Well, if you only find direction you might make it.'

"I never did find any direction," he said with a laugh.



MARVIN HAMLISCH, Oscar-winning composer, is one of the guests on "The Diahann Caroll Show" at 10 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2.

We Could Have Been A Rock Group.

LOW COST— HIGH PERFORMANCE THAT'S TOSHIBA

Value, that's Toshiba. Any one of their superb receivers, each in its own right are achievements in audio engineering and design. From the distinctive "separate-look" to the great flexibility afforded the user, the Toshiba quality shines through.

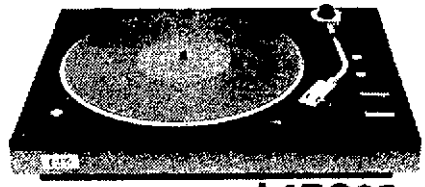
If you're budget-minded—this is the one—the TOSHIBA SA 220C. It incorporates superb styling, great performance, with a budget price.

$169.95 7 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 40-20,000 Hz with no more than 0.8% total harmonic distortion.

If you're practical-minded the TOSHIBA SA 420 is for you! With the same "separate" styling as the SA-520 in a more practical application. The SA 420 has plenty of power, too.

$249.95 25 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 20-20,000 Hz at no more than 0.4% total harmonic distortion.

So you don't need "the flagship" but versatility is still your bag, then look at the TOSHIBA SA 520. It has most of the features of the SA 620, but without the "frills."



$349.95 40 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 20-20,000 Hz at no more than 0.4% total harmonic distortion.

The flagship of the Toshiba line is every bit bit an outstanding example of Toshiba achievement. The TOSHIBA SA 620 features dual tuning meters, function indicator lights, audio muting, tone defeat switch, high & low filter, attenuator-type volume control and more.

$399.95 50 watts RMS x 2 at 8 ohms from 20-20,000 Hz at no more than 0.3% total harmonic distortion.

So, if a great receiver is what you want, Toshiba makes the receivers for most any budget or need and Federated's where they're at!

SO YOU THOUGHT YOU'D HAVE TO SACRIFICE SOMETHING BUYING AN AUTOMATIC TURNTABLE—

...not with the JVC JL-F35. $159.95 In manual or automatic operation, the handsome, slim-line JL-F35 delivers 0.07% wow & flutter and better than 57 db signal to noise ratio. Friction and tracking inaccuracies are reduced to practically zero thanks to an ingeniously designed JVC tone arm and support system. And the silent motor and smooth, precision belt-drive system puts even some expensive direct-drive models to shame. You don't have to sacrifice anything with the JVC JL-F35 and Federated's where it's at!

BUT IT CAN'T SOUND THAT GOOD— IT'S TOO SMALL!

each $49.95

But the new LINEAR DYNAMICS LD 210 does sound great! This 8" two way loudspeaker sounds so good you'd think it was twice as big. Makes a good set of add-on speakers, too. CALIFORNIA STATE LAW says that very young child actors can't work more than three hours a day, so, to get a full day's work out of the character of Carrie Ingalls, the baby daughter on NBC's "The Little House on the Prairie," the role is played by twins, Lindsay and Sidney Greenbush. Can 'Rich Man' be a success without Nolte?

By GARY DEEB
Chicago Tribune

Will "Rich Man, Poor Man," the dark-horse smash of the 1975-76 television season, degenerate into just another link in TV's perpetual output of dramatic sausage?

Is one of the most heartening video developments in recent years about to be watered down into a slick, greasy, predictable pot-boiler?

And what about Nick Nolte? Will his absence from the continuation of "Rich Man, Poor Man" rob the high-gloss serial of its greatest appeal?

FOR THE answers to these and other engrossing questions, join us for "Rich Man, Poor Man — Book II" on Saturday nights this fall on ABC.

Ever since the original 12 hours of "RM-PM" became the TV phenomenon of 1976, ABC has been scrambling to put together a sequel in the form of a regular weekly series. And now that all the pieces are in place, it's time to scrutinize the merchandise.

It's perfectly obvious that ABC is taking a terrific gamble with "RM-PM, Book II." If the program doesn't live up to the expectations of the 40 million persons who got hooked on the original last winter, the network stands to take a beating — both in the ratings and in the arena of public relations.

AND THE biggest obstacles to continued success for the show are: (1) The refusal of Nolte to appear in the sequel and (2) The appreciably cheaper production that will characterize the new series.

Nolte, of course, starred as Tom Jordache, the "poor man" of the title. A lusty, brawling, ill-fated character, Tom was eminently more interesting than Rudy, his success-oriented, goodie-two-shoes brother (played by Peter Strauss).

In addition, Nolte's good looks and sexual magnetism attracted millions of female viewers. It's doubtful they'll get similar satisfaction from the talented but placid Strauss.

EVEN THOUGH Nolte's character was killed at the conclusion of "RM-PM I," ABC was all set to recast Nick as Tom Jordache's son (who grows up in the spitting image of his old man). Crafty, that ABC.

Nolte declined the big-money offer, however, and quietly shifted over to movies, where he hopes to make another indelible mark on the nation's consciousness.

Nevertheless, there are some good signs ahead for "RM-PM, Book II." For one thing, the program will retain the trappings of socio-political realism. Rudy's two sons, for instance, are tentatively slated to get involved in the Vietnam protest movement.

ANOTHER promising sign: Millard Lampell, a formerly blacklisted screenwriter, has signed on as head writer for "Book II." He reportedly already has adapted a season's worth of storylines based on Irwin Shaw's novel.

Not surprisingly, the most outwardly optimistic soul of all is Strauss, a fine actor who now ranks as the undisputed star of the new series.

"The continuation will be downright revolutionary in content," Strauss insists. "This is going to be extremely mature drama, with a sophistication that the first show just hinted at. I honestly think the new series will be better than the first. I'm very excited."

STRAUSS considers "RM-PM" a TV landmark, particularly because of the type of viewers it captures.

"There was an audience watching that show who very rarely watches television," he says. "It was a high-brow, superliberal audience, the kind who tune into PBS all the time."

Moreover, Strauss is looking forward to further developing the character of Rudy. In the original, Rudy was a Johnny-One-Note of sorts, and many viewers were turned off by the character's near-total dependence on expedience.

"I disagree with those people," Strauss argues. "The character of Rudy was misunderstood. I personally never felt he was ignoble or unsympathetic. I always saw him as very American."
